

400 Meadowbrook homes to test new garbage scheme

by LYNN ASINOF

Starting April 2, about 400 Wheeling homes, in the Meadowbrook area, will begin a three-month pilot program testing the possibility of using plastic garbage bags instead of trash cans.

Residents in the test area will be given a metal stand and a supply of heavy plastic bags to use for trash disposal throughout the testing period. Cost of the pilot program will be split three ways, between the village, the Wheeling Disposal Company and the company supplying the home garbage equipment.

Originally, the village explored the possibility of using paper bags instead of plastic ones. Village Mgr. George Passolt said, however, the pilot program for the plastic bags was more economical for the village.

Passolt said one of the main reasons for the pilot program is the fact the cost of garbage collection is expected to go up in the near future. He said the Wheeling Disposal Company has asked for a 75-cent increase in the monthly cost of garbage collection.

The company is presently charging $3 a month for twice-a-week garbage pickup. This figure has been in effect since the last increase in garbage rates in 1968.

PASSOLT SAID the use of plastic bags will save the scavenger service money by reducing the time needed to collect local trash. He explained the present system using garbage cans requires the collectors to make two trips, one to the truck and one to replace the can on the curb.

By using plastic bags, the collectors only have to make one trip since the plastic bag is thrown out with the garbage. Passolt said he didn't know how much this method would save the scavenger service. "But it's a foregone conclusion that they will save something," he said.

Passolt said the use of plastic bags will also eliminate trash cans. He said trash cans are a nuisance because they are noisy, unattractive and less sanitary than the plastic bags.

According to Passolt, the Meadowbrook area was chosen because of the number of homes in the area and because it is a defined neighborhood. "The 400 homes are not quite a full day's work but it is a good figure for a test group," he explained.

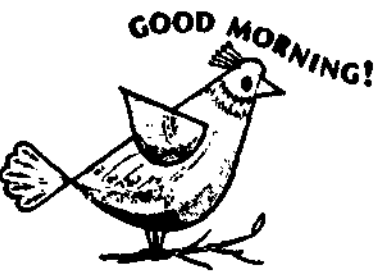

Residents affected by the program will soon receive a letter notifying them of the pilot test. Passolt said the homeowners will receive their garbage stands and plastic bags by March 29, the last day for collecting from garbage cans.

THE MANAGER said he expected that the first day of the test program may bring some problems in changing over to the bag system. He said, however, those homeowners who continue to use garbage cans instead of the plastic bags will be contacted by phone to explain the need for their participation in the program.

After a reasonable length of time, Passolt said the scavenger service would stop collecting garbage in cans if the people don't conform. He explained this was necessary so the pilot program would yield accurate results.

Passolt added that if the pilot proves successful, the village will set up a plan for converting the entire village to this type of garbage service. He said, however, exact figures on the cost of converting to this type of pickup have not been worked out.

"A lot depends on the results of the test," he said. "A lot depends on what the scavenger feels he can save on the set-up."

TOP has not yet responded to invitation

We'll work with any group on election debate: WHIP

In a written statement yesterday, candidates of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) said they would work with any group of citizens to organize the proposed election debate with candidates of the To Overall Progress Party (TOP).

The WHIP candidates, who proposed the joint panel discussion last week, originally suggested the Wheeling Jaycees sponsor the event. The Jaycees, however, have indicated the request came too late for them to organize the debate.

"Although a certain amount of preparation is required, we feel sure arrangements could be made," read the WHIP statement. "If the Jaycees are unable to sponsor the event, we will work with any group of citizens, or simply with the TOP staff to assure a joint presentation of views."

The WHIP candidates said they regretted TOP officials have not yet responded to the invitation. "We feel strongly that the citizens of Wheeling have the right to hear both sides in an open discussion," they said.

TED C. SCANLON, incumbent TOP candidate for village president, previously indicated TOP candidates already had a full campaign schedule of neighborhood coffees. He said although he had not yet had a chance to fully discuss the invitation with the rest of his ticket, he felt "TOP's present method of campaigning was reaching village residents."

"I think we are accomplishing a lot more than whatever they're asking for," Scanlon said of the proposal. "If (Gov. Daniel) Walker can go with walking and talking, we'll go with walking and talking."

Responding to Scanlon's statements, the WHIP candidates wrote "the advantages to the public of a panel discussion involving both parties far outweighs an individual coffee." WHIP said that if the date of the proposed debate should fall on the night of a scheduled coffee, those involved with the coffee would take part in the joint panel discussion.

"In reference to TOP's full schedule of coffees, we agree that coffees are essential to a good campaign," the statement said. "We have publicized our coffees and issue an open invitation to any resident to attend. To the best of our knowledge, attendance at opposition coffees is by invitation only."

TOP OFFICIALS said they do not publicize their coffees out of courtesy to their hosts and hostesses. They said some homes can only handle a certain number of people, and therefore they have relied on their hosts to invite people in their neighborhoods to attend the coffees.

If persons are interested in attending a TOP coffee they should contact candidates on the TOP ticket, according to TOP officials.

In the statement, the WHIP candidates also disputed Scanlon's comparison to Walker's campaign. "Mr Scanlon compares the campaign activity of his party to that of Gov. Dan Walker, walking and talking with the people," they said. "We believe in this also but remember, Gov. Walker and Gov. Ogilvie met in public debate to the credit of both men."

Mount Prospect police seek red car in robbery probe

Mount Prospect police are searching for the driver of a red car to help identify an armed robbery suspect.

Police believe the red car, make unknown, was almost involved in an accident with a yellow car, possibly a Pinto, about 1 p.m. March 9 while heading west on Golf Road, about 200 yards west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect. Police hope the driver of the red car will come forward and possibly help identify the driver of the yellow car, or the car itself.

The yellow car was seen speeding out of the shopping center at the southwest corner of Golf and Busse roads shortly after an armed robbery at Western Fashions, 1740 W. Golf Rd. Police believe the driver of the yellow car may have been involved in the robbery.

The yellow car apparently almost collided with the red car and forced the red car up onto the median strip. Police said they also had a report of a yellow car a short time later almost involved in a second accident as it turned northwest off of Golf Road onto Algonquin Road.

About $80 was taken during the holdup and a clerk, Mary Kozel of unincorporated Mount Prospect, was struck on the head and hand, resulting in a fractured skull and hand.

Police described the robbery suspect as a white male, about 26 years old, between 5 feet 4 inches and 5 feet 6 inches tall. He is of stocky build, about 175 pounds, has medium-length light brown hair and a full beard and moustache. He wore a navy blue silk jacket over a T-shirt.

Anyone with information may contact police detectives by phoning 392-4000.

Youth charged on drug counts

A youth from unincorporated Des Plaines was arrested early Thursday morning at 365 Marion Ct., Wheeling, on charges of possession of marijuana, LSD and barbiturates.

Lewis W. McMahon Jr., 20, of 10425 Deerlove Rd., Des Plaines, was arrested by Wheeling police in conjunction with the Metropolitan Enforcement Group. McMahon was processed and released on bond.

Police said the arrest stemmed from an earlier narcotics raid on Feb. 7 at the same Wheeling address.

Insight out

DOG GONE — When Wheeling first initiated the job of animal warden, the idea was to have someone who would handle stray cats and dogs in the community. But recently the police department has found its animal problems are going to the birds. For example, among the run-of-the-mill animal complaints police were recently called to assist a lost duck.

However, the topper came this week when police got the call: "Someone needed to help lame goose."

SIGN IN PLEASE — Wheeling residents seem to know a good thing when they hear about it, so much so they can't wait to be first to use it.

At least two civic organizations have requested that their events be posted on the proposed community sign to be built in front of the village hall. The only problem — the sign has yet to leave the drawing boards.

However, keep those cards and letters coming so they can be referred to the village manager, who is making a list of all requests.

A REAL NAME-DROPPER — Candidates for village office often like to drop their names, but in Buffalo Grove trustee candidate Algimantas Kezels just tries to remember his.

Kezels added that most people call him "Al."

Driver charged after collision

A Glencoe man was charged with failure to reduce speed Wednesday after his car struck a stopped vehicle on Dundee Road near Portwine Road.

Police said the car driven by Albert Hillinger sustained $450 damage after striking one driven by Anthony Parelo, 180 N. Wolf Rd., Wheeling. Damage to Parelo's car was estimated at $250.

Hillinger was taken to Holy Family Hospital with a rib injury. He was treated and released.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has introduced four bills aimed at giving "immediate protection" to Great Lakes and other shorelines endangered by erosion. The bills include a three-year, $6 million study of Lake Michigan.

President Nixon announced he will seek prompt removal of a U.S. tariff on beef imports to help curb rising meat prices, but said the best weapon against inflated food costs was still the American housewife.

President Nixon warned Senate Democrats they would get nowhere holding L. Patrick Gray III as "hostage" for White House testimony on the Watergate affair.

Sensors Claiborne Pell and John Pastore, both D-R.I., have proposed making daylight savings time a year-round event. They contend the bill would cut crime and traffic accidents, and lessen electric power demands.

President Nixon has named veteran diplomat David K. E. Bruce as head of the new U.S. mission in Peking with responsibility of building "for cause of peace and better relations."

The state

An attorney for former Illinois Revenue Director Theodore Isaacs moved for a new trial on grounds of "judicial error" in last month's trial which ended in convictions for Isaacs, and Judge Otto Kerner.

The Illinois House has passed 96-43, a bill that would allow 19 year olds to buy beer and wine. The bill now goes to the Senate, where a similar measure was defeated last year.

The Illinois General Assembly approved a $17.85 million emergency aid package for impoverished mass transit systems including a $12.6 million grant for the Chicago Transit Authority.

The world

Strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos of Panama denounced U.S. "colonialist" control of the Canal Zone, and also branded the economic blockade of Cuba a "hemispheric shame."

Washington and Hanoi officials conferred in Paris on U.S. economic aid for North Vietnam. They said they were determined to reach agreement.

Thirty-two POWs held by the Viet Cong — including the man held longest in the war — fly to freedom today.

The war

Communist terrorists killed 17 persons and wounded 88 others yesterday, only hours before a Canadian official arrived on a special mission to determine if the cease-fire is working well enough to justify his country's participation in the supervisory force. It was reported the Communists have committed 7,154 cease-fire violations.

7,000-yr.-old Indian remnants found near Elk Grove

by WANDALYN RICE

One day last spring John Congriff was walking through a vacant field near his Elk Grove Village home, looked down and picked up what appeared to be half of some kind of arrowhead.

He took the flat, mottled piece of stone to one of his teachers at Elk Grove High School. History teacher Ronald Benes realized as he looked at it that it was the butt end of a spear point in what archeologists call the Clovis style.

Clovis style artifacts, Benes realized, are generally dated at between 8,000 and 15,000 years old. The teacher and some of his students went back to the field and found other primitive stone tools.

What they found, Benes says, "were apparently left by a people who were living in the area after the Wisconsin glacier began to recede. They were hunters and gatherers who camped near knolls."

AMONG THE artifacts the students found were stones used for cutting and grinding, small bits of stone sharpened into miniature arrow points and a primitive nutcracker. Benes, who has degrees in history and anthropology from the University of New Mexico, contacted Steward Strever, head of the anthropology department at Northwestern University.

"We think now," Benes says, "that the site is about 7,000 to 8,000 years old and belonged to the Paleo-Indian and Archaic Indian cultures. We don't know how permanent the camp was, but it seems as if the area of Elk Grove and northern DuPage County had a number of camps."

Ever since the find Benes and officials at Elk Grove High School have been moving cautiously to make arrangements to explore the site further. Benes is keeping its exact location a secret to protect it from the curious. Attorneys for High School Dist. 214 and the land owners, who have plans to develop the property, have been negotiating.

AMONG THE legal problems that must be worked out, Benes said, is whether the land will remain vacant long enough for the students to excavate and who will own the artifacts that are discovered.

"We would want Elk Grove High School to become the owners of the artifacts," Benes said, "so we can use them for educational purposes."

In addition, he said he and Strever want to study the artifacts carefully to try to recreate the culture of the Indians. "Finding Paleo sites east of the Mississippi River is quite rare," Benes said. "There is only one major site from that period in Illinois and if this does prove to be a substantial site, it could be a major find."

ASSUMING THAT the legal details can be worked out, Benes hopes to have both summer school classes and the school's regular archeology class explore the site.

Dist. 214 Board of Education has authorized $1,000 to send 10 students and another teacher, James Brown, to Southern Illinois where Strever and other members of the Northwestern University archeology department can train them on a site being explored there.

When those students come back, Benes said, "they will be able to train other students as things get under way. You can't train a person to do archeology on a site that has not been started, so they have to work with Dr. Strever."

Exploring the campsite, Benes estimates, could take several years, or could end in a single summer.

"It could be very shallow and there might not be anything more than what we've already found," he said, "but it could be a major site."

THE INFORMATION on the site will eventually be written up and filed with the Illinois Archeological Survey as required by law, he said. He has already considered writing about the project for an archeological journal. Even the first spear point that John Congriff found will be worth that much, he said.

"Even the Illinois State Museum does not have a Clovis point to put on display," he says. "The Field Museum has some, but they have gotten them from New Mexico and Arizona."

Whatever finally ends up being found on the site, Benes is excited by the possibility of exploring it and worried that something will prevent it.

"It seems that Elk Grove might have a historical past," he says, "but if condominiums are built on that land it will all disappear."

'No price controls on food'

Hanoi's truce violations irk Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon voiced grave concern yesterday over truce violations by the North Vietnamese and served notice that the violations would not be tolerated by the United States.

The President told a news conference: "I would only suggest that in the light of my actions over the last four years ... North Vietnam should not lightly disregard such expressions of concern."

He did not specify any further possible actions.

THESE WERE other highlights of a 45-minute meeting by Nixon with newsmen at the White House:

- He said he is naming David K. E. Bruce, one of the nation's foremost diplomats, to head the 20-member U.S. mission that will open a liaison office in Peking, probably about May 1. Bruce, former ambassador to Britain, France and Germany, will be joined by two other China experts in the Peking post.

- The others are Alfred Jenkins, director of Asian Communist Affairs for the State Department, and John Holdridge, a member of Henry A. Kissinger's national security council staff.

- The President said he will lift a 0.3 per cent tariff on imported beef in an effort to force down soaring meat prices, but he again absolutely ruled out price controls on agricultural and food products. He said if he believed controls would stop the price rises on food "I would impose them instantly" but added controls discourage production.

- He challenged Congress to take to the Supreme Court for a showdown their fight with him over his invoking of executive privilege. He accused the Senate of trying to hold as "hostage" his nomination of L. Patrick Gray III to be FBI director because Nixon has refused to allow his White House counsel, John W. Dean III, to testify at confirmation hearings.

- Nixon said he probably would make two trips out of the country during the year, but did not pinpoint the areas he will visit.

- Nixon said his decision to sell government stockpiles of the strategic materials would produce "some squeals" from American industrialists, but he contended that it would help control inflation.

THE PRESIDENT said U.S. concern over the apparent violations of the cease-fire agreement by the Communists had been transmitted to Hanoi and "other interested parties."

Murder suspect 'incompetent'?

Three psychiatric reports filed in court this week have concluded that Lee Clark Jennings is mentally incompetent to stand trial for the September murders of Mrs. Barbara Flanagan, 27, and her 18-month-old daughter, Renee.

Patrick Driscoll, of the state's attorney's office, said yesterday that a competency hearing will have to be held before Jennings is legally declared incompetent to stand trial. No date has been set for that hearing.

Jennings was charged with the murders Oct. 1. The Flanagan's nude and beaten bodies were found Sept. 11 in the Community Presbyterian Church parking lot, 407 N. Main St., Mount Prospect.

The Nixon administration has been taking a relatively mild view of cease-fire violations, on the theory some incidents were bound to occur. But the infiltration of military supplies, the President made clear, was another matter.

The Pentagon said early this week that about 30,000 men and a large number of tanks were spotted on the Ho Chi Minh Trail headed toward — or into — South Vietnam.

Bruce is coming out of retirement to head the Peking mission.

Peking will set up a similar mission in Washington as part of an agreement reached by Kissinger on a trip to Peking in February.

NIXON NOTED that both Jenkins and Holdridge speak Chinese fluently. Both accompanied him on his trip to Peking last year which he said he considered "the beginning, we trust, of a longer journey" toward peace in the Pacific and the world.

Under the terms of the liaison office agreement the missions will not be designated as embassies, thus stopping just short of formal diplomatic relations.

When the Chinese establish their liaison office in Washington, it will become the first formal mission established by the Communist government in the capital of a nation that recognizes the Nationalist regime on Taipei as the government of China.

The President announced the appointment of Bruce, Jenkins and Holdridge personally at the beginning of a 45-minute news conference, thus adding to the importance he attaches to the new mission.

Bruce, 75, has served as U.S. ambassador to Britain, Germany and France and he headed the U.S. Vietnam peace talk delegation in 1971 and early 1972 before retiring.

St. Pat: most of his story blarney

It's doubtful St. Patrick ever found a snake in the grass.

His life is steeped in legend, and perhaps the one best known is that he drove all the snakes out of Ireland and into the sea. But probably there never were any snakes on the Emerald Isle, says The World Book Encyclopedia. There certainly are none now.

Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, was born about 389 A.D. in Roman Britain. At the age of 16 he was captured by pirates from Ireland and sold into slavery. For the next six years he is said to have tended the flocks of a chieftain in Ulster, finally escaping to France where he became a monk.

When he was 43, he returned to the land of his enslavement and spent his remaining 29 years founding more than 300 churches and baptizing more than 120,000 persons. His endeavors were so successful, in fact, he is said to have "found Ireland all heathen and left it all Christian."

AMONG THE more popular legends about the man, probably more blarney than gospel are:

He planted the first shamrock, Ireland's national flower, because its three leaves represented the Trinity.

As a child, when there was no honey to be found, he went to the well and came back with a bucket full of honey, not water.

When he was watching his father's sheep, a wolf appeared and took away a lamb. After being reprimanded for his negligence, Patrick said there was no reason for concern, and the wolf returned — gently carrying the lamb back to the fold.

A chieftain, who feared Patrick's presence, drew his sword and tried to kill him. Instead the warrior's arm became rigid, and he then declared himself obedient to the saint.

WHEN BAPTIZING another chieftain, Patrick leaned so heavily on his pointed staff, inadvertently placed on the chieftain's toe, that the blood flowed freely. The chief believed this to be an essential element of the ceremony, so bore the pain without flinch or murmur. The place is now named Strull or Struthull, meaning "stream of blood."

On a cold morning, when the saint and his followers found themselves without fire, he is said to have gathered the ice and snow into a pile and breathed upon it, and it instantly became a fire.

The day of Patrick's death, March 17, has been observed in America since Colonial days, and since 1945, it has been observed nationwide. The annual St. Patrick's Day parade in New York City is said to have more Irishmen in it than there are in Ireland itself.

TRAGEDY WAS AVERTED yesterday morning when Rudolph Ryniak of Berwyn crawled to safety after the full cement truck he was driving tipped over at Palatine Road and Ill. Rte. 53 in Arlington Heights. Ryniak was treated for a bruised shoulder and released from North-west Community Hospital. It took police nearly three hours to remove the rig, which blocked two lanes of traffic. "The truck was demolished and Ryniak was lucky he wasn't killed," said Jim Uggle, the investigating Arlington Heights policeman. Ryniak, who works for Vulcan Material in Palatine, was charged with driving too fast for conditions, according to Uggle, who also said the accident is still under investigation.

Proposed pact for 3 years with no-strike clause

Schools offer package to teachers

Proposals for a three-year contract with a no-strike clause for teachers were part of a negotiations package presented to teachers yesterday by the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 school board.

Representatives of the board and the Prospect Heights Education Association (PHEA) exchanged procedural negotiations proposals that will not be explained or discussed until the March 29 open bargaining session. There were no money items included in the partial packages for the 1973-74 teacher contract.

The board's proposals also included a no picket clause for members of the PHEA. David Kessler, chairman of the teachers' bargaining team, did not comment on the board's proposals, but laughed as he read the package.

THE TEACHERS' procedural package includes proposals that all extra duty, which includes such items as lunchroom supervising, be voluntary; that a non-student day be added to the school calendar for evaluation and record keeping, and that a committee of teachers and the principal be selected in each of the schools to "solve problems unique to their individual buildings."

Also among the PHEA proposals is a provision that no teacher in the junior high school be assigned to more than 150 students per day and that he "will not be required" to be in direct, assigned pupil contact for more than 240 minutes per day. The teachers' package also asks that the board not discriminate "for reasons of race, creed, religion, color, marital status, age, sex, national origin, or political affiliation" against a teacher or applicant.

When the two sides meet at 7:30 p.m. March 28, the first item of discussion will be whether this year's negotiations will be open to the public. In its package, the board proposes the meetings be closed and that minutes be distributed to the news media and teachers.

TEACHERS want open bargaining. At the first bargaining session last month, teachers stressed that a provision for open meetings is part of the 1972-73 teacher contract. Since the contract does not expire until July 31, teachers contend the provision is also in effect until then.

Kessler said yesterday that the PHEA "will hold its original stand on open bargaining unless the board can change our minds." He said the PHEA could possibly agree to private meetings "if there is an immediate gain in it for us."

6th school referendum to be weighed

The feasibility of holding a referendum to pay for the building and staffing of a sixth elementary school in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will be studied by a school board committee.

The committee, formed Wednesday night, will work with the administration and make recommendations to the board by July 1. Committee members are board members Carl Poch, Ronald Szwatke and John Stull.

The committee was recommended by Supt. Edward Grodsky. "The committee should consider a referendum for a new school in the northwest quadrant of the district to serve children north of Palatine Road and west of Schoenbeck Road, and also the possibility of an addition to John Muir School," Grodsky said.

The committee, which will have a public meeting next Wednesday night, will discuss immediate and future measures to alleviate the overcrowding at Muir School. According to Principal James Finke, enrollment is now "at the detrimental level" and he expects between 55 and 75 new students at the end of the year. School officials anticipate the problem will be much worse by next September.

THE LARGE influx of new students is coming from the Ivy Hill and Northgate subdivisions in Arlington Heights. School officials expect more new students next fall from these developments and from the Pleasant Run condominium complex in Wheeling.

If the committee decides a sixth school is needed and a referendum is approved, the school would be built on a site owned by the district on Windy Lane in Arlington Heights. In 1971, voters defeated a referendum for a state-built school on the site. This time, according to Grodsky, the school would cost a lot more.

Grodsky expects by the end of the school year, Dist. 23 will no longer qualify for a state-built school. As a result, they will have to borrow the money and pay interest. When a school is built by the state, the district pays rent to the state and eventually owns the building. However, the district does not have to pay any interest to the state.

Village hall to stay open for registration

The Wheeling Village Hall will be open Monday night from 6:30 to 9 p.m., the last day for village residents to register to vote in the April 17 village election.

Persons registering to vote, however, have already passed the registration deadline for the township elections April 3. They will receive a special notice informing them that they are not eligible to vote in that township election.

School administrators to get raises

The 1973-74 salaries for administrators in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 were approved by the school board Wednesday night.

According to Ronald Szwatke, chairman of the board's salary committee, pay raises were granted "on the basis of merit and comparison with surrounding districts." Raises vary from $1,600 for Supt. Edward Grodsky to $1,000 for several principals.

Grodsky will receive $25,000. Other central administration salaries, which are all for 12 months, are James Hendran, business manager, $19,000; and Tom Rich, assistant superintendent, $22,000.

Salaries for principals are: MacArthur

Junior High, $19,800; Eisenhower, $17,750; Anne Sullivan, $17,100; Betsy Ross, $16,800; and John Muir, $16,000. Principals' contracts are for 10½ months, except at the junior high, where the contract is for one year.

Also granted was $13,500 for assistant principal at MacArthur Junior High (for 12 months).

School news notes

THE SMELL OF cooking bacon wafted down the halls of Poe School, Dist. 21, Arlington Heights, recently. Nose checks located the smell in Mrs. Carol Ashley's fourth grade home-room.

Students working in groups of seven were busy experimenting and recording their scientific data about fat content in various foods. They were investigating how to determine the fat content of foods, how fats are burned and stored in the human body and how it produces energy. They tested peanuts, bacon, sausage, lard, cooking oil, cheese, bread, rice and fritos.

Mrs. Ashley's class is working on part of a pilot science study program at Poe School. One classroom at every grade level is participating. The program commonly known as STEM (Space Time Energy Matter) groups and relates science concepts. It allows the student to apply science to social and environmental problems.

Students in Miss Lewis' first and second grade classes have received a letter from President Nixon in response to stories they sent him following the recent announcement of peace in Vietnam.

President Nixon wished the students well and said he hoped they "will earn the title of peacemaker all the days of their lives."

Local VFW women to attend state rally

Delegates from the Wheeling VFW Ladies Auxiliary will be attending Saturday's spring rally and luncheon sponsored by the Department of Illinois Ladies Auxiliary of the VFW.

The rally is honoring Lola Reid, national president of the VFW Ladies Auxiliary. Pam Griffith and Lee Heliquist will be representing the Wheeling group at the rally at the Pick-Congress Hotel in Chicago.

Incorporation ruling expected by April 1

The Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) should know by the end of the month if the Illinois Supreme Court will hear its case for incorporation, an attorney for the association said yesterday.

"We're on the docket now. I expect a determination by the end of March," said Don Kreger, who has been involved in the case since PHIA filed its incorporation petition two years ago.

The association filed an appeal with the high court after the Cook County Circuit Court and Illinois Appellate Court ruled as invalid PHIA's petition for incorporation as a city. Judges said the petition did not meet state requirements because neighboring municipalities have not given consent to incorporation. Arlington Heights and Wheeling have objected to the proposed city.

IF THE SUPREME Court rules in favor of the association, it would take about two years before Prospect Heights actually would be functioning as a city, according to Jack Gilligan, PHIA president.

"We'd have to get our petition approved, hold the referendum and then elect the corporate officials to establish the city," he said.

If the Supreme Court does not agree to hear the appeal, PHIA won't give up its battle for incorporation.

"We have other options," Gilligan told PHIA board members at a meeting Tuesday night. "We could petition for a hearing. We could go through the legislature. Or we could talk about gerrymandering. There's a possibility if we change our boundaries we can get consent from Arlington Heights."

Last year the association attempted to get an amendment to a bill passed in the Illinois General Assembly that would allow an area the size of Prospect Heights to incorporate without consent of other municipalities. The amendment was defeated.

Several board members object to any changes in the proposed city boundaries. "I don't think those boundaries should be changed," Dave Bryant said. "I think we must reassess the town's opinion on incorporation. I'm worried that our membership is about 150 short of last year's. Maybe we're not doing the right job."

Confirmation of 11 Walker appointees recommended

Senate panel asks OK for Scariano

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Senate Executive Committee has recommended confirmation of 11 appointments by Gov. Daniel Walker, including Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and six other racing board members.

Scariano, a former state representative defeated last November in a bid for the Illinois Senate, was appointed last December to head the board after Alexander MacArthur resigned the post in a racing date scandal.

The Republican dominated committee approved Scariano's appointment on a 21-0 vote, but not before grilling him for nearly an hour on his political past and his job as attorney for several Illinois school boards.

Also approved with little opposition were racing board appointees James Otis of Chicago, vice chairman; William Browder, Wilmette; Ray Freeark, Belleville; Mrs. Lucy Reum, Oak Park; Mrs. Patricia Hewitt, Rock Island; and Sidney Hyman, Chicago.

OTHER APPOINTEES approved by the committee were Donald Henss, Moline, pollution control board member;

Harvey N. Johnson Jr., director of the department of Law Enforcement; Nolan B. Jones, Cairo, director of the Personnel Department, and Dean Barringer, Anna, director of the Department of Education and Registration.

The names of the nominees now must go before the entire Senate for final confirmation.

Executive committee member Sen. Hudson Sours, R-Peoria, quizzed Scariano on remarks Scariano was said to have made about his opponent during the November campaign, Sen. Don A. Moore, R-Midlothian.

Sours said Scariano used "inflammatory campaign invective" in accusing Moore of working for Standard Oil Co. in the General Assembly and of being "buddies with Paul Powell," the late secretary of state.

AFTER POWELL'S death in 1970, investigators found some $800,000 in cash and checks stashed away in Powell's Springfield hotel suite.

"If you'd been my opponent during the campaign, I'd have said the same thing about you," Scariano told Sours.

He said he stood behind his campaign remarks because Moore "was there whenever Powell wanted him," and said Moore voted for highway bills whenever they came up.

Other members asked whether Scariano felt it a conflict of interest that during his 15 years in the General Assembly he also served as attorney for several school boards in Illinois. Scariano answered that he was always open about his dealing with school boards and denied any wrongdoings.

Scariano's job on the racing board — like the rest of the board members — is unsalaried.

The better the lawn food, the better your lawn

TURF BUILDER is the lawn food we recommend most for early spring fertilizing. It releases its nutrients over a prolonged period. So there's no excess surge growth to cause extra mowing and no wasteful leaching away of the nutrients. Instead, TURF BUILDER produces a thicker, greener, sturdier lawn. Lasts longer, too, because it's Tronized.

Abortion program OK'd at County hospital

Physicians at Cook County Hospital will begin performing abortions Monday. The Health and Hospitals Governing Commission approved the abortion program last week.

A spokesman for the commission said abortions will be available to all women, regardless of age or ability to pay, on the advice of a hospital physician. The procedure, which will require an overnight stay at the hospital, will be preceded by counseling and a medical examination.

Women seeking abortions should call the hospital's Social Service Department, 633-8814, for an appointment for an evening counseling session that will include laboratory tests and an explanation of the procedure.

The spokesman said priority will be given to residents of Cook County, but laboratory tests and an explanation of the procedure.

The hospital plans to perform up to 12 abortions a day, with eventual plans to increase that number to 18 a day.

Lawsuit seeks voting machine use in elections

A suit was filed in federal court Thursday seeking to force the Chicago Board of Election Commissioners to use voting machines instead of paper ballots in the special April 17 primary election called to fill the vacant seat in the 7th Congressional District.

Otis G. Collins, an independent Democratic candidate in the primary, filed the suit on grounds paper ballots would lead to vote fraud.

The election commissioners previously announced they planned to use paper ballots. The election was called by former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie after the death of Rep. George Collins, who died in a plane crash near Midway Airport Dec. 8. Collins' widow, Cardie, is one of the candidates in the Democratic primary, along with Otis Collins and Milton Gardner. There are no Republican candidates in the heavily black Democratic district except Lar Daly, a perennial candidate. The general election is set for June 5.

Legal groups honor judge for cutting case backlog

A Cook County Circuit Court judge who lives in Arlington Heights was honored recently for his reduction in the backlog of civil jury cases awaiting trial.

Judge Joseph J. Butler, 719 E. Thorntree Terr., Arlington Heights, received a plaque from three legal organizations for his record in assigning civil cases to trial.

Butler was responsible for terminating 5,089 cases in 1972 as compared with 3,339 in 1970 and for reducing the time backlog from almost seven years to less than four years from the date a case is filed.

The three organizations which honored the judge, the Illinois Defense Counsel, Illinois Trial Lawyers Association and Society of Trial Lawyers, issued a statement that while the judge is considered "a task master" the three legal organizations "commended him for his personal and judicial qualities which generated an enthusiastic and cooperative response in the backlog reduction."

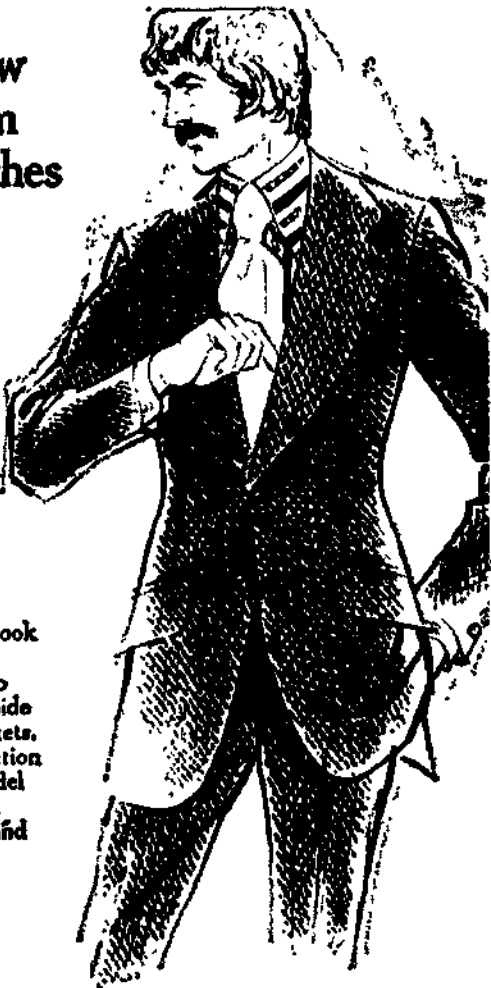

Judge Joseph J. Butler

In accepting the award, Butler warned that the pressure would continue to reduce the time it takes to get a civil case to trial down to three years from the filing date. He promised extreme hardship cases would be granted trials in substantially shorter times.

"The time is at hand when delayed justice will no longer be accepted in Cook County," Butler said.

Should the dying be told?

Fear of death gives some physicians a desire to combat it

by DAVID HENDIN

Third in a series

Does the person suffering from a fatal illness want to be told?

The question is especially tricky because the patient may have never discussed this important matter with his family. When he becomes ill, it can be difficult to elicit an answer. If the person has expressed a desire to know then the physician should be informed, for it may make it easier for both to cope with the situation when it arises.

In a study of dying and mourning behavior, British anthropologist Geoffrey Gorer noted that all 19 patients in his survey who died of cancer had been kept in ignorance about their prognosis.

He reported a great deal of regret and bitterness concerning this among the bereaved and noted that good marriage relationships had often been reduced to "unkindness and falsity" by such deception.

On the other hand, in another British study, psychiatrist John Hinton learned that a large majority of more than 100 dying patients in a general hospital ward knew that death was imminent, even though they hadn't been told.

THE FACTS BROUGHT out by such studies are fascinating and frightening, for it appears that the very truths from which the patient is being protected are the same truths that he is being forced to live with, and quite alone.

It does not seem prudent to suggest that a universal system of informing patients should be instituted, but it is evident that there is a great need for a reconsideration of the various factors involved in helping to ease the fear, alienation and loneliness of the terminally ill.

In attempting to obtain patients for a study of dying behavior, psychiatrist Herman Feifel ran into serious obstacles, not from the patients, but from his fellow physicians. "Isn't it cruel, sadistic and traumatic to discuss death with seriously ill and terminally ill people?" doctors asked him.

Feifel was able to overcome such objections only after he was allowed to interview and test two small groups of seriously ill patients. He recalls that "not only were there no untoward incidents, but an unanticipated felicitous byproduct was the seeming psychotherapeutic effect on some of the patients as a result of discussing their attitudes toward death."

Eventually, his study progressed and Feifel found that 82 per cent of his sample of 80 terminally ill patients wanted to be told about their condition in order to facilitate carrying out personal tasks.

MANY PHYSICIANS believe that when the patient is ready to know about his condition, he will ask questions. Then, after assimilating what he can, the patient will proceed to further questions and discussions. In other cases the family may not want the patient to know about his condition. In such circumstances the physician must weigh both sides of the issue and use his best judgment, although he will probably go along with the family's wishes.

One reason frequently cited for the reluctance of many physicians to disclose impending death is that the social and psychological problems of the patient may be most acute when he knows he is dying. Nevertheless, most physicians believe that if the patient really wants to know, he will somehow learn the truth without being told outright. Some doctors will even maneuver their conversations with patients so as to disclose the facts indirectly.

There is a widely proposed theory that strong fear of death itself exists among some people who become physicians. The choice of medicine as a career, according to psychiatrist C. W. Wahl, "sometimes may represent a counterphobic defense against death, a reaction formation to an earlier fear, mastered by doing the very thing that was previously frightening. It serves sometimes to represent a kind of identification with the aggressor, a wish to be on the winning team."

Certainly it seems logical to assume that the fear of death in some physicians has given them an overwhelming desire to do combat with it. Medical training, in fact, reinforces this attitude. The doctor's role is one of authority and power. He is taught to manipulate life's processes and do what can be done to triumph over death. The physician's challenge and his satisfaction come largely from winning this battle and effecting cures.

IF THE DOCTOR himself has an above average fear of death he may become extremely anxious when confronted with it, such as when he diagnoses a fatal illness in a patient. To cope with his own anxiety the physician may seem excessively hopeful in discussions with the family, thus making their adjustment to the reality more difficult.

Instead the physician's goal should be to assure the family that everything possible is being done for the patient, and at the same time approach the situation in a realistic manner, offering the family an opportunity to prepare for their loss.

Unfortunately, training in psychological aspects of dealing with the dying and their families has been conspicuously absent in the past and only recently has begun to play a part in medical training in some medical schools.

"I must admit," says Dr. Louis R. Zako, a family physician from Michigan, "that when the anxiety, the fear provoked within me as the physician becomes too great, it's very, very comfortable to deal with the dying process on a technical level. Because then there is no real involvement."

Meanwhile, a Duke University inter-yielding to our manipulations." The marantologist would be trained to see his patients die without experiencing feelings of guilt or personal failure.

The new specialty, Poe says, would help people, especially physicians, endure losing. "It should not use silly euphemisms such as rehabilitation and convalescence for its losing patients. It should not send its dear old people to intensive care units to be treated as winners."

Certainly, though, it would be difficult for a physician to specialize only in death and dying. How long could a physician withstand the emotional strain of knowing that each of his patients would die — and soon?

The best answer to the dilemma lies in more education for all physicians. Just as every doctor specializes in health and life he must, in a special sort of way, also specialize in death.

nist, Dr. William Poe, has suggested a new medical specialty, marantology (from the Greek word marantos, meaning "withered" or "faded").

MARANTOLOGISTS would not resort to heroic measures to keep their patients alive. They would care for the old, the incurable, and those who have "committed the sin of remaining alive but not Garcia, a Buffalo Grove resident, serves on the board of the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows and is co-secretary of the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity Governing Board. He has a master's degree in education and administration from Loyola University.

HENRY ROGERS, supervisor of management development, central region, for Continental Can Co. Rogers lives in Arlington Heights and has a master's degree in industrial relations from Cornell University. He has served on the St. Viator Board for three years and is chairman of the board's community resources committee. He was elected for a one-year term.

JACK WALSH, village president of Arlington Heights from 1969 to 1972. He served during 1972 as assistant director of the Department of Local Government Affairs for the state and is currently running unopposed for village president of Arlington Heights. He has a degree in commerce from the University of Notre Dame, is associated with Northwest Firestone Inc. and is a member of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

The newly elected members will officially join the advisory board in May. Those currently serving on the board are James Killian of Palatine, president; Martin Maney of Palatine, secretary; John Kelley and John Rech, both of Hoffman Estates; Richard Dowdle, Elk Grove Village; William O'Keefe and Mrs. Joan Wade, both of Mount Prospect; Mrs. Marie Breen and James Martin, both of Palatine, and Ken Cook, Russell Fitton and John Eichman, all from Arlington Heights.

Advisory board members have been active in St. Viator's family contact program. Board members and parish leaders throughout the Northwest suburbs have contacted families of potential students to give information and answer questions about the school and its programs. Members of the board also advise school officials on budgetary, community relations and other matters relating to the school.

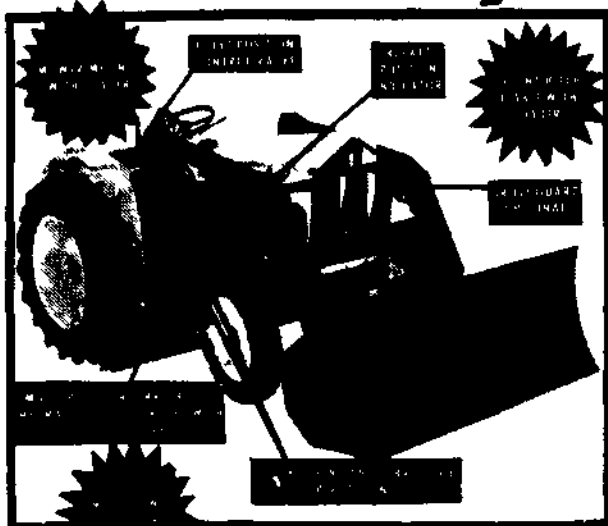

St. Viator, a Catholic high school for boys, serves 1,100 students living in 21 communities throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Match point experts aren't always good rubber bridge players. One reason they aren't is that they tend to use match point doubles at rubber bridge.

East's double of three spades is a typical match point double. A rubber bridge player would just pass three spades and hope to beat the contract. A double could cost him game and rubber and would only give him an extra 100 points above the line if it worked.

A match point expert with the East hand would reason, "If South does make three spades I will get a bad score. If I beat him one undoubted I will be plus 100, but that won't be much of a score either. Lots of East players will be making three hearts for a score of 140. An unsuccessful double will give me a bottom instead of a bad score, but a successful will give me plus 200 for a top."

So expert East doubles and is lucky. He gets two hearts, a diamond and a club and West takes the setting trick with the king of spades.

Sorry, but that's how tournaments are won.

Shelby Lyman on Chess

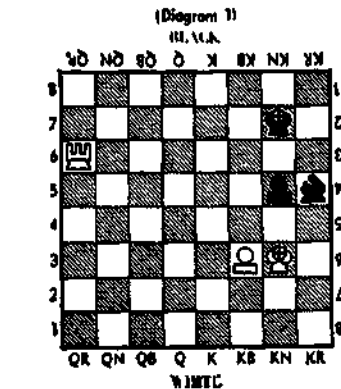

Here's a formula for winning that seems simple, but it works

The simplistic but most often correct formula for winning chess is as follows: 1. Win material. 2. Trade pieces. 3. Queen a pawn.

One set of practical problems that haunt all would-be victors pertains to those situations where a material advantage does not simply win. Recently I was shown two adjourned games from the Marshall Chess Club Championship in New York by Sal Matera, a strong USCF master. In both games he had a material advantage; in both of them he had enormous practical difficulties in finding a winning method. In one game he had no more than a draw.

Diagram 1

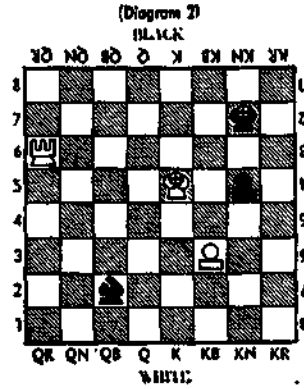

In diagram one, we see the type of position that seemed the inevitable result of that adjourned position. Here, although Matera (white) is an exchange ahead (rook for a bishop) he apparently can make no progress. His only winning try is to advance his king and win black's pawn. It apparently is impossible for him to do this without losing his own pawn to KB3, which can always be kept under attack by black's bishop. With both pawns gone the position is a well-known draw. (Try playing that end game, rook and king versus rook and bishop, and satisfy yourself that it is a draw.)

Diagram 2

Black even has a second way of drawing. He can use his pawn and bishop in a complementary manner so as to control adjacent white and black squares and keep the white king from penetrating.

The frustration of pressing for the win in this game against the skilled defense of the black player, chess master Anthony Deutsch, led Matera to remark that he was convinced that extra material was no advantage except when his opponent had it. Then he was sure to lose. Often one has the advantage when behind in material. That fact is the rationale of all correct sacrifices on the chessboard.

In diagram three, we see a position that white wins quickly by sacrificing the exchange. The game continued:

How the chessmen move

THE ROOK (occasionally called the castle) moves and captures horizontally and vertically, along the ranks and files.

THE BISHOP moves and captures diagonally.

THE QUEEN, the most powerful piece on the board, moves and captures diagonally, horizontally and vertically, along the ranks and files.

THE KNIGHT moves and captures in the form of a capital L — two spaces in either a horizontal or vertical direction and one space to the right or left. It is the only piece permitted to jump over other men.

THE PAWN moves only forward one space, with the exception of its first move when it has the option of moving two spaces forward. It captures one square diagonally forward.

THE KING moves and captures one square at a time in any direction.

Sacred Heart High School slates new placement tests

A makeup placement test for freshmen at Sacred Heart of Mary High School will be held at 8:30 a.m. March 24 at the school, 2800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

In January, 182 prospective students took the placement test for enrollment at the Catholic girls' school. School officials expect late registrants to bring the total freshmen enrollment for the 1973-74 school year up to approximately 200, almost doubling this year's class of 106 students.

Prospective students will be asked to return to the school later in spring to receive their test scores and to officially register for the coming school term. Curriculum, tuition and other school matters will be explained at this time.

This year Sacred Heart's tuition was $550 and a special family plan reduced the rate for the second daughter to $300. There was no charge for additional daughters.

Students living more than 1½ miles from the school and within High School Dist. 214 are provided with free bus service to Sacred Heart. Students living within High School Dist. 211 may ride to a district school free, but they must pay $36 each semester for transportation from the drop off point to Sacred Heart.

Guardsmen to march

The Guardsmen Drum & Bugle Corps will perform tomorrow in the Chicago St. Patrick's day parade. They also are scheduled to appear at the Scout-O-Rama at Arlington Park March 31. For more information concerning the corps appearances, phone 827-1409.

Learning disability group meet for moms

The mothers discussion group on learning disabilities will meet Monday at 9:30 a.m. at Trinity Methodist Church, 605 E. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect.

Two swimming instructors for the Des Plaines YMCA will discuss the value of swimming and exercise programs for handicapped children. The mothers' group is a branch of the Council on Learning Disabilities (COULD). More information is available by calling 439-3875.

Budget message lacks candor

In his first mandatory action as the chief executive of Illinois, Gov. Daniel Walker last week presented a budget proposal to the people and the Illinois General Assembly with something less than the candor he advocated during his campaign.

Because of questions left unanswered by the governor's message to legislators, it is too early to forecast the net effect of his budget.

There were laudable aspects to the governor's message, including proposals for an increase of state aid to public schools, redirection of highway funds to modernizing existing roads and elimination of unnecessary bureaucratic posts, among others. Certainly welcome was his vow that there would be no but failed to point out that the appropriations he had omitted were for funds which would not have been spent in the coming year anyway.

Beyond that, when Walker finally made himself available for questioning hours after delivering his budget message, he declined to specify for newsmen what programs he anticipated cutting in order to avoid the need for the $617 million.

After weeks of what was portrayed by the governor's staff as intensive budget study, he told newsmen that he either could not remember where the specific cuts would be made, or that decisions on specific programs had not been reached.

How then can he know to what degree appropriations are to be cut? And if the governor doesn't know, who does?

Republican Senate President William C. Harris characterized the governor's explanation of his budget as "bookkeeping gimmickry," and we find we must agree with that assessment.

Walker belatedly admitted that the savings which he anticipates will be realized in future years. If he is able to achieve that, the savings will still be welcome.

In the meantime, he apparently took advantage of free television time in an attempt to convince the public that he has already saved them $617 million.

We believe the people who elected Daniel Walker governor of Illinois did so because they took his promise of an honest and open administration at face value. We further believe that they will become quickly disenchanted with him if they conclude that his public pronouncements are worth something less than that.

Shopper's optimist

Hooray for Earl Butz! In a few short months of deft work, Butz, the nation's secretary of agriculture, has managed to enshrine himself as the country's number one optimist.

Not only has Butz managed to come forth month after month and declared that food prices are calming down, but he has said those words in the face of charts and graphs from economic analysts which show just the opposite is taking place.

Just last week, Butz told a television interviewer that food prices would be a "bit higher" in 1973.

In fact, food prices have been spiraling upward for some time, seemingly unchecked by any governmental devices to hold the line. In the last few months of 1972, food prices were increasing dramatically. So much so that in December Labor Department statistics showed food prices had made the sharpest jump in a quarter century.

According to the Consumer Price

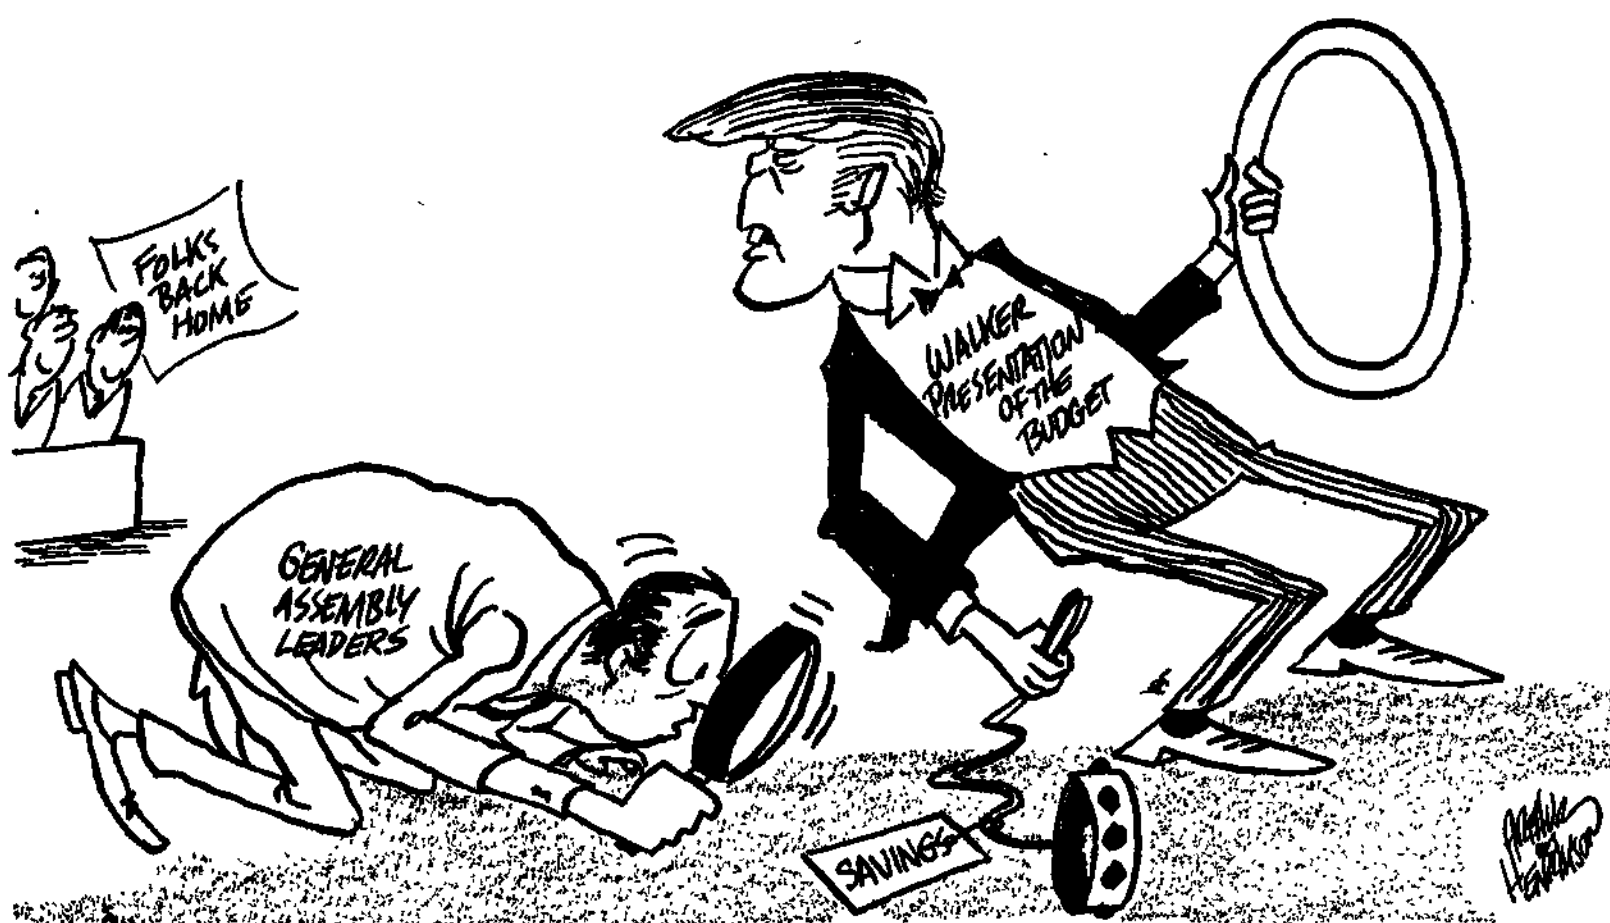

Index report for January, this was what the average food buyer was facing in the last few months: The index of food purchased in grocery stores increased .5 per cent in November, although it usually shows a sharp decline in that month. Fresh vegetable prices rose even more sharply than usual. Beef prices increased instead of declining substantially as they usually do.

Despite these reports, Earl Butz says each month things are brighter up ahead. It is a remarkable performance, matched only in recent years by the predictions of an early end to the Viet Nam War — made in 1965.

So hooray for Earl Butz! Gloom and despair do not abide in him. Prognostications of inflation find no solace with him. The plight of the average food shopper is not in his landscape.

Sec. Butz is not like the rest of us. He is an optimist.

You folks see my invisible dog, don't you?

County line

'County board plan won't work'

by ROGER CAPELLINI
Metropolitan Editor

Every once in awhile someone comes up with one of those "wouldn't-it-be-great-if" ideas that sound good but won't work.

The most recent of those to come along in Cook County is the proposal made by State Sen. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, to change the way commissioners are elected to the county board.

Jaffe made the suggestion as a proposed constitutional amendment because he doesn't like the current system used for picking the 15 county board members.

Briefly, what we have now is 10 members elected "at large" from the City of Chicago and five members elected "at large" from the entire suburban area. That split is the result of the approximate 2 to 1 population ratio reflected in the 1966 census. Today, the ratio is more like 3 to 2 and the board is expected soon to realign the city-suburban board membership to nine from the city and six from the suburbs.

As a result of this at-large system, many large segments of the county — both in the city and suburbs — are without representation.

Sure, the suburban commissioners are supposed to be representing all the people in the suburbs and the same for the Chicago commissioners, but where do you suppose their interest is centered? Besides, how can a commissioner who lives at one end of the county remain thoroughly informed on the desires of residents at the other end of the county. And are those interests always the same?

A second result of the current system is that Chicagoans, in effect, have two votes to only one for a suburban resident.

A voter from Chicago's northwest side, for example, gets to vote for 10 commissioners while a voter in the Northwest suburbs only gets to vote for five. The 10-5 board split means a Chicago voter gets twice as much to say about what happens in the suburbs as the suburban voter gets.

So, Jaffe says, the county should be divided into 15 districts, with one member of the board elected from each district.

That way, representation would be evenly distributed and each voter would have an equal voice.

Sounds good, but it will never work — mainly because both the regular Democrats and the regular Republicans in the county will oppose it.

The Republicans, eyeing the pending 9 to 6 realignment, say they don't like the idea because the county board itself would draw up the district map. With a 2 to 1 majority on the board, Republicans accurately note, the Democrats would come up with a map so gerrymandered that the Chicago-suburban split may turn out to be something like 11 to 4.

That's a good enough reason for opposing the Jaffe amendment, but there may be other factors in that opposition — factors which are being left unsaid.

And they tie in closely with the expected Democratic opposition.

Politics play a big part in this sort of thing. Near and dear to the heart of every politician is the obsession with keeping his job.

While the Democrats in control know they can work out a plan so that 11 commissioners could come out of Chicago, they also know they could lose two or three of those seats to maverick Democrats. And if a Democrat can't be controlled, he may as well be a Republican, in the minds of many party regulars.

At the same time, Republican members on the board see cloudy images of other Republicans challenging them for their seats in a primary election.

Party loyalty is great, but there's no one as important as "Ol' Number One."

If opposition from both parties is not enough to kill Jaffe's good idea, the very mechanics of amending the constitution will render the final blow.

First, Jaffe's plan would have to get a two-thirds vote of both the Senate and House. Then it would go before the voters of the entire state in a referendum. There it would need a two-thirds majority of those voting in the general election.

Voters downstate look at everything for Cook County with a suspicious eye and a "What-do-I-care?" attitude. Combine that with strong, two-party opposition in Cook County and it's over.

Jaffe's idea is a good one for the voters, but not for the "ins" among the suburban Republicans and the Chicago Democrats.

And they're the ones who count.

Rep. Aaron Jaffe

Fence post letters to the editor

Apartment comments hit

I am writing in response to the article in the Mount Prospect Herald March 7 concerning the mayoral debate.

I am a resident of Huntington Commons and I really can't believe that anyone as short-sighted as Mr. Minton could even be considered for such an important position as mayor of Mount Prospect.

Until I read this article I was unaware of Cabrini-Green and the implications surrounding it. But to use that as a correlation with Huntington Commons is asinine to say the least.

What better way for a city to grow is the fact that to have all types of people who can live happily as neighbors — as is the fact here. I don't want to admit to being a gossip, but I am, and even though things can be changed by the grapevine, anything of major importance, such as an increase or even an instance of crime of any kind, would find its way into my conversation at one time or another. I have heard none, except for kids making a few messes.

Trying to suggest to Mr. Minton that he should take a second look at the world around him would most likely be like talking to a brick wall, but for anyone who is interested, there is not an ounce of truth in anything he said concerning Huntington Commons.

I am white, a white Anglo-Saxon Protestant to be specific, and I have black neighbors. Yes, neighbors, and I consider them that in every sense of that word.

In a community where a black person is a rarity, I can understand that people would be suspicious, and when these people have grown up in an all white environment the prospect of having blacks living near could be frightening, but stating definite facts about black people without knowing what you're talking about indicates to me a rather immature personality who should obviously not be allowed to infiltrate into such a high level as the mayor's office.

For those "well-wishers" who want to "get to know" and "understand" blacks, I'd like to say one thing. How would you feel if a group of people felt it were necessary to examine and study you before they decided whether or not you were acceptable to them?

The caliber of the blacks living here is quite high, higher than a lot of whites. It really is incredible to me that there should be such a stink made over the color of a person's skin, trite as that may sound.

One of the main things that pleases me about the racially mixed situation here is the fact that my two children will be exposed to them. Our children don't see a color when they look at other children, they see a potential friend. When I was little, my family had two black women working for them. One of them is gone now and her death was as much a loss to us as a member of our family, not because she couldn't work anymore, she had retired some years before, but because she was my friend and she loved me and I her. The other woman is still living and there isn't any major family event that she does not attend, because she's a member of the family to us.

My family never drilled prejudice into my head, they just didn't say anything because there was nothing to say. We feel that our children have the right to have their own minds and we have no intention of brainwashing them one way or another. If children grow up in a fly-white atmosphere where anything black is considered dirty or sub-standard, they are going to be prejudiced adults.

I am not a political person in that I don't get heatedly involved in all issues and I will admit that I don't know beans about the government in Mount Prospect. We moved here from Kansas City and frankly hadn't even considered voting for a mayor, but I certainly know who I'm not going to vote for.

I feel that, at 26, I have a certain amount of maturity. I have a long way to go, granted, but this man, Mr. Minton, sounds like somebody who wants to be on the bandwagon and sound off a lot about things he is in no way qualified to talk about. I just hope that the few people who are irate about the project don't vote for this jerk just because they have one issue on which they agree. The whole town of Mount Prospect does not revolve around Huntington Commons and the black people who live there.

This letter has been solicited by no one. I am writing it because I feel very deeply about the things I have written here. We are all born the same way and we all die the same way. Being white doesn't buy anyone anything that is truly of any importance, and being black shouldn't mean that you couldn't buy the ticket even if you had the money.

Thank you for taking the time to read this. I certainly do hope that you will allow people to read about what it's like on the "inside."

I am certainly not the only white person here who feels the same way.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Michael Minton is running against incumbent Robert Teichert for mayor of Mount Prospect. The third candidate for the position is Albert Motsch.

Bible Church applauded

I notice you are running a series of articles on religion in the suburbs. I have been following them with interest. I notice that Bible churches are mentioned, but no particular church is pointed out though other churches are brought up by name and denomination including details about the church or pastor.

If you would like to be wholly informative in your series, I would like to suggest that your reporter contact Des Plaines Bible Church. You won't find a more active, people-oriented church, especially youth, in our area.

I'll wager your reporter hasn't seen so large a group of young people gathering four times weekly for services, Bible studies and family living classes.

I overheard one such young person say to a guest of mine, "This is such a happy place." That is as it should be, don't you think?

EDITORIAL: Does "Zoom" have a future under the Nixon administration?

Live in sin and save on your taxes

by DON PHILLIPS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to crack open the highway trust fund — financed by taxes on auto gasoline — for mass transit and to make it illegal for President Nixon to withhold highway construction money.

The Senate action came during a day of transportation debate Wednesday and left only one major decision before the three-year, $18.2 billion federal aid highway act is approved: whether to remove restrictions on the weight and size of trucks using interstate highways.

Sen. Clifford P. Hansen, R-Wyo., has proposed that federal limits of 73,000 pounds for truck weight be eliminated in favor of allowing states to set their own standards. The federal standards would also limit truck width to 86 inches and set an 18,000 pound limit on single axle weight and 32,000 pounds on tandem axles.

When the 41,000-mile interstate highway system was authorized in 1956, the federal limits on trucks were placed on all but eight states which already had higher standards. The states with the higher limits were allowed to keep them, but other states were held to the federal maximums.

Action on the over-all bill was expected to be completed today and sent to the House where hearings are to begin next week.

The 49-44 vote to allow a portion of the 4-cent-per-gallon federal tax on auto gasoline to be used for subways, buses or rail commuter trains came on an administration-backed amendment proposed by Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn. It would allow states and cities to decide whether to use $850 million per year in federal highway money for mass transit.

The amendment was approved by a narrow five-vote margin compared with a 49-26 victory for a similar amendment last year.

ANOTHER AMENDMENT. Proposed by Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., would make it illegal for the President to continue impoundment of federal highway construction funds. It was approved 64-21.

The Bellmon amendment represented another challenge from Congress to Nixon over withholding of funds that Congress has appropriated for various programs. A number of other programs killed or curtailed by Nixon are in the process of being revived by the lawmakers.

The trust fund amendment was strongly opposed by the highway lobby, a group of truckers, roadbuilders and other highway-related businesses.

by CARLTON SMITH

It's evidently government policy to subsidize living in sin — through tax advantages to unmarried couples — and the social implications worry at least one economist, Dr. Charles Haworth of Florida State University.

And the tax incentives are even stronger for working couples with small children to get a divorce. Dr. Haworth cites an example where divorce would be worth a tax saving of $2,854 a year. Or, as he prefers to call it, a "marriage penalty." That worries him, too.

As he writes in the current issue of "The Tax Adviser," a publication of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants:

"The 'marriage penalty' is a flagrant disregard for the role of the family in society. If couples who are married in fact, but not at law, get preferential tax treatment, the discontent with our tax laws is bound to increase."

HERE'S HOW you can benefit, through tax savings, by being "married in fact, but not at law" — known in some places as living in sin. (Use of the standard deduction is assumed in all illustrations.)

IN THE CASE of a couple earning $11,000 a year each, and having no children, filing a joint return would result in paying a tax of $3,960. The same two people unmarried, each filing as a single person would pay total taxes of $3,206.

The "marriage penalty" gets larger at higher income levels. If each earned $15,000 a year, filing as two single individuals would result in a tax saving of $1,154. At the $18,000 earnings level, it increases to $1,670.

Then, as Dr. Haworth points out, the regulations concerning the child care deduction "can dramatically increase the marriage penalty for many working couples with small children."

FOR EXAMPLE: Both John and Mary work, each earning $11,000 a year. They have three children under 15. With one in nursery school and two even younger, a fulltime housekeeper is necessary. For such expenses, a working couple may deduct up to $400 a month, or $4,800 a year, if deductions are itemized.

After family income passes $18,000 a year, however, that deduction is reduced 50 cents for each dollar of income. At a combined income of $22,000, John and Mary exceed the full-deduction figure by $4,000, so their allowable deduction is cut by $2,000 a year.

FOR MAXIMUM tax savings, they get a divorce. Mary takes custody of the three children, and files as "head of household." They aren't mad at each other, remember — just at the tax collector. They still live together.

Assuming the regular itemizable family deductions are the same as the standard deduction of $2,000, this arrangement lets Mary take that $2,000 of itemized deductions, while John, filing as a single person, gets the $2,000 standard. The tax saving is $790.

At the $15,000 earnings level, the tax saving or "marriage penalty" increases to $2,150. The big jump is because at family income of $27,600 or more, the child care deduction is completely wiped out.

But if Mary is legally single, and files as head of household, she can take the full $4,800 deduction until her own earnings pass $18,000. So in this case the wages of sin — or of living in it — is $2,854 a year.

And Dr. Haworth thinks that's sinful. "The tax penalties on marriage should be eliminated from the tax laws, soon," he says. "The costs of not changing will be high."

U. S. government biggest industry: bank report

Government is the nation's largest industry, says the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago in its monthly review.

Government generates more income and employs more people than all durable goods industries combined. Nearly one out of every five workers draws a government paycheck. To better understand how government achieved this preeminence in the economy, the Chicago bank uses the National Income and Product Accounts, which begin in 1929, to trace the growing demands governments have placed on the economy between 1929 and 1972.

The experience of the Depression dramatically changed the people's expectations concerning the role of government spending in the economy, according to the bank. At first reports these expectations were focused on the federal government, but after World War II this change in outlook extended to state and local governments as well, it says.

According to the bank, over the period 1929-72, the total economy grew 11 times, and state and local purchases of goods and services grew over 20 times. Federal government purchases were 81 times larger in 1972 than in 1929.

TRANSLATING these developments into shares of gross national product, the bank states that in 1972 federal purchases were almost eight times as large, and state and local purchases about twice as large as in 1929. If the relationships of 1929 had been preserved in 1972, says the bank, state and local purchases would have been about $80 billion instead of the $140 billion actually spent, and federal purchases would have been a little under $15 billion, instead of $106 billion.

The article also discusses how government purchases of goods and services now command more than one-fifth of gross national product; how the manpower needs of government take 18 per cent of the total labor force; how total government expenditures are one-third the size of GNP; how personal transfer payments — the largest component of the nonpurchase expenditures of all governments — showed the largest year-to-year increase since World War II in 1972; how federal grants-in-aid to state and local governments exceeded 15 per cent of federal spending in 1972, a post-Depression high.

Company car costs still 10c per mile

Has the cost of operating a car been driven up by inflation? Many businesses apparently don't think so.

Fifty-six per cent of the companies responding to a Dartnell Institute of Business Research survey of business car allowances report they still make reimbursements at the rate of 10 cents a mile for cars owned and operated by employees on occasional company business. The figure was established in a 1971 Dartnell survey.

At the same time, the surveyed companies report the average total running expenses for employee cars in their fleet is 11.3 cents per mile for executive cars and 9.6 cents per mile for salesmen's cars. Basic running expense (gas, oil and maintenance only) averaged 4.4 cents per mile.

Those finance charges are tax deductible

Monthly finance charges on statements furnished users of credit cards issued by oil companies for the purchase of gasoline, oil and other car products are deductible as interest for federal income tax purposes, notes Commerce Clearing House.

The new Internal Revenue Service ruling follows a previous finding that finance charges on retail store revolving charge accounts and bank credit card plans are also deductible as interest.

In the case which prompted the new ruling, the taxpayer used a credit card, issued by an oil company, to buy gas, oil, special products and services.

The credit card agreement provides for the payment by the card holder of a "finance charge" that is expressed as an annual percentage rate on the holder's billing statement.

Do-it-yourself

Do something about floors that squeak

Floors that squeak and stairs that creak make any house sound haunted. The strange sounds are not limited to old homes. They happen in new ones as well.

With age, nails in floors will loosen. In newer homes the sounds indicate not enough nails were used or that floor boards are starting to shrink or warp.

Repairs are simple enough so that you don't have to put up with the noise.

If you can see the floor from underneath, as in the basement, the problem is especially easy to solve. First thing to do is locate the noisy floor boards. While someone walks slowly across the floor above, you watch and listen below. Mark the underside of the floor wherever there is a noise.

DRIVE A wooden wedge between the floor boards and the joists at every point you have marked. The joists are the parallel beams that support the floor. Use shingles to make wedges.

If the wedges don't cure the trouble you will have to supply additional supports under the floor. Use lengths of 2x4's or 2x6's, cut long enough to fit snugly between the joists. The fit should be so tight that you have to drive them in place with a hammer.

Toenail the brace to the joists. This is done by driving the nails at an angle. Finish the job by driving some nails into the braces from above.

If the problem is on an upper floor or if the basement ceiling is finished, this method will not work. You will have to apply the cure from above.

Locate the joists by pounding the floor with your fist. The hollow sound will turn solid when you reach a joist. If the sound doesn't help, examine the floor boards near the wall. You may be able to spot the marks where nails were driven in.

USE THREE-INCH finishing nails. Drive them at an angle through the floor and into the joist. Do this wherever you have found a squeak. Set the nails with a nail set and fill the holes with wood filler and sand them.

When a stair squeaks, the tread (the part you step on) is loose. Determine if the stairs are nailed to the risers (the vertical support board) or if they were grooved and fitted.

If nailed, then use more nails or use wood screws. Drive the nail through the tread into the riser. If you nail at an angle it will increase the holding power. Use finishing nails and set them below the surface. If you use screws, countersink the holes and fill them.

If a groove arrangement was used, then you will have to wedge these joints. Remove the small molding that covers the joint. Drive in wedges and cut off the ends of the wedges. Replace the molding.

If the underside of the stairs is open you can add reinforcement from below. Place blocks in the joints and hold them in place with screws and glue.

If you find blocks there already, tighten the screws.

Harper's music program closes the cultural gap

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Area residents should be as interested in the growth of Harper College's music program as the full-time music student. It's to their cultural advantage.

And if Dr. George Makas has his way, even the people who never do participate will leastways be aware of what they are missing.

"It's still a young community," said the department head of the music program. "People around here are not accustomed yet to the cultural patterns and opportunities of this area."

"Our role," he continued, referring to the music staff at Harper, "is to make these available for people to explore."

NO ONE CAN DISCOUNT the successful expansion of the music department whose enrollment has increased five and a half times since the college first opened in 1967. Currently there are some 900 students in the music program, 130 of them full-time.

In proportion the staff has grown from one, Dr. Makas, to four full-time instructors. "And we are making every effort to hire another faculty member for fall," added the music professor.

Having stabilized a strong pre-professional program, cited recently in an independent review of the program as offering "musical preparation comparable with or superior to that available in any four-year institution in the state," Dr. Makas is now striving to develop a program of musical enrichment for the general student and the suburban dweller.

His ideas are innovative and aggressive. His deterrent, however, is apathy.

"MUSIC IS EXPENSIVE in the United States. It's one reason for its not being supported," continued Dr. Makas, who during his career has taught at every level, second grade through graduate school.

"In Europe, for instance, the arts are subsidized. People seem to enjoy hearing live music. Our different lifestyle has an effect. We have more phonographs, tape recorders and TVs. We go to the movies much more often. Our appetite for music is stilted and subordinate to other activities . . . we have the car radio on while driving . . . background music is played at the dentist. How many people actually sit back and listen to the music as one would be if attending a concert?"

One successful endeavor that is currently bridging the musical interests of both the college and the community is the Harper College Community Orchestra. Membership is open to area musicians who enjoy playing but have few outlets to do so. Concerts are performed about six times a year and are open to the public free of charge.

A CONCERT this coming Monday is a joint endeavor of the Harper Orchestra, the Northwest Youth Symphony and the District 211 Orchestra.

"Eighty string players ranging in age from 12 years to you name it will be featured," said Makas, who encourages junior high and high school students who don't have string programs at their own schools to join the Harper College Community Orchestra.

Yet Dr. Makas is also keenly aware of other musically oriented groups in the northwest suburbs who "need support and a place to meet," he said. The Northwest Youth Symphony, for instance, practices at Harper College every Saturday. Interaction and cooperation between the various organizations is most important, Dr. Makas feels.

INTO ITS FOURTH year and deemed quite successful are group piano lessons offered through the college.

"One can learn to play the piano for only $24 a semester," said Dr. Makas, adding that the course includes 48 hours of instruction.

It is not even necessary to own a piano. Facilities are available in the learning resources building for practice time. Group lessons are also offered in guitar and organ.

An idea Dr. Makas would particularly like to see explored by the music department would be the block sale of tickets for a series of programs to include opera, ballet and concerts.

A lecture in advance of each program would be given at Harper by a member of the music faculty to help the listener understand and appreciate the individual arts.

"OF COURSE this program is for people who are interested in listening," he said. "Some aren't because they really don't know how to participate. I will not dogmatize. I will not tell anyone what to listen to . . . only attempt to instill the reliable means for one to establish his own value system, whether it be for rock, classical, jazz or whatever. A real connoisseur of music likes all of them and is able to put each in its proper perspective."

Dr. Makas said the college is also working to provide in the near future short courses in music through the adult education division, and as general electives for students majoring in other fields. One specific example would be a course in urban and popular music.

What will it take to turn suggestions into working programs? "First there has to be a market," said Dr. Makas. "The community has to show interest. The big thing, of course, is funding. This is the first year Harper is faced with a serious deficit for educational funding and that means less money for new programs."

UNTIL DR. MAKAS is given the go-ahead to actually institute many of his new ideas, he will continue to coordinate and promote the already existing choral groups, bands and orchestras in the area and strengthen the link between college and community cultural enrichment.

Monday night Dr. Makas will direct the combined groups, Harper College Community Orchestra, the Northwest Youth Symphony and District 211 Orchestra, in "The Brandenburg Concerto No. 3," made famous by Walter Carlos of Switched-on-Bach fame.

The District 211 Orchestra will perform the "Schubert Unfinished Symphony, 1st movement." The director is Roy Houck of the District 211 faculty.

"Simple Symphony" by Britten is the selection for the Northwest Youth Symphony. James A. Middleton of District 59 directs that group.

The Harper Community Orchestra will close the program with "The Symphony in D Minor" by Cesar Franck.

Dr. George Makas provides a creative outlet for area musicians.

Marian Brenton gains musical experience.

For an antique collector, an occasional visit to the Merchandise Mart is a very good idea. Especially if one is a collector of glass, china or Orientalia.

To keep ahead of the reproductions, which is no easy task, a tour of the 15th floor of the mart is a revelation. I have no quarrel with reproductions, if they are honestly sold and marked permanently in such a way that they cannot be confused with granddaddy pieces, but unfortunately, that is not always the case.

On our last investigation, we found Fry Glass (milky-white opalescent semi-opaque, with cobalt blue spirals of applied glass). They are very similar to the old Fry opalescent, near enough to fool someone who is not familiar with the old. The little sign proudly proclaims "Fry Glass," but it is all Italian reproduction.

SOME OF THE Italian glasses at the wholesaler in question are beautiful. There are Burmese pieces to rival the old, quilted satin glass in pink, blue and MOP. (MOP is a good term to know; means "mother of pearl.") There are also paperweights, lamps and vases in Millifiori, which is a pattern of little intricate cut flowers, similar to the hard Christmas candies with floral centers. The name "Millifiori" means "thousand flowers" in Italian. We saw some vases and lamps with iridescence to rival genuine Tiffany. It wouldn't take much effort for some unscrupulous person to etch the Tiffany name on them and sell $50 vases for $500.

Closer to home, the Imperial and Fenton glass companies, et al, make old pressed glass patterns and Carnival reproductions which are for sale to dealers at the Mart. These are clearly marked, the Imperial with "IG" intertwined, and the Fenton written in script. Imperial is introducing two new carnival shades, white and a sort of amber-blue with exceptional iridescence. Fenton makes a frosted custard glass which looks good enough to taste.

OTHER REPRODUCTIONS to watch for are cut glass from Czechoslovakia and East Germany, and the red and blue Bohemian glass. I wouldn't buy a piece of Bohemian glass today for an old price unless I knew it had been my grandmother's wedding gift, and that isn't very likely, since she was married in a one-room log cabin by a traveling preacher. Honestly!

In the Oriental category, it appears that all those little Netsukes, (ivory figures) you see on the shelves are all new relations, as well as the Inari, Satsuma and Rose Medallion chinas. Watch all of these if you are a beginning collector. An advanced collector would probably recognize the new ones, for they are flashier and the work is not so detailed as the old.

It is worth the trip to the Mart to see the new antiques which are being sold to stores and to antique dealers. One must have an association with a retail shop to look around the Mart, with varying degrees of permissiveness from the individual wholesalers. Some doors are locked, but a proven retail establishment can get in. Others seem to let people wander at will. One can easily make a day of it, with five acres of shops to visit.

WE WERE LUCKY enough to be invited by friends at an industrial design shop to have luncheon at the "M&M" Club on the second floor. The name of the bar within the M&M is "Caveat Emptor" — "let the buyer beware." That's good advice for the collector, too.

If you have questions, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Padlock Publications, Suburban Living, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006.

The Book Stall

by United Press International
"A MAIGRET TRIO."
by GEORGES SIMENON
Harcourt Brace Jovanovich,
$6.95

It's taken a decade for these three adventures of fiction's Chief Inspector Jules Maigret of the Paris Judicial Police to reach America from France. Treasure them. Not only are they among the best of the three score Maigret novels, but they are among the last.

Simenon recently announced that after 214 novels he would write no more. The author is 70 and the news that Maigret has no future is as sudden a blow to those who judge the thriller as literature as was the end of Sam Spade, Philip Marlowe and Sherlock Holmes.

Like the other Maigret adventures — hailed by such as Andre Gide and Graham Greene as being among the best fiction of our time — this trio has a certain amount of whodunit. Who killed Maigret's pig of a school friend in "Maigret's Failure"? Who did in the amorous count in "Maigret in Society"? Who, in the final of the trio, shredded the burglar's face in "Maigret and the Lazy Burglar"? But the attraction of Simenon lies in the surgical cleanliness with which he examines what makes up the common and uncommon folk of the stories. You see the anatomy of those possessed by greed, jealousy and the other bricks and mortar of murder. And, perhaps best of all, you get a picture of Paris equalled by no travel book, perhaps by no other writer of our time.

Like the best of all the Maigret books, this trio of whodunits is as powerful as a Chateau Lafite-Rothschild 1943. Maigret, could be as close as the thriller has come to literature since the time of Edgar Allen Poe.

"THE WINTER WAR."
by ELOISE ENGLE and LAURI PAANANEN
Scribner's, $7.95

An account of the Russo-Finnish war of 1939-40, in which the Soviet Union lost almost a million soldiers against the weatherwise, brave but outnumbered Finns, even while winning. This history is derived from mainly Finnish sources and is good beginner's history — not for the buff.

"THE COLUMBUS TREE,"
by PETER S. FEIBLEMAN
Atheneum, $9.95

An interesting bunch of misfits populates this engrossing novel set in 1967 in southern Spain, where an American expatriate supports herself and her son by staging ostensibly private parties in resort hotels with celebrated or socialite guests. There's a love story, too.

"FOR WANT OF A NAIL,"
by ROBERT SOBEL
Macmillan, $12.95

Unscientific fiction about what would have happened ever since if the Americans had lost their War of Independence against Britain. At book's end, in 1971, the United States of Mexico and the British Confederation of North America are about to do another civil war. Real history is better.

"THE GENERAL DANCED AT DAWN," by GEORGE MACDONALD FRASER
Knopf, $5.95

The author who took cowardly nasty Flesham out of Tom Brown's School-days to show you how he grew up now deals with Highland regimental hijinks at the close of World War II. Fraser is a fine chronicler for as merry a bunch of eccentrics and esoterics as you'd never want to meet in real life.

"NAZI VICTORY: CRETE 1941," by DAVID THOMAS
Stein and Day, $5.95

Thomas details authoritatively the Nazi victory that was so much more bitter an Allied defeat than most Americans realized and also was perhaps the first victory in history won entirely by air power.

'Pop' concert March 25

A 'Pop' concert will be presented by Northwest Choral Society on Sunday, March 25, at 3:30 p.m. at Christ Church, Corn and Henry Streets, Des Plaines.

The chorus, under the direction of James C. Thander Jr., will sing a medley of Burt Bacharach's most famous songs, selections from the musical 'Godspell,' a series of Negro spirituals, and several short lively numbers.

Soloists for the production are Carmen Westmoreland, Beverly Gale, Barbara Hyland, Joan Volberding and Dave Stueckemann. All soloists have done previous solo work in various choral and church groups.

Northwest Choral Society recently elected Dave Stueckemann, president; Chris Bobka, vice president; Millcent Wineberg, recording secretary; and Ari Lewis, treasurer. Also elected was Barbara Hyland, member-at-large.

Election

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Rhonda Fleming was elected secretary of the board of directors of United Cerebral Palsy Association of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Willard Skolen will be hostess, assisted by Mrs. E. W. Passarelli, Mrs. Willis Jensen and Mrs. Russell Pusey. Those planning to attend should make reservations with Mrs. Skolen 358-2467.

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

He sings of "Sick Things" and loving the dead. Who else but Alice Cooper, back with "Billion Dollar Babies" (Warner Bros. BS-2685).

As usual, the lyrics border on poor taste and the obscene, but it is all done so outrageously that it will make few people get up-tight. The perfect example is the last three songs on side two. Start with the malevolent "Sick Things," a foreboding batch of screams and plodding percussion. Segue to the sweet, piano-filled "Mary-Ann," which ends "Mary-Ann, I thought you were my man." Then end with perhaps the first rock song about necrophilia, "I Love the Dead," which goes: "While friends and lovers mourn your silly grave, I have other uses for you, darling."

There's not as much straight hard rock in this Cooper album and it takes a while (about three times through) to get used to.

THE BEST cuts are the closest to hard rock, namely "Elected" and "Billion Dollar Babies." The first, which sounds a lot like the Who in sports, has been a hit for this macabre act. The second is a gem mainly because of the dual singing lead which alternates and overlaps. If the second voice sounds familiar, it's because it belongs to Donovan Leitch, who is ending a lengthy absence from public performances.

"Unfinished Sweet" is a fantasy much like those in "School's Out," the last album for Cooper. Bad teeth lead to a trip to the dentist. Under gas, Cooper freaks out and imagines he is an international spy. Thus giving the band a chance to rip off part of John Barry's "James Bond Theme."

Cooper is very big into movie score music these days and incorporates it into his songs wherever he can. Perhaps this is natural as his own live act is so theatrical in concept and execution. Again, the album itself is theatrical. It looks like an alligator wallet with an enlarged, phony billion dollar bill inside.

A careful listen with the lyrics in front of you will help bring out what's so good about this album — the humor. Too often the music is unimaginative.

Ike and Tina Turner singing "Born Free?"

Strange as it may seem, that's one of 10 songs in "Let Me Touch Your Mind" (United Artists UAS-5060). This time though a John Barry theme suffers.

But the song is the album's only disappointment. We are given a funkier, bluesier Ike and Tina than we've been getting for several years. Tina does have some weak moments, but for the rest is in fine voice. I don't think I've heard Ike any better.

Other than the title track, the best cuts are "Popcorn" (saturated in funk instead of butter) and "Early One Morning." There is a nice version of Carole King's "Up On the Roof" too.

There have been several live albums released in the last two months. One of the better is "The Isleys Live" (T-Neck TNS-3010-2); a mediocre one is "Around the World With Three Dog Night" (Dunhill DSY-50138).

The Isleys' album captures the essence of the group. A small, cabaret-type setting was wisely picked and the group turned in a solid set. The vocals are better than average and the music is good, especially Ernest Isley's lead guitar. He plays in the Jimi Hendrix (not too unusual as Hendrix reportedly played with the group back in the very early '60s).

The group does two of their own hits, "It's Your Thing" and "Pop That Thang." Stephen Stills' "Love the One You're With," Neil Young's "Ohio," Carole King's "It's Too Late" and Bob Dylan's "Lay Lady Lay." Each song has its own excitement, reflected both in the small audience and the performers' own chatter.

THE FACT that much of the new Three Dog Night album is boring will probably not stop it from becoming their ninth consecutive gold album. But if you have the other eight, you shouldn't bother with this one. Unless, that is, you'd like to hear the little bit of Japanese the group attempts.

Yet even among a mostly punchless performance, there are three songs — "Family Of Man," "Black and White" and "Pieces of April" — that retain their original vitality. Too bad they're sandwiched by a jam, drum solo, organ solo and lackadaisical performance of their other recent hits. (By the way, this album does mostly steer away from the songs included in "Golden Biscuits.")

It's Time to Get Out, Old Man Winter!

GET OUT, OLD MAN WINTER!

It's time to send Old Man Winter on his way. Here's a folk game Indian children in South America play about this time each year. You may enjoy playing it, too.

Players are divided into two teams: Winter and Summer. A big circle is drawn on the floor or ground. Winters stand inside the circle; Summers, outside. All players keep their arms folded across their chests at all times.

Summer players try to knock Winter players out of the circle by pushing with their shoulders or backs. When a Winter's foot touches the ground outside the circle, he becomes a Summer. Then he helps knock out other Winter players. You can vary this game by hopping on one foot as you play.

Damon in electrifying show at Top of the Towers

by GENIE CAMPBELL

ARLINGTON PARK HOTEL made the right move when they booked JIMMY DAMON into their elegant penthouse dining room, the TOP OF THE TOWERS.

Damon, who is backed up by four very able musicians, has a strong vibrant voice that demands attention. To put it simply, he's very nice to listen to.

Numbers like "Rainy Day Feeling," "Natural Man," "I Believe in Music" and "I Feel the Earth Move" are stand-outs in his first show, the hand-clapping, toe tapping kind that make patrons of the restaurant forget about their food for awhile.

His softer numbers too, like "Can't Live Without You," are quite well done by Damon but my suggestion is that he save the more romantic arrangements for the second show. No singer can compete against plate stacking, glass tinkling and general table chitchat unless he takes over completely with more powerful numbers.

Sidebars to the Jimmy Damon show are two long blond-haired female vocalists who stand behind Damon in every number and accompany him in a great number of his songs. PAT KIEFER and PAM CORRIGAN are their names.

Damon will be upstairs through April 21. His show is one of the best to appear at the Top of the Towers in a long time.

Not only will the beer turn green at many local pubs in Palatine for ST. PATRICK'S DAY, but special entertainment has been planned for those who enjoy participating in the old Irish custom. RUNYON'S begins its celebration early. A live band will be playing continuously from 8 o'clock tonight through 4 a.m. Sunday. . . plenty of time to drink a lot of Irish cheer.

Live entertainment will also be featured at HAYMAKER'S PUB at 345 W. Northwest Hwy. A glass of green beer will be served free to every guy and green flowers will be handed out to the women. And everyone can nibble on corned beef, compliments of the house.

DURTY NELLIE'S in downtown Palatine is authentically maintaining the Irish theme with folk singers RICK and DAVE and the SHANNON ROVER BAG.

Louis Jourdan

PIPE BAND. Entertainment will begin Saturday afternoon.

THE CHICAGO MARRIOTT will be celebrating the arrival of spring March 30 with its annual "BOCK BEER HOLIDAY," featuring Meister Brau Bock Beer.

Partygoers will toast with five-cent Meister beer and dance to the sounds of the MELODYA BAVARIAN BAND. Bratwurst, knackwurst and roast beef sandwiches will be available to curb appetites.

LOUIS JOURDAN will make his Midwest acting debut with BARBARA RUSH in Noel Coward's comedy, "PRIVATE LIVES" opening the end of this month, March 29, at ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE.

HUGH O'BRIEN is currently starring at the theater in "THE DESPERATE HOURS."

'Rashomon' auditions Sunday and Monday

Tryouts will be held for Village Theatre's upcoming drama, "Rashomon," Sunday from 2 to 6 p.m. and Monday from 8.30 to 11 p.m. both days at Pioneer Park, Arlington Heights.

To be directed by Tom Ventress, the mood play calls for a cast of six men and three women. Production dates are May 12, 18 and 19 at Hersey High School.

Area residents are invited to participate in tryouts. They may get further information by calling 258-3200.

'Arsenic and Old Lace' next for Theatre Guild

What is considered one of the fastest and weirdest farce-comedies ever written, "Arsenic and Old Lace," is scheduled to open March 30 at the Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Des Plaines Theatre Guild is staging the long-time comedy favorite three weekends through April 14.

In the Guild's production, the sinister Jonathan Brewster, of the three faces and 12 corpses, will be played by George Wood of Mount Prospect.

Phyl MacCowan of Glenview will be seen as Abby Brewster and Jean Kaye of Mount Prospect as her sister, Martha.

Mortimer will be played by Ken L. Johnson of Des Plaines and Teddy by Vince Monteleone of Arlington Heights.

Mike Sims of Wauconda will be seen as the face-lifting Doctor Einstein. Others in the cast include Barbara Curren of Des Plaines and Mortimer's fiancée; Ken MacCowan of Glenview as the "reverend"; John Schile of Wheeling, John Maes of Chicago and Tom Wagner of Elk Grove, as policemen; Marshall Kievit of Des Plaines as Lt. Rooney; and Jim Beddia of Buffalo Grove as victims.

The play is directed by Ed Sauer of Des Plaines, and the complex setting, which portrays one of Brooklyn's old brownstone houses, has been designed by Marshall Kievit, who also designed the set of "The Heiress," DPTG's most recent production.

TV notes

"Pueblo," a drama first presented last year at the Arena Stage in Washington, D. C., which, somehow, did not reach its goal, the Broadway theater, will show up March 29 as a two-hour drama special on ABC. The Stanley R. Greenberg play tells the story of the U. S. Navy Vessel Pueblo, captured by the North Koreans in 1968. Hal Holbrook plays the Pueblo's skipper, Commander Lloyd Mark Bucher.

The Elvis Presley song special taped months ago in Hawaii will be telecast on NBC at 8:30 p.m. April 4. It is a one-man, 90-minute concert.

Ernest Gold, much honored for his background music for Hollywood movies, makes his debut in television with the score for Paul Gallico's "The Small Miracle," a Hallmark Hall of Fame drama on NBC April 11.

Actors Michael Caine and Charlton Heston will share the master of ceremonies chore when NBC telecasts the annual Oscar Awards program of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences March 27.

Dining An informal elegance at Le Gourmet

By Edward Robert Brooks

Two Georges have brought elegant French dining to Chicago's northwest suburbs. Both Georges - Dravillas and Vavaroutsis - have had extensive restaurant experience, and now they're putting it to good use at their new place, Le Gourmet, 500 Rand Rd., Arlington Heights (299-3400).

The building itself isn't new. It functioned for years as a steak and beef house. But the Georges have remodeled the entire operation to create a plushly informal Parisian outpost. And they've introduced a menu of sophisticated cuisine that's rather unusual for a suburban restaurant.

Seafood choices, for instance, include sauteed pompano and baked shrimp stuffed with crabmeat. Other possibilities are Dover sole meuniere, broiled red snapper, scampi in garlic butter and turbot with hollandaise sauce.

ENTREES ON THE A LA CARTE menu cost $4.95 - $9.75, including potato or rice and a house salad. In addition, there are several selections available for parties of two or more. Filet a la Talleyrand is delicious, hearts of beef tenderloin stuffed with mushrooms, braised in a Madeira marinade, then baked and topped with sauce Perigueux. It's priced at $17.50 for two. For the other multiportion dishes - roast rack of lamb adorned with vegetables ($8.00 per person) and beef Wellington ($8.75 per person) - the Georges request 24 hour advance notice.

Curry dishes also rate a special listing. They're Vavaroutsis' specialty and are available with either mild or pungent seasoning. Customers can choose chicken, shrimp, crab or lobster versions for $6.25 - $7.75, including rice, chutney and shredded coconut.

ONE MEMBER OF MY group on a recent visit to Le Gourmet was a real duck aficionado. She pronounced the restaurant's roast duck with bigarade sauce as one of the best she's ever eaten. I found the beef Stroganoff equally outstanding.

Other choices include the usual steaks and chops, plus a pepper steak, prepared with onions, green peppers and mushrooms, and a pepper corn steak, coated with crushed black pepper, corn and flambéed. Meat eaters also can choose tournee de Roast, medallions of veal sauteed in Marsala, calf's sweetbread, beef en brochette and veal cutlet a la Oscar. For this last dish, the veal is sauteed with crabmeat, topped with sauce Beurre blanc and glazed under a broiler. Banquet facilities available for up to 100 people. Saks Fifth Avenue creates one of their rare and unique style shows. Thursday luncheon 12 - 2:30.

Le Gourmet serves lunch Monday through Friday 11:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. and dinner 5:30 p.m. - 1 a.m. A downstairs room, the Moulin Rouge, offers dancing and entertainment until 4 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Piano bar Monday through Thursday.

Need a chuckle? You can find one every day in "Short Ribs", daily cartoon in the HERALD.

A SERIES of lithographs depicting the idea of woman in America between 1830 and 1890 continues in the lower level of the Harper College Learning Resources Center through March 30. Entitled "The Genteel Female," the collection from the Smithsonian Institution demonstrates the virtues with which the 19th century endowed its women: her joy in childhood and youth, her responsibilities in married life and middle years, her strength and decline in widowhood and old age. The idea of woman conveyed by the lithographs is romantic, sentimental and stereotyped.

RAIN OR SHINE. "Shades of Spring" will appear on the runway Saturday, March 24, for the Chicago Kiwi Club's 14th annual luncheon show at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. Local Kiwis are Mrs. John McCormick, Elk Grove; Mrs. Robert Reda, Des Plaines; and Mrs. Robert Fridlund, Elk Grove, all former American Airlines stewardesses. Mrs. Fridlund, 956-1828, has tickets at $10 each. Fashions will be from Joseph's Boutique and Village Moppet. Proceeds go to Park Lawn School for retarded children.

Theater benefit proceeds will go to cardiac aid

It is the goal of the Northwest Community Hospital Women's Auxiliary to purchase a portable cardiac defibrillator to be used in connection with the new Mobile Intensive Care Network. This is the most advanced equipment available to be used by paramedics in treatment of heart attacks, according to Mrs. Robert Alfani, ways and means chairman of the auxiliary.

To raise funds for this equipment known as Life Pac III, the Auxiliaries have planned a theater benefit for April 4 at the Arlington Park Towers Theater. The play is "Private Lives," a comedy by Noel Coward starring Louis Jourdan and Barbara Rush. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Mrs. Alfani invites and urges residents in the neighborhood areas to support the hospital by purchasing tickets. Assisting Mrs. Alfani with the benefit are Mrs. Peter Pleotis and Mrs. Jess Jacobs. Ticket priced at $10 may be obtained by calling 392-3923102 or CL-9-1871.

Dear Dorothy: With regard to the 1,650-watt heater on a 15-ampere circuit blowing a fuse, I suspect this happened because a heating element's resistance (the electrical term) is lower than normal when it is first turned on, causing a larger-than-normal current to be drawn from the outlet while it is warming up.

Since the steady current was rated at 13.75 amperes, the initial surge could easily have been more than 15. The same starting-surge effect occurs with motor-driven equipment such as air conditioners. Time-delay fuses will cure many of these problems safely, provided the steady current drawn by the appliance does not exceed the rated capacity of the circuit. — Irvine P. Stapp Jr.

Glad you focused on this point, Mr. Stapp. In the case of the householder who started this discussion, it seemed to me that there had not been adequate check on what all was on that specific circuit. Both of our points are valid, I think.

Dear Dorothy: Can't understand potatoes bursting when being baked. I've been baking potatoes for more years than I care to recall and my mother before me, and she is now 80. We've never cut off the ends or eyes out of them, just washed, dried and greased them well, then baked in a 400 degree oven for about an hour — Mrs. Herbert Mires Maybe that's the answer. Greasing them makes the skin soft.

Dear Dorothy: Just read the article on the reader who was so allergic to cleaning solutions she had to wear rubber gloves constantly. What was annoying was that the right-handed glove always went first. If she'll turn the glove for her left hand wrong side out, she will have an extra right hand glove. It really works. — Emily Workman

Atlantic City talent comes to mother-daughter banquet

Anita Pankratz, Miss Illinois of 1971, will be the star attraction at the mother-daughter banquet of South Church Woman's Guild of Mount Prospect Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

"Spring's Beauty," theme of the event, will be exemplified visually and vocally by Anita, a lyric soprano who plays her own accompaniment on piano and guitar, tapes it and sings to the tape so she can move about before her audience. Her message in word and song centers about God's love for a tired old world as she travels all over the country speaking to clubs, organizations and particularly youth groups. Her schedule is booked through 1975.

Banquet chairman is Mrs. Roland Webb. Decorations will be by Pat Piper. Others on the planning committee include Mrs. Walter Dick, Muriel Smith and Mrs. Eldon Ray, coordinator and president of the Guild Fathers, husbands and sons of members will serve.

Tickets are available through the church office, 253-0501, or Mrs. James Brown, 253-1208.

Good news for gals

EVANSTON, ILL. (UPI) — College women entering the employment market this year have a better chance of landing a job than women graduates in previous years.

An Arlington Heights pair, Elyse Marie Early and Douglas S. Ward are engaged and planning to be married in June, 1974. The engagement and wedding date are announced by Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Early, 1428 N. Vail Ave. Douglas is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Gordon C. Ward of 115 E. Park St.

The young couple are '70 graduates of Arlington High School. Elyse is studying nursing at Harper College while working for Medical & Surgical Associates in Park Ridge. Doug is a junior at the University of Wisconsin at LaCrosse.

A late August wedding is planned by a recently engaged Palatine pair, Michele Catherine Randolph and Terry Prisliger. Their parents are the John E. Randolphs of 778 Stephen Drive and the Edward J. Prisliger, 354 Pleasant Hill Blvd.

Michele and Terry both graduated from Fremd High School and are students at the University of Denver.

Chief Petty Officer and Mrs. G. C. Blank, 719 N. Elmhurst Ave., Mount Prospect, announce the engagement of their daughter Lou Ann Marie to Scott A. Wagner, son of the Arthur C. Wagners of 18 N. Meyer Court, Des Plaines.

The wedding is planned for May of 1974.

Lou Ann is a senior at Prospect High School and works at Lane Bryant at Randhurst. Her fiancé, a '72 graduate of Maine West High, attends Oakton Community College and works for Pesche's Inc., Des Plaines.

Candice Sue Havener's engagement to Ralph Francis Soper Jr., son of the Ralph Sopers, 318 N. Gibbons, Arlington Heights, is announced by her parents, Mrs. Roberta Havener of Champaign and Robert Havener of St. Joseph. The wedding is set for May 13.

Candice teaches kindergarten at Ivy Hill School, Arlington Heights, since graduating last year from Illinois State University. Her fiancé, a graduate of St. Viator High School and Illinois Wesleyan University, is working on a master's degree at Northern Illinois University. He is affiliated with Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity and Candice with Lambda Rho Sorority.

Newlyweds in Des Plaines

A couple who are both working in Des Plaines but whose families live in Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights were married Feb. 17 in Immanuel Lutheran Church, Des Plaines.

The bride is the former Jo Ann L. Johnson, daughter of the Sigvald M. Johnsons of 805 Stonebridge Lane, Buffalo Grove. Her bridegroom, John A. Karnatz, grew up in Des Plaines but his family, the George J. Boeckenhauers, now live in Arlington Heights at 208 N. Waterman.

John graduated from Maine West High School and Harper College and is with Central Telephone Co. Jo Ann attended high school in Centerville, Ohio, and since moving to this area works for General Telephone Directory Co.

THE COUPLE WERE married at 4:30 in the afternoon by candlelight. After exchanging vows and rings in a nuptial ceremony they greeted 125 guests at a party at Heuer's Restaurant, Rosemont, and then had a short honeymoon at the Regency Hyatt House. They are living in Des Plaines.

Nancy Johnson was her sister's maid of honor, wearing a royal blue velvet gown trimmed with white lace and carrying a colonial bouquet of blue-tipped carnations, blue baby's breath and yellow carnations.

Three bridesmaids also came down the aisle in identical royal blue gowns and carrying the same type of bouquet. They were Mrs. Darlene Choyce of Des

Mr. and Mrs. John Karnatz

Plaines, the groom's sister; Shirley Karnatz, his cousin from Palatine; and Carol Zeissler, Des Plaines, a friend of the bride.

JO ANN ENTERED the sanctuary wearing a white velvet gown, its bodice, high neck and long puffed sleeves all appliqued in beaded lace. The gown ended in a chapel train. A half-hat held the bride's mantilla veil which was also edged with lace, and she carried a colonial bouquet of frenched carnations, stephanotis and blue baby's breath with a white orchid in the center.

John chose his brother Henry Karnatz as best man. Greg Nischke, Bensenville, and Bill O'Connell, Des Plaines, were ushers.

At 61 Pat Nixon belies her age

by GAY PAULEY
NEW YORK (UPI) — Pat Nixon becomes 61 this week with a "new" fashion image that belies the passing years.

Those who see the First Lady often say that she is slimmer, more assured and chic in her clothes choices, that her hairdo is more flattering and that she's also wearing a more outgoing personality than the Pat who came to Washington, D.C., Jan. 20, 1963, as wife of a vice president. She had already been there before, of course, as wife of a representative and senator.

Helen Thomas, the UPI's White House correspondent, calls Mrs. Nixon "the best groomed First Lady I've seen. She's happy and it shows... she likes it when polls rate her the most admired woman.

Mrs. Nixon obviously is more relaxed now that all the campaigning in congressional, vice presidential and presidential races is behind.

She keeps a size 8-10 figure, not from dieting but just from care in what she eats. She tends to "plek" at food, taking only a few bites, at the numerous banquets and lunches that are part of a First Lady's lifestyle.

Her hairstyles certainly reflect the "new" Pat. Leafing through the UPI picture files, you find the hairdo has changed from a parted, curled one to a soft bouffant, making her strong jawline in turn look softer.

ONE OF THE MOST becoming arrangements was for the Jan. 20 inaugural this year when her hair stylist, Rita DeSantis, pulled it back, making it look almost like a French twist although the First Lady's hair is not that long.

The color of Mrs. Nixon's hair has changed little, although Miss Thomas says it appears to her to be lighter blonde and with fewer reddish tones.

Undoubtedly, the American designers from whom Mrs. Nixon buys her clothes and the advice of Claire Trez have been an influence. Mrs. Trez, with long experience in the fashion business, offers guidance and helps Mrs. Nixon shop.

The First Lady comes to New York occasionally, usually stays at the Waldorf, and designers take clothes to the hotel for her perusal. Among the designers are Adele Simpson, Jeremy Wren, Geoffrey Beene and furrier Leo Ritter. Favorite daytime costumes tend to be two-piece suits or soft dresses, often with coordinated coats.

As for the actual observance of her birthday, Mrs. Nixon will celebrate her 61st a day late — on St. Patrick's Day, as has been her custom in recent years. There'll be a party at the White House and entertainment.

Assembly line for brides

by RICHARD C. GROSS
TEL AVIV (UPI) — An array of glittering salons run Israel's prettiest assembly line, one geared to producing a bride from the top of her coiffed hair to the soles of her satin shoes.

All that's missing is the conveyor belt.

This sprawling concrete seaside city of 394,000 is Israel's capital of the marriage business, partially because of its central location on the Mediterranean coast and because of its size.

An outgrowth of the commonplace hairdressing parlor, the salons have built an industry around marriage by offering, for a fee, to prepare the exterior woman for the moment when she intones "I do."

Two of the biggest such beauty palaces are Annetta's and Amber, little more than a block away from each other. The process takes about five hours and includes, in this order: facial, eye make-up, bubblebath, hairdo, veil arrangement, pedicure, manicure, lunch, rest period with coffee and cake, and, the finale, getting into the furnished gown. Then the groom comes along and whisks her off to the rabbi.

AMBER PROVIDES a photographer so the couple can have their wedding pictures snapped on the spot. Amber recently advertised its fee. It's around $120.

"My aim was to do something that would modernize the whole procedure," said Mrs. Annetta Neuwirth, owner of Annetta's.

"I decided to be a pioneer in this business because I know that when I got married, I had to run from one place to another because in those days you couldn't have everything done in one place."

Additionally, Mrs. Neuwirth said, such salons give the bride several hours away from her family and a chance to have those final moments to herself.

"I don't believe that families should be with the bride just before the wedding," she said. "Mothers make the bride very nervous because they insist on their own way. It's no good."

Social Security

Q. My uncle applied for monthly social security retirement payments last summer, and his checks started about six weeks after he applied. However, my father, who applied last November, had to wait nearly three months before his first check came. Why is there such a difference in how long it takes for the first check to arrive?

A. One possible explanation is that your father didn't have the necessary papers ready when he applied for benefits. Applications for retirement payments are processed faster if the applicant has complete information — such as proof of his age and a record of his most recent earnings — when he first applies. A birth or baptismal certificate recorded before age 5, a school record, an old insurance policy, or the birth certificate of a child that shows the applicant's age are acceptable age proofs. A record — such as a W-2, check stubs, or a tax return — is also acceptable proof of recent earnings. These proofs help start payments sooner.

Q. I'll be 72 in August. Although I signed up for Medicare when I was 65, I couldn't get any monthly retirement benefits because I was working and earning too much. However, after I'm 72 I understand I can keep right on working and still get my full benefits. Do I have to apply for these payments after my 72nd birthday?

A. No. Your payments will start automatically with the month of your 72nd birthday. Since you continued to work without getting benefits after 65, you can now qualify for special delayed retirement credits. These credits will increase your benefit amount 1 per cent for each year — or 1/12 of one per cent for every month — after 1970 that you worked and didn't collect monthly payments.

Q. After my recommended stay in the hospital, my doctor recommended physical therapy treatments as part of my recovery program. If a physical therapist who has an independent practice comes to my home to give treatments, will Medicare help pay for them?

A. Yes, but not until July 1, 1973. Starting then, the medical insurance part of Medicare can help pay for treatment by a physical therapist in your home or in the therapist's office. Of course, physical therapy furnished as an inpatient hospital service, an outpatient extended care service, a home health service, or as part of a physician's treatment has been covered under Medicare for some time.

From St. Mel High

Black Theatre group coming to St. Viator

The Youth Black Heritage Theatre will perform for students at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights Tuesday.

The Heritage Theatre, formed last summer, has given 25 performances during the year and has been invited to appear in Hong Kong and Russia. The group has also appeared on several television programs and is planning a May benefit performance at the Auditorium Theatre for the American Friends Service Society.

Mark Williams, director of the group, said the production at St. Viator will include a variety of choral and dance presentations and will feature a cast of 40 students. The title of the show is "Umoja," the Swahili word for unity. Several of the selections which will be presented were written by Tony Llorens, music and choral director at Providence-St. Mel High School in Chicago.

Members of the Heritage Theatre are students at St. Mel. Williams, who also teaches drama at the school, said some reasons for the formation of the group were "to help make these students more sensitive to other people's needs, to help them better understand other individuals and to assist them in communicating better with everyone."

Students at St. Viator and St. Mel took part in a cultural exchange program last month. Forty St. Viator pupils spent a day at the Chicago school and on the following day an equal number of St. Mel students travelled to Arlington Heights to take part in St. Viator activities.

Friday prelims kick off 16th headliner

State gymnastics meet opens at Prospect

Gymnastics Editor

Gymnasts... start your routines. The green flag for the 16th Annual Illinois High School Gymnastics Championships at Prospect is just hours away from dropping for the 100-plus competitors representing 46 statewide schools.

The command may be the biggest of their teenage lives.

For the seven who eventually survive the two-session acid test and go on to post event championships, thousands of dollars in scholarships are likely rewards.

For others, it will be a lesson in discipline, a lesson in learning, a lesson in swallowing defeat.

But for all, today's preliminaries (2 and 7 p.m.) and tomorrow's finals (7 p.m.) will be a great experience.

Illinois has long been the hub of high school gymnastics excellence and what college coaches and scouts see today and tonight should further cement its reputation.

Spectators (and a full house estimated at 3,000 is expected at each of the three sessions) will view competition in floor exercise, side horse and horizontal bar beginning at two o'clock with trampoline, parallel bars and still rings scheduled for the evening calendar.

From tonight's results, points will be awarded to those gymnasts who finish in places 11-through-20. The all-around competition will also be figured based on the preliminary scores.

The top 10 will advance to the finals Saturday at 7 p.m. where individual and team champions will be decided. And what a race it promises to be.

At least five teams may be considered legitimate contenders for the state title that has been dominated by three-time defender Hinsdale Central.

Elk Grove has reserved the most positions in the preliminaries with 13, but Hinsdale (12), Homewood-Flossmoor (11), Niles North (10) and Hersey (9) all have the resources and talent to vie for the top spot.

Individually, the meet should be a spectator's delight.

Almost all colors under the rainbow will be represented by the jerseys worn by the 46 competing schools. And while gymnasts come in all shapes and sizes, there'll be a wide gap in ages, too.

Most of the 182 positions in the state meet are occupied by seniors who will be trying to make four years of diligent effort pay off. There is one extremely noticeable exception.

His name is Bart Conner and at 14 is a good bet to win a pair of events in only his freshman season. The Niles West frosh phenom owns a state-leading 9.05 sectional average on parallel bars and an incredible 8.27 all-around tab.

Wheaton North's Jim Walker (8.7) figures to be Conner's stiffest test on the "rails" while the sea's hopes rest on Elk Grove's Scott Phillips (8.25), Maine East's Joe Darby (8.2), Rolling Meadows' Mike Godawa (8.15), Wheeling's Bill Harvel (8.0) and Palatine's Ken Evensen (7.5).

Godawa appears to have the best shot at Conner in all-around. Mike compiled 39.65 to rate second in the state behind the little Indian while Wheaton Central's Kelly Harmon (39.15) and Phillips (38.35) rate outside shots.

Tom Gardner has an excellent chance to put Conner in the winner's circle on floor exercise where the little senior shared top sectional billing with a brilliant 8.85. His chief threat will come from York's Curt Austin who equaled the mark and from Conner (again), Hersey's Steve Schwabe, and New Trier West's Larry Patis — all of whom clicked for 8.5's in the sectional.

Side horse appears to be a tossup between Hinsdale and Hinsdale. It was a big year on horse for the Red Devils who own both Chuck Walters and Curt Rodgers (8.8's) in what could easily be a one-two sweep for the defending champs.

Arlington's John Golbeck (8.75), Elk Grove's Bob Siemianowski (8.65) and Rolling Meadows' Blaine Dahl (8.6) appear to be the Devils' biggest concern.

Horizontal bar figures to be a real nailbiter. Tom Pearson (8.6) of New Trier East should have the inside track to the individual title, but Lorin Berland (8.5) of Niles North along with area standouts Joe Shepherd (8.45) of Hersey, Godawa (8.25) and Phillips (8.25), aren't about to surrender the chase.

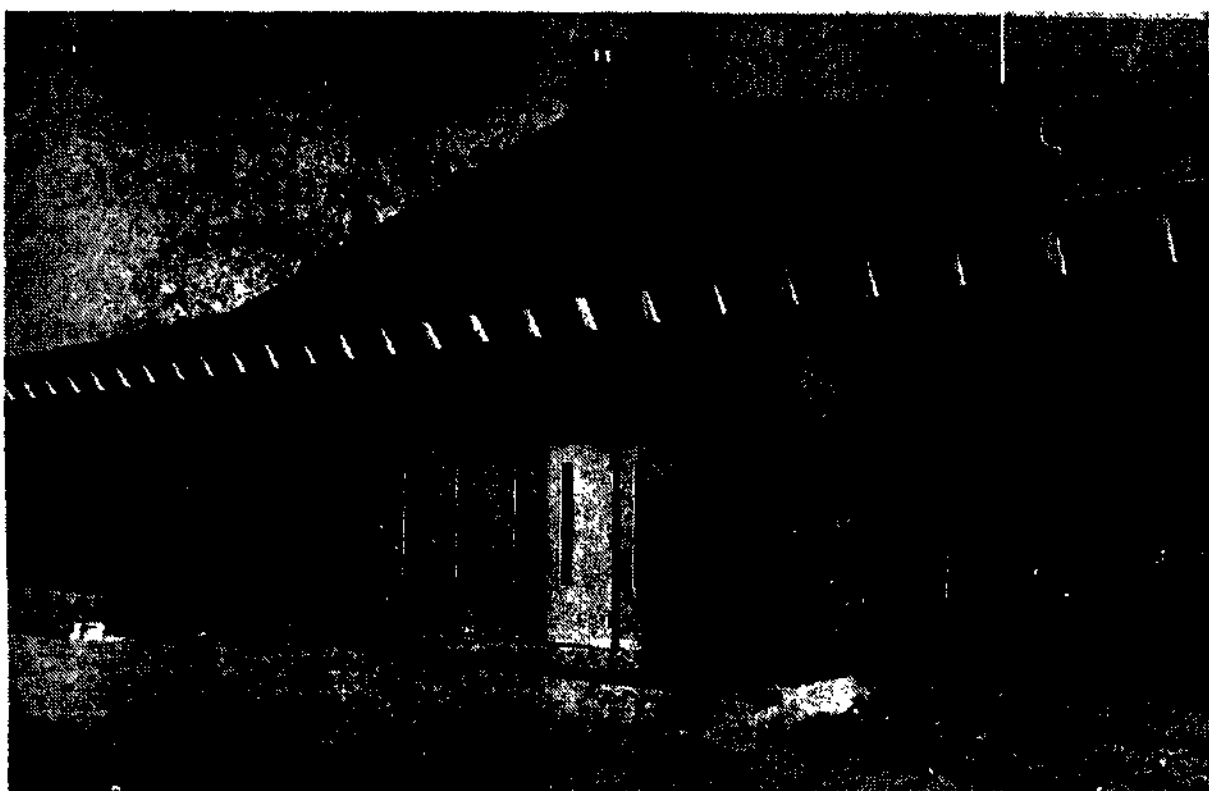

Trampoline should be and must be the biggest point-getter for Elk Grove toward the state title. Dave Kheshaba (8.5), Steve Targersen (8.4) and Dave Hadley (8.4) give the Grenadiers an awesome 1-2-3 punch.

Hoping to interrupt the green wave are Hersey's Jack McLaughlin (8.45), Arlington's Bob Flubacher (8.0) and York's Austin who missed in the sectional (8.3) but who has averaged over 8.75 for the season.

The still rings event should be in a class by itself. With 23 different competitors earning marks of 8.0 or better in sectional action, there is no clear-cut favorite. Hinsdale's Doug Wood has been an occasional nine-point performer during the regular season and just missed the magic plateau with an 8.95 sectional average.

Defending rings champion Todd Kusni could make it two straight after an 8.8 last week and Niles North's Steve Seaman rates right in there with an 8.63. Area prayers rest with improving Don Knigge (8.4) of Fremd and Elk Grove's Jack Henry (8.35). Forest View's Don Lanham (8.3) and Palatine's Dick Alcina (8.25) are certainly capable.

Tickets will go on sale before each session only and there are no reserved seats. Adults will be charged $1.50 for either session Friday while students cost $1. The Saturday night finals will cost $2 for everyone and must again be purchased at the door.

DOORS TO OPPORTUNITY. Gymnasts from around the state will enter the fieldhouse at Prospect High School, 801 Kensington Road, in quest of a state championship.

Preliminaries begin today at 2 and 7 p.m. with the finals Saturday night at 7. Hinsdale is three-time defending Illinois champion.

Title excitement tonight in sectional tournaments

by LARRY EVERHART

The Herald area, even though its own teams now are on the outside looking in, plays host to two sectional basketball finales tonight as Sweet Sixteen berths are to be decided.

A pair of great intra-league matchups are in store between teams that have already met in their own conferences.

At Fremd, Elgin and St. Charles will vie for a DeKalb Supersectional berth and at Elk Grove, it will be Maine South vs. Niles West for an Evanston "super" entry.

WWMM-FM of Arlington Heights, 92.7, will broadcast the Elk Grove Sectional championship, starting at 7:15 p.m. with a pre-game show. Station sports director Dick Thomas will present the play-by-play with Herald sports editor Bob Frisk giving color commentary. WWMM-FM will also cover the Supersectional at Evanston on Tuesday, starting at 3:45 p.m. with Thomas and Frisk again at the microphone.

St. Charles will be a decided underdog tonight as it tries for the third straight season to get out of the sectional. The Saints did not make it past this point in the last two tries, and they'd need a stunning upset to do so now.

Not only is Elgin considered one of the stronger contenders for the state title at this point with a 25-1 record and a towering front line of 7 feet, 6-8 and 6-7, but the Maroons have had little trouble with St. Charles (21-7) in two previous games. They won 77-64 the first time and ran roughshod over the Saints, 97-59, in the last meeting.

Elgin did not live up to its super billing in Tuesday night's sectional opener even though it got by. The Maroons came within an eyelash of being shockingly upset by St. Patrick, which had no player taller than 6-foot-3, as Elgin needed an overtime to win 67-61.

The Maroons dominated the extra session, with 7-foot center Jeff Wilkins scoring eight of his 28 points in those three minutes, but the chance for overtime came only when St. Patrick's Emmet McGovern had one of his two free throws barely roll out of the basket with three seconds left.

St. Charles had no such scare against Palatine, rolling up 12 points before the Pirates scored Wednesday night, leading 20-5 and 44-17 after the first two quarters, and finally winning 81-52. A blistering fast break did it for the Saints even though heralded all-state performer Mark Vitall was held to 17 points — 11 below his average.

Although the 6-foot-5 Vitall and 6-4 Lance Erickson are good rebounders, St. Charles' chief problem will be on the boards against Wilkins, 6-4 Terry Drake and 6-7 Jay Geldmacher. The Saints' game is running, but they must rebound before they can fast break.

St. Charles does have the edge at guards, with 6-2 Jeff Howard and 5-8 Gary Ayala being better ball handlers — and, this week at least, better shooters — than Elgin's 6-4 Tim Jones and 5-11 Tom Koch.

Elgin coach Bill Chesbrough was not satisfied with his team's performance Tuesday except that it won. "Our guards were keeping the ball too long and not getting it into the big boys (Wilkins)," he said. "But we needed a game like this. We've been winning too easily. Except for our only loss (60-45 to East Aurora in December), no one has come closer to us than 12 points."

Elgin still has never won a state title, despite a rich basketball tradition, and has not progressed downstate in 16 years.

If St. Charles does not win tonight, it is a good bet to be back next year. Every starter except Vitall will be returning.

Jones leads Hawk bid at Elk Grove

by MIKE KLEIN

If Elk Grove were New York City and the Grenadiers' gymnasium good old Madison Square Garden, Jerry Jones would fit right in.

Without doubt, he'd be a Knick. A hometown favorite. A classy dude. Bachelor all the way. Penthouse apartment. The whole bit.

Jones wouldn't just show up for games. He'd style into the parking lot, pushing Edge at home?

Cagers often find misery on the road

"ANYTIME YOU WIN on the road in basketball, it's an upset."

It was not very long ago when Al McGuire of Marquette made an observation that so succinctly echoed the sentiments of coaches at all levels of competition.

McGuire rarely loses in any gym, but his very candid comment on the home-court advantage hit home (sorry about that) with the men who earn their money in this most demanding profession.

According to Jimmie (The Greek) Snyder, who studies baskets from his command post in Las Vegas, every college team is worth at least five additional points when it plays at home; when the home team is Kentucky or Evansville or DePaul or Marquette, for example, the edge moves up. Those gyms offer special problems.

Indiana, the Big Ten champ, didn't lose a game at home this season. Illinois lost only one at home but dropped nine on the road. Even lowly Northwestern shocked mighty Minnesota in Evanston last Saturday, actually dominating the game.

A recent National Basketball Association survey covered teams that played 600 ball or better during a full season over the last 10 years. These teams won at home 21.4 per cent more often than they did on an enemy court. There were 31 teams in the group, representing 11 cities, and they won 78.5 per cent of their home games and 57.1 of their away games.

Naturally, there are exceptions. Elk Grove beat Prospect by 25 points on the Prospect floor last Friday night and then lost by 20 points on its own floor Tuesday in the sectional. Iowa beat Minnesota — in Minnesota. It does happen.

In college and high school, as in the old days of professional ball, the difference between one court and another might be very great. In the pro ranks during the last 10 years, things have been pretty well standardized, and the experienced players have made many visits to the courts.

However, even the pros show an obvious fondness for the home court, a much higher winning percentage, and that's why it's always interesting to examine this entire subject of the home-court advantage. If it really exists, why does it exist?

Traditionally, three reasons are given.

One is that the home team is more familiar with the court — small but important things like lights and shadows, the background one sees when he aims at the basket, the way the ball bounces off different parts of the floor, the way it caroms off rims and backboards.

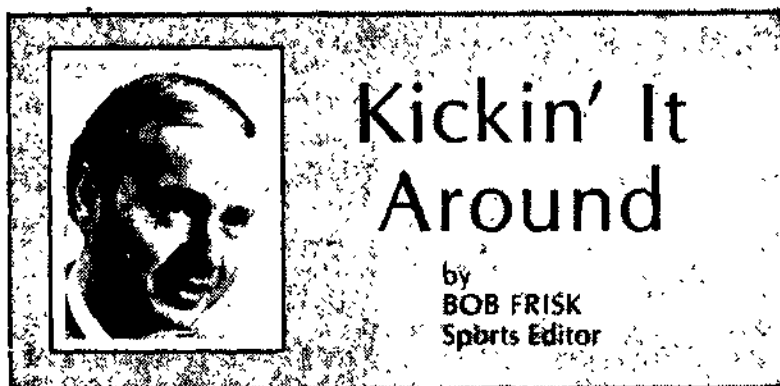

No matter what you do it still boils down to whether the ball goes into the hoop and a boy doesn't have to be far off to be way off. Different lighting, different floor feel, the home crowd — they all add up to a couple inches, and he won't hit anything. You can't psych basketball players on a regular basis as you do in football; there are too many games on the schedule.

Another reason given for a home-court advantage is that traveling is tiring in itself, and disrupts routine, so that the visiting team is less likely to play its best. This can be a definite factor on a college or pro level.

The travel factor obviously has little if any effect in Mid-Suburban League play when a road game might mean a trip a few miles south on Arlington Heights Road.

A third reason, and a very important one for the colleges and pros, is the effect of the home crowd. Again, it's not quite as pronounced on a prep level in this area because it's so easy to travel to an opposing gym. You'll find good fan turnouts from the visitors.

The inspirational force of a home crowd, however, is unmistakable as Northwestern showed Saturday against Minnesota — but there's a limit to this factor. If anything, fan inspiration does more good for a mediocre or poor team, which rises to the heights only occasionally.

"These fans were really something," said Brad Snyder after his Northwestern team shocked Minnesota. "I think most of them came to see Minnesota but they left cheering Northwestern. If we could get crowds that big all the time, I can't tell you how much difference it would make."

Snyder won't have the chance to find out at Northwestern. He resigned Monday.

In pro basketball Phoenix and Seattle glory in reputations for the most uproarious fans.

"I like the reputation we have the loudest fans in the league," says Jerry Colangelo, the Phoenix coach and general manager. He cites as an example of the fervor an incident when fans charged out of the stands because they thought a Phoenix baller was involved in a fight with an opposition player.

"Two people fell out of the balcony, a person was hit with a bottle and a little girl got trampled," says Colangelo with a touch of pride. "It shows how rabid our fans are."

In Louisville, brothers Ellis and Bill Thomas form a double attack on the opposition, although it seems as if surely there must be more than just two of them. The brothers position themselves in separate but adjacent stations for good stereophonic cross-shout effect and then ridicule, holler, wave their arms, point their fingers, jump up and down or grab the basketball when it goes out of bounds and break into a dribbling act.

"Why do you keep calling me a dummy?" an exasperated visiting coach in the American Basketball Association recently demanded of a fan sitting a few rows behind the bench. "Why," shrugged the fan, "do you keep looking around when I say it?"

The home crowd's effect on the officials has been widely discussed and hotly debated.

"It is one of life's satisfactions to feel that you are doing a good job," says Tex Winter, former coach of Kansas State. "If a crowd boos you consistently you may get the idea that you aren't doing a good job, and may subconsciously try to please that crowd."

Referees are entirely human, and the perpetual noise all in one team's favor (again this is more pronounced on a college pro level) can't help but have a subliminal effect.

With no conscious intent to be unfair, and despite what they may say to the contrary, some coaches feel that nine officials out of 10 just might wind up giving little things to the home team — the swipe that becomes a legal steal instead of a foul, the little extra aggressiveness on the boards that's easier to let go when the crowd is roaring approval, the little extra alertness to a visiting player's infraction when the crowd howls and calls attention to it.

"On the road you simply don't play as aggressive a defense as you do at home," said Pete Newell, former coach at San Francisco, Michigan State and California. "Many times violations are called because the home rosters pointed them out to officials — like hacking or blocking. These are never called from the stands about the home team. Somebody will yell, about a visiting player, 'Watch Jones, he's always shoving,' and the official finds himself looking for shoving."

Everybody likes to play at home in any sport, but basketball offers something very special.

As long as the sport is so quick and precise, as long as drums play and pretty cheerleaders cheer in the visiting coach's ear, there is going to be a home-court advantage.

Kolze scores crucial layup for Augustana

Former Herald All-Area guard Mike Kolze made a crucial layup with just 28 seconds remaining to lift second-seeded Augustana College over Defiance, Ohio, in the second round of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics basketball tournament Wednesday night, 64-61.

Kolze, a junior, who prepped at Fremd High School of Palatine, just barely made the traveling team of the highly regarded Vikings, but Coach Jim Borchert's substitute made his presence felt. Up to that point, Defiance was trailing by just one point, 62-61.

Augustana advances to the quarter final round of the Kansas City hosted tourney. Top-seeded Sam Houston was bumped from championship play by Xavier of New Orleans, 67-60.

Tourney fever—what it's all about!

RIDGEWAY, Ill. (UPI) — This tiny Gallatin County community of 1,100 persons calls itself the "Popcorn Capital of the World" but for the time being it has gone bananas over basketball.

Every September the town, site of a huge popcorn processing center, celebrates a Popcorn Day and crowns a Popcorn King and Queen and struts its stuff at a Popcorn Ball.

Now the Ridgeway Eagles, the high school basketball team with a 29-1 record and a 29-game winning streak and a member of the prep basketball Class A "Elite Eight," have thrown the town into a full-fledged springtime tizzy.

The Eagles, drawn from 90 boys in a school enrollment of only 282, surprised the Pinckneyville Panthers 57-56 after coming from behind in the Carbondale supersectional Tuesday night. The victory came in the wake of the school's first sectional tournament championship in history at Norris City.

"It seems like we've had three or four popcorn days lately," said Coach Bob Dallas, 44, who has spent his entire 18-year coaching career in Ridgeway. His overall mark as the Eagles head for Champaign is 317-150.

After each key win, the team has been met in a siren-sounded fire truck parade that has led to the town bandstand for a round of congratulations. After the team members are sent home for rest, some fans have continued celebrating into the wee hours at the American Legion and the VFW.

This is basketball hysteria," said the high school principal, Paul Cotton, who has been at the school 24 years. "I have never seen anything like it."

Cotton, together with Supt. W. C. Vinland, is becoming wiser and poorer for the team's winning ways.

He estimates that at least 1,000 persons from Ridgeway made the trip to Carbondale for the supersectional. The school sold almost 1,500 tickets.

Cotton and Vinland started buying pizza for the team, cheerleaders and parents after tournament wins and owe the entire student body a pizza feast. And now they have promised to pick up a steak tab for the entire student body if the Eagles fly home with the state championship.

"They may be working for nothing this year," said Dallas. "We've really been eating high on the hog off them."

Dallas, a native of Harrisburg and a graduate of Southern Illinois University, says he's had better individual players "but never a better team."

"These kids are good students. They are gritty and then never know when to quit," he said.

Junior center Dennis Pearce is the tallest player on the team at 6-foot-3. Forward Brent Browning is the leading scorer with a 22-point average and guard Mike Dixon, who canned 23 against Pinckneyville, is averaging better than 19. Other starters are Mike Fromm and Dan Stevens.

Dallas doesn't believe in predictions as Ridgeway heads into its quarterfinal meeting Friday afternoon at the University of Illinois Assembly Hall against Petersburg Porta.

"All I can say is that these kids will give it their best shot," he said.

And Cotton says that win, lose or draw, there will be a homecoming reception Sunday afternoon from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. for the team followed by a buffet in the school cafeteria.

Keller, Addams wrestlers bid in state meet

Six boys from Keller Junior High and two from Addams junior high in Hoffman Estates - Schaumburg have advanced to the Illinois state wrestling finals for youths 14 years old or younger.

The state meet will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at Maine North high school.

Finishing first in their weight classes at last Weekend's sectionals were Kyle Boji (60) from Addams plus Jon Gluck (65), John Durdan (75) and Randy Burnes (152) from Keller.

Second place advancers were Dave Cooke (65) from Addams plus Jose Rodriguez (97), Jeff Carter (105) and Ray Rodriguez (118) from Keller.

Representatives from eight sectionals will begin competition tomorrow morning at Maine North in the all-day affair.

Prospect finished third in the state gymnastics meet, trailing Evanston and Niles East... Dan Price won the high bar and Gary VanderVoort the parallel bars and all-around events for Prospect... Reid Olson of Arlington was the rings champ... Elgin eliminated Palatine in the sectional basketball tournament, 63-60... Ron Kozlicki and Bob McWilliams had 20 each for the Pirates... Ted Wissen was named head basketball coach at Arlington.

California sluggers

The California Angels hit more home runs in White Sox Park than any other visiting team in 1972 with nine round-trippers. The Angels hit just two against the Sox in California. Oakland's world champions homered more times against the Sox, home and away, than any other team with 16 — five in Chicago, 11 in Oakland.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. UPI — From the first day Fritz Peterson entered professional baseball 10 years ago, he had one thing going for him.

Control.

That has always been his bread and butter.

In a business where a pitcher is judged exceptional if he strikes out twice as many batters as he walks, Fritz Peterson's lifetime ratio is 3-to-1. Simply put, he is one of the best control pitchers in baseball, and he showed that again here this week. He showed it perhaps at a time when he had to most.

If Fritz Peterson, a former Arlington High School (Ill.) pitcher, was the least bit nervous over his first start of the spring for the New York Yankees, his first public coming out to speak, since he and fellow Yankee pitcher Mike Kekich revealed the details of their astonishing swap a week ago, nobody among the 2,233 fans on hand could ever tell that.

Peterson said he wasn't at all nervous during the three innings he worked against the Atlanta Braves. He certainly didn't look as if he was. Heads-up fielding might have averted the two runs charged to Peterson, who did not walk a batter but that wasn't so important to him.

What concerned him primarily was not how many runs the Braves scored against him or even the fans' reaction to his first appearance, but the condition of his left arm, the one with which he has to make a living.

"It felt good," he said, dripping perspiration after running in the outfield following his three inning stint on the mound. "That was the biggest thing I was looking for — arm trouble and I don't have any."

"What about the people in the stands?" one of the newsmen wanted to know. "Did you hear them?"

"I didn't hear a thing," Peterson said, chewing a chunk of ice in the clubhouse.

"Nothing at all?"

"Nothing. It's just a blur when you're out there pitching. You don't hear anything."

"You weren't nervous at all?"

"No," said Peterson. "Were you?"

The Yankee left-hander asked that question without any change of expression, the way he generally does when he's kidding around, but this time he didn't seem to be joking. He seemed serious.

Among those who watched Peterson pitch here was Susanne Kekich, for whom Peterson traded his wife.

She was nervous. "I can't really say," she replied when they asked her what she thought of Peterson's pitching performance. "I didn't get to see that much of it. I was busy getting hot dogs and soft drinks for the children."

Fritz Peterson didn't duck any of the reporters.

He wasn't exactly enchanted with all their questions, but he answered them all.

"Been getting a lotta mail?"

"Yah."

"What kind?"

"Mostly good."

"What is the nature of the other kind?"

"Well, there's been some church mail. Things like 'The wages of sin are death.' That's a little hard to take."

Peterson grew silent a moment. "I didn't kill anybody," he said.

When it came time for him to go out to the mound to face Atlanta's leadoff man, Ralph Garr, in the bottom of the first inning, there was no outward reaction whatsoever from the fans. It was hot out there on the mound and the sun beat down unmercifully on the dry patch of earth.

Fritz Peterson, absorbed in the task at hand, kicked a hole at one end of the rubber so he could get a better footing. It is something he always does whenever he goes out to pitch. When he was finally ready, he took his position on the rubber, fired and Garr ripped the first pitch over short for a single.

Three innings later, Peterson departed, trailing and he did his running in the outfield. The game moved along and the Yankees finally pulled it out, 10-8.

"It's always good to get in that first one," said Peterson.

Most of the fans who turned out at West Palm Beach Municipal Stadium remained in the ballpark after Peterson had finished pitching. High up in the stands behind first base, a young vacationing couple from Syracuse, N. Y., enjoyed the contest thoroughly.

"I'm so glad we came out today," said the girl. "We never get much of a chance to see Hank Aaron."

Grove wins over Elgin

Elk Grove captured first places in all but four events, with double wins by Brian Powell and Brian Walther, on the way to a 62½-46½ indoor track victory over Elgin.

Powell had an excellent two-mile time for this stage, 9:51.2, and also won the mile run in 4:37.0. Walther won the long jump with 18-8½ and the pole vault with 11-0.

Damian Archbold also had a fine time in the 880-yard run, winning with 2:03.6. Other firsts came on Dave Jensen's 8.2 in the 60-yard high hurdles, Steve Busse's 7.3 in the 60 lows, Mark Mizio's 45-8¼ in the shot put and the four-lap relay team's 1:13.0 with members being Jensen, Busse, Walther and Joe Lawson.

Lawson took two second places, in the 50-yard dash (:06.0) and long jump (18-8), while Jensen was runner-up in the low hurdles (:7.3) and Archbold in the mile (4:45.5).

Elk Grove won the frosh-soph meet, 57-52.

Falcons edged in triangular

Jim Wise gained two of Forest View's six first places, including a fine 9:45 in the two-mile run, but the Falcons were edged in a close indoor track triangular. Hosting Niles East won with 58 points, Forest View had 52 and Luther North 51.

Wise's other win was in the mile with 4:38.9. Rich Nilsson won the 880-yard run in 2:06.3. Mike Jule took the long jump with one of the area's best leaps so far, 20-7. Rich Novak was shot put winner with 49-2¼ and the 12-lap relay team was first with Don Rohde, Larry Keen, Jerry Rauba and Nilsson.

The Falcons' only seconds came on Rauba's 57.3 in the quarter-mile and Jim Idstein's 9-0 pole vault.

Forest View also was nipped in the frosh-soph meet by Niles, 58-55.

Wheeling bows to Glenbrook N.

Distance runner Steve Wilhelm captured two first places, but his Wheeling teammates claimed just three others as the Wildcats bowed 76-33 to visiting Glenbrook North in an indoor track dual.

Wilhelm won the two-mile run in 10:25.7 and the mile in 4:45.6. Excellent performances for Wheeling firsts were Steve Drake's 2:00.4 in the half-mile, Bill Chlebek's 53-7¼ in the shot put and John Lortz's six-foot high jump. Drake also took second in the mile and Brian Crehan was second in the two-mile.

Glenbrook North also won meets on the sophomore and freshman levels by easy scores.

Sectional title contests tonight forward a Maserati. Or a Rolls. Or Mercedes.

Jerry Jones' shooting ... ball control ... clutch rebounding ... court class ... It pushed the Maine South Hawks into tonight's Elk Grove sectional finals against Niles West.

Everyone agreed. Jones was the difference Wednesday evening when the Hawks barely outdid a super gully Wheeling Wildcat club, 61-59.

Bob Westman hit a three-point play and Pete Boessen two free throws to give the Hawks their final important points. But Jones just tore the place up all night.

He didn't miss a shot until the second half, then ended up with nine of 11 field goals made. Toss in one charity shot and Jones had 19 team leading points.

But more than that, Jones had three clutch boards in the fourth quarter. He proved to be unselfish all night, continually searching out the open man.

Afterwards, the Central Suburban's Most Valuable Player heaped praise on Wheeling. "They were sleepers. They gave Lockport Central a tough ballgame, losing by five or six (45-39). They're small, but those guys can really jump."

Because Maine South prevailed, there ought to be a real afterburn created when the sectional finals fracas begins at 7:30 this evening.

Niles West against Maine South is a blast all by itself. The Indians, who soared by Elk Grove 69-49 in Tuesday's sectional play, are 19-5. The Hawks enter at 20-4.

Twice before they've met, Maine South winning by eight and three points. No doubt, a great matchup.

But an individual oncourt duel should develop that will certainly warrant admission costs. South's Bernie Brady said he'll probably make one defensive change off the Hawks earlier encounters with Niles West.

That is putting Jones head-up on Brad Cartwright. Jones is the Central Suburban's MVP. Cartwright finished runner-up. They've done it before.

"I usually don't guard him because he's taller and shoots that jumper right over me," the 6-foot-4 Jones said of 6-foot-5 Cartwright.

"But last time he was going good and I wanted a shot at him. I don't know what it is. Maybe I psyched him out a little."

"Besides," Jones said, "we've played against each other since freshman year and on varsity since we were sophomores."

The Indians didn't have Cartwright (bad ankle) when they lost to Maine South 68-60, trailing at one point by 18. The second showing was a whole different story.

Niles West caught the Hawks on shaky road legs. South trailed at halftime and was still down by six points entering the last period. But as Niles coach Billy Schurr explained, "Jones just went crazy."

After a miserable four-point first half, Jones totalled 24 points in the last two periods, finishing with 29 and doing a defensive job on Cartwright who had 17 points.

"I had a real bad first half that night," Jones said Wednesday evening, remembering the earlier game. "In fact, we all did. But me especially. It was probably the worst half I've ever had."

Jones is looking forward to meeting Cartwright on the woods tonight. "We seem to have a thing for playing against each other. He's a real fine player."

Schurr viewed the Hawks close win over Wheeling. "I expected Maine South to take charge of it at any time but they didn't until it was nearly over," he said.

"But I just never had the feeling that Wheeling would be able to win it."

Brady and Schurr both indicated they'll rely on man-to-man defense this evening. "We'll have a zone in readiness in case we need it," Schurr said. "But I don't think you can zone them real well."

Niles West comes in off a more impressive showing. The Indians blew Elk Grove out of state contention with a 46-20 second half showing.

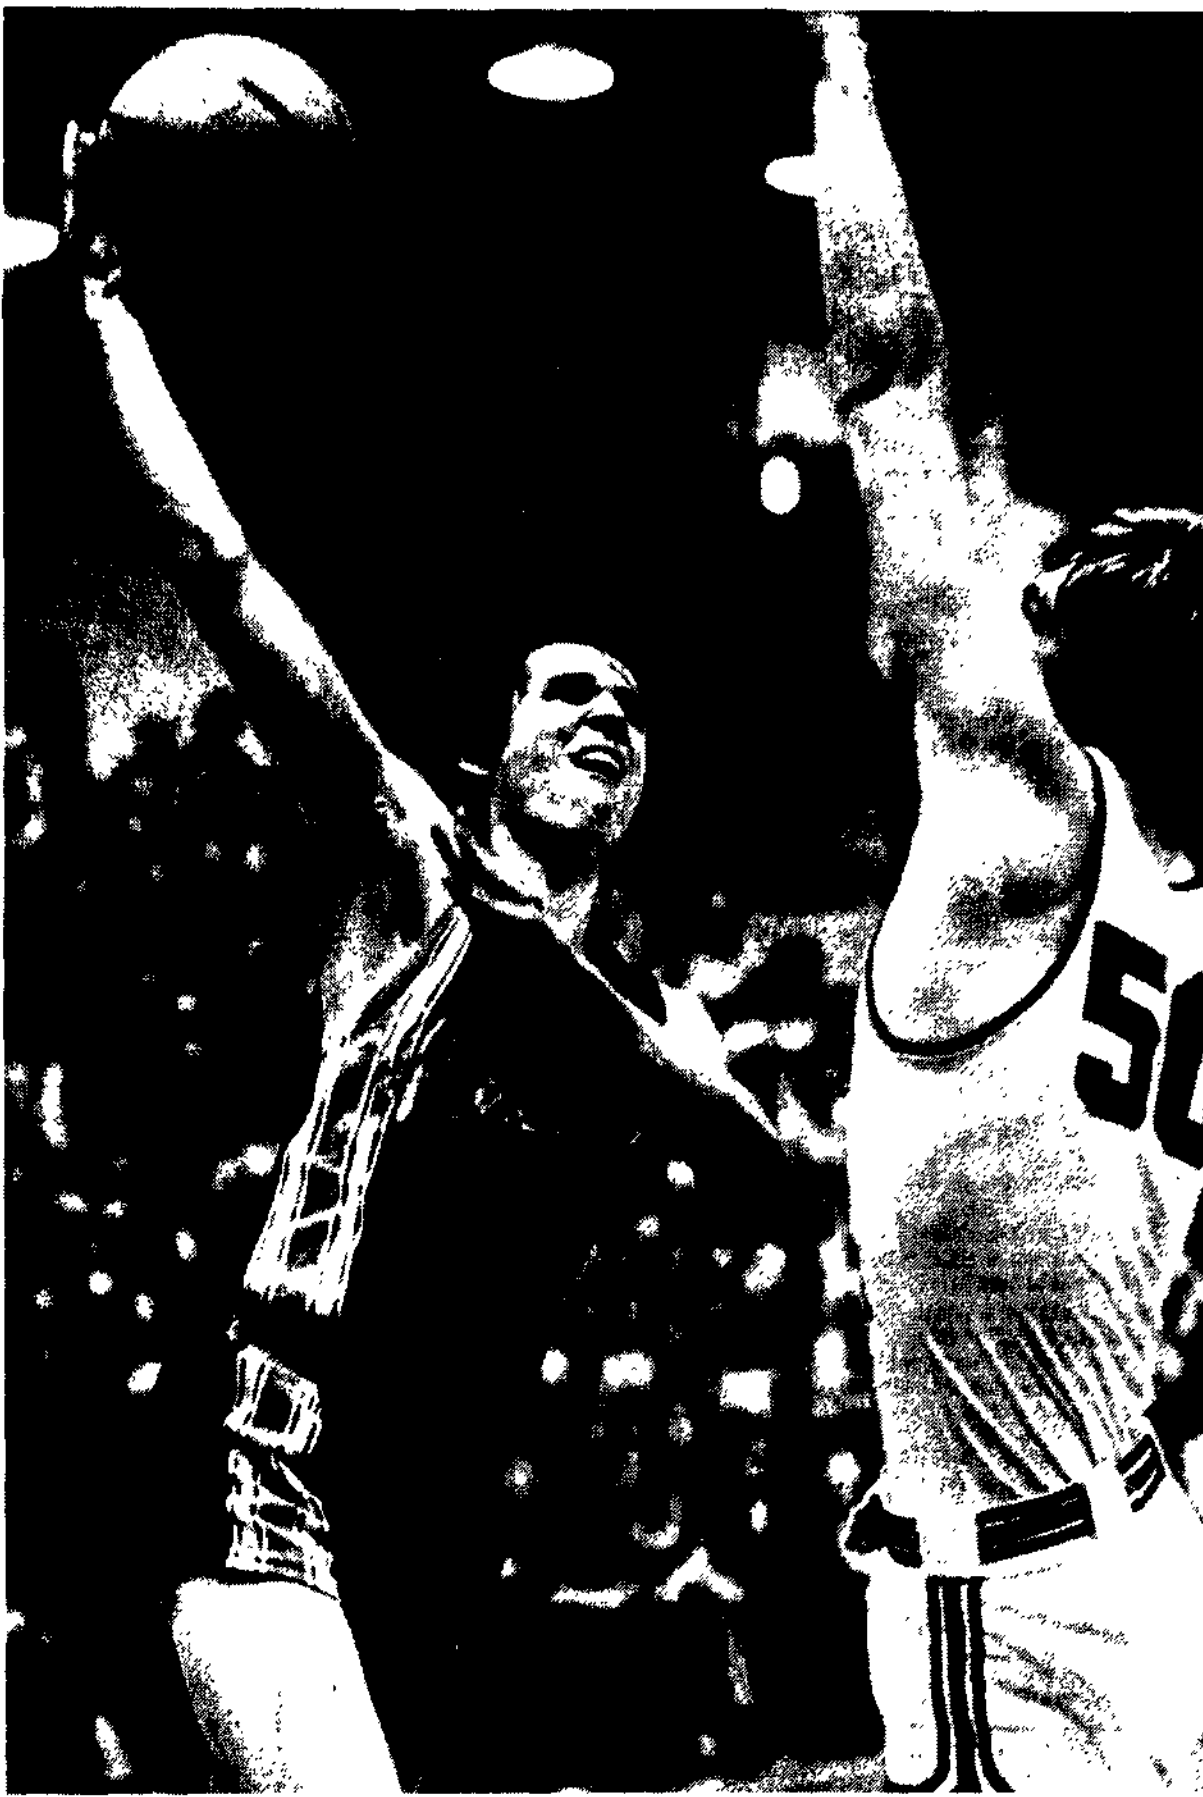

And they did it with Cartwright scoring only three points all night. "I've said it a number of times. You can't stop any one guy on our ballclub," Schurr said.

"We're capable of scoring from any of our positions. Everyone of those starters has had at least 19 points in one game." Big guns Tuesday were Dan Weller (20) and Joel Steiner (19).

The Hawks weren't impressive against Wheeling. Brady admitted it wasn't a let's-write-home effort. South's baseline offense never did get going, even though that's where Westman scored his field goal on a three-point play that killed the Wildcats. And there were far too many turnovers outcourt.

But all night, there was Jones. Missing almost nothing, rebounding and hitting the open man. Styling his way all over the court.

Niles West-Cartwright against Maine South-Jones. Ought to be worth seeing. Style on over...

Tomorrow is final signup in Arlington

The only day to sign up for Arlington Heights Boys Baseball for this summer will be tomorrow, March 17. The program had erroneously reported to the Herald that the signup would be March 24, but the Recreation Park fieldhouse will be in use for other purposes on that day, so tomorrow is the last chance.

The fieldhouse is at 500 E. Miner and registration will take place from 10 a.m. to noon. One parent must be present for each boy and proof of birth must be presented for boys signing up for the first time.

Major League tryouts for 11-year-olds will also be held tomorrow from 5-9 p.m. in the Hersey High School fieldhouse. The school is located at 1900 E. Thomas. Boys should use the east entrance on the south side of the fieldhouse and bring their own gloves and gym shoes.

Tryouts for 12-year-olds will be next Saturday, March 24, at Hersey at the same time.

All boys who sign up will be placed on a team — Intermediate League if not Major League.

Arlington sports new look

Arlington Park will present a completely new face to racing fans and horsemen alike with the opening of the Chicago thoroughbred season at the northwest suburban giant on Saturday, April 14.

Hard at work since the 1972 season closed late last August, construction and maintenance crews are in the process of finishing up a variety of projects designed to put a special glitter on what already is probably the Midwest's finest racing facility.

The final outside portion (the east grandstand) of a five-year project, which has seen the track building expanded 72 feet in depth along its 800-foot five-story north side, has been completed, making the property the most modern in Chicago.

A separate private entranceway, with two 41-passenger elevators, to the new Skyline Room on the fifth floor of the grandstand is finished, and the room, which already has been used for a sit-down dinner for 2,000, is available for special groups or trade shows in combination with a day at the races.

An especially attractive new red and white plastic floor has been laid in the main floor of the grandstand, the apron has been repaired, and a huge concession stand has been moved to a new location to provide a better betting pattern on the main floor grandstand.

Arlington's famed grass course will have a new look, too. Rose bushes are being planted on both the front and back-sides, and, although it probably won't bloom until next year, the new "greenery" will be most attractive.

All fences and rails on the track have been painted as well as the facings of the south side of the track building.

Extensive work also has been completed on the backstretch in hopes of making life for the horsemen a good deal more enjoyable.

The controversial rainbow colors on the barns have disappeared under a coat of white paint and white wooden fencing has been erected between barns to give the area a pastoral look.

Fourteen old barns on the west end of the stable area have been torn down and that new area, as well as the rest of the backstretch, has been completely re-seeded this spring.

In addition, a great deal of flood control work has been done in the backstretch over the winter. Culverts have been installed in both the new and older barn areas and certain areas in the backstretch have been blacktopped to make sure any excess rainwater flows into culverts rather than standing in low areas.

All new barns have been enclosed in anticipation of the possibility of a nippy spell or two in April. The insides, walls and floors, of the new dormitories have been painted and considerable repair-work (light fixtures, screens, windows) has been done on the dormitories.

Finally, Jack Meyers, Arlington's new racing secretary and handicapper, will be back in the old racing secretary's office in the grandstand, although entry clerks will be available in a building on the backstretch.

The stable area will be opened to horsemen on April 1 in anticipation of the season opener April 14, and, from that point on, the world of thoroughbred racing will be in business in Chicago until mid-November.

ARLINGTON MEMPHIS MINOR HOCKEY TRAVELING TEAM ACTION

ARLINGTON 3, Oak Lawn 4
In a home-and-home series, the Midjacks had trouble putting the puck in the net, losing by one goal at the All-Seasons rink, but plugging the visitors. Scott Whittier, Mike Retzer and Jerry Weber scored goals in the first game and also picked up assists along with Bill McGuire and Rob Huder. In the second game, Huder scored a hat trick. Retzer led two goals and other scoring was by Jim Hines, John Verdine and Jerry Weber. Scottelli got four assists, with Scott Whittier, Huder and Weber getting one apiece. Mike Mattox shut the door in goal.

Arlington 3, Niles 4
Again losing to a team it had beaten handily at home, Arlington was edged by Niles in the first two minutes of play in a tough contest. Arlington's scoring was by Retzer, Huder and Whittier.

Arlington 4, Northbrook "A" 5
In a see-saw battle with the fine Northbrook club, the winning goal was scored with 17 seconds to go while Arlington had a player in the penalty box. Scottelli had two goals and two assists. Weber two goals. Assist also went to Huder and McGuire.

ARLINGTON BANTAMS
With 5:37 left in the game, Rich Palmer scored to give Arlington its second NHL victory over neighboring Palatine. Bob Bettis had tied it up for Arlington in the second period with his eighth goal of the season. Captain Jerry Dudzick and assists on both of the goals. John Roth stopped 15 shots for Arlington to preserve the win.

Woodward 9, Arlington Heights 1
Woodward is undoubtedly one of the finest Bantam teams in the State — well coached and very aggressive. Goals by John Roth made 28 saves Saturday but it wasn't enough to stop the Cleveland onslaught. Arlington's lone goal was scored in the second period by Mark Butler, assisted by Jerry Dudzick and Jeff Gardner.

Park Ridge 3, Arlington Heights 0
John Roth's 14 saves were enough to keep Arlington in the game all the way but Arlington's offense was unable to penetrate Park Ridge defense.

Arlington Heights 1, Oak Lawn 1
Coach Bill Schumann's charges traveled south to Oak Lawn Tuesday and came out with their 12th win of the season.

Tom McDonald was the offensive star of the game as he had one goal and three assists. Rich Palmer was right behind with two goals and one assist. Brian Schumann had a goal and an assist and Captain Jerry Dudzick had one assist. Rob Rosenquist and Ian Comly were impressive on defense as was Charlie John Roth. Wingers John Otzen and Mark Butler also played fine games.

Northbrook 1, Arlington Heights 1
Three third-period goals by a skating Northbrook team broke up a fine even hockey game and gave them a 4-2 win over Arlington.

Arlington's two goals were scored by Jeff Gardner and Captain Jerry Dudzick assisted by Bob Bettis.

It was a fine team effort and with a few breaks could have resulted in a tie or Arlington win.

Tri-City 2, Arlington Heights 1
Mark Monroe was outstanding in the nets for Arlington, making save after save, many at point-blank range.

Arlington's offense had many opportunities but the puck refused to go into the net. Arlington did score in the third period on a fine effort by Bob Bettis assisted by Rob Fredian.

Arlington Heights 3, Oak Lawn 2
In the thriller of the season with five seconds left in the game, Rich Palmer flipped the puck past the Oak Lawn goalie to give Arlington the win. Brian Lacker assisted.

Previously Jeff Gardner, who put on a fine individual performance, scored once in each of the first two periods assisted by Captain Jerry Dudzick and Doug Kinney. Paul Kula joined the team and played very well at wing. Ian Comly and goalies John Roth anchored the defense and were tough when they had to be.

SQUITS
Winfield 3, Arlington 0
The Squirts couldn't handle a strong Winfield team and went down in defeat in their last NHL game. Arlington compiled a 6-2 record in the first year of play and a third place divisional finish in a fine league.

Arlington 6, Palatine 0
John Fredian turned his first All-Star shut-out as Rich Gardner picked up two goals and an assist for a season total of 76 points. His second and last goal of the game was the team's 200th of the year. Tim Butler also had two goals; Larry Cahna, a goal and assist. Scott Paulson scored as Tom Reilly and Gary McLeod picked up single assists.

Arlington 3, Oak Lawn 2
Butler scored the hat trick, his 25th goal of the year and his 50th point, leading the Squirts to an easy victory at Ridgeway Rink. Andy Lund had two goals, while single goals and assists were registered by Lee Gray, Garber, and Cahna. Corey Hermann picked up two assists; as did Mike Aiello and Paulson. Don Chatten and McLeod each earned single assists.

Arlington 4, Niles 2
Garber, Hermann, Cahna and Lee Schmidt each got one goal. Cahna and Hermann also picked up assists and Bill Mitchell had two assists while Chatten obtained one.

Arlington 1, Minor Sabres 1
Aiello stopped 18 of 20 shots on goal for his best game of the season. Garber, assisted by Paulson, scored the Squirts' lone goal. McLeod was outstanding on defense.

Arlington 4, Willow Springs Sabres 2
The first and second periods saw-sawed back and forth, but the third period was all Arlington as Cahna completed his hat trick and Chatten added the clincher. Assists went to McLeod (2), Hermann, Reilly, Butler, and Andy Lund. With these three goals, Cahna hit 50 points for the year.

SQUIRT HOUSE LEAGUE
Arlington 3, Jaycees 2
The Jaycees jumped out to a two-goal lead early in the second period, both scored by Frank Macdoo and assisted by Dean Schreger. However, the first place J's fought back with two unassisted goals by Tim Ditch and Bob Hillstrom in the third period to effect the tie.

C.S.A. Data Services 6, Lattol 1
The Computers' balanced attack dominated the game as Eric Wold, Lee Schmidt, Todd Johnson, Butch Hofeld, Dave Rawls, and Dave Stanley each scored. Chris Troop had two assists with singles going to Mark Silverman, and Schmidt. Bobby Anderson, assisted by Kurt Karmetz and Mike Aiello, scored Lattol's lone goal.

C.S.A. Data Services 2, Arlington 3, 0
Ted Wolf was assisted by Troop and less than three minutes later the combination was reversed for the only scoring of the game. John Fredian earned his third shut-out by containing the J's.

Jaycees 4, Lattol 3
The Jaycees came up with three goals in the second period to overtake Lattol 3-2 and from then on it was a tight battle. Scoring for the winners were Dean Schreger, a solo goal; Ed Cunn and Frank Macdoo also had one each, while Pete Capps picked up the fourth goal. For Lattol: Anderson had two goals; Aiello, one goal and two assists; Karmetz and Mike More each gained an assist. More and Mike Johnson were outstanding on defense in a losing cause.

Arlington 3, Hoffman Shamrock 1
The J's traveled to the new Woodfield rink to play an exhibition game with Hoffman Shamrock. Bob Kuzlewski opened the scoring assisted by Tim Ditch. Ditch also scored two goals, and Bill Kuhn got an assist. Jim Gomez did a good job in his first game in the nets.

VOLVO PROTECTS THE PARTS THAT WITHSTAND COLLISIONS WITH PARTS THAT ABSORB COLLISIONS.

The Volvo sedan passenger compartment is surrounded by six steel pillars instead of the four you find in hardtops. And it has steel anti-intrusion bars in every door. This steel cage is protected with impact-absorbing front and rear ends that crumple on impact at a pre-measured rate. Even these crumple zones are protected by new hydraulic bumpers.

And when you leave our showroom in a new Volvo, we cover you with a 12-month/unlimited mileage Volvo warranty.

We do everything we can to protect you from the other guy. Even if it's us.

Other top athletes who have chosen Purdue, now home of former Northwestern coach Alex Agase, include All-Stater Mark Vitale of St. Charles and Rich Wetendorf from Maine West.

Elk Grove hockey facts

The Elk Grove Village Amateur Hockey Association Midstate suffered two heart-breaking losses to Palatine during the week in the elimination round of the Polar Dome playoffs.

On Monday Elk Grove was upset by Palatine 2-1 on a last minute short handed goal on a clearing pass. Elk Grove played its usual fine game, outshooting Palatine throughout the game but not being able to score the goals.

Mark Christensen scored Elk Grove's only goal assisted by Mark Rudolph and Joe Danca. After Palatine tied the game and stopped Elk Grove from scoring in the third period, they scored a goal while having a man in the penalty box in the last minute of play.

On Friday Elk Grove lost to Palatine 4-3 in a double-overtime. In one of the most courageous games the Grove team has played 6 periods of hockey.

Elk Grove took a 2-0 lead on goals by Larry Mitchell assisted by Rob Georke and Mark Christensen assisted by Joe Danca and Mike Tucker.

Then as in the two previous games the Palatine goalie stopped Grove from turning the game into a rout by making impressive saves. Palatine scored a goal before the 2nd period ended to make the score 2-1. In the 3rd period Palatine played good hockey, scoring two times to tie Elk Grove. Larry Mitchell scored for Grove unassisted.

The first overtime period was scoreless with Elk Grove gaining momentum and Palatine tiring.

The second overtime period with 10 minutes gone a pair of penalties. Those seldom called in clean playoff hockey, were called on Elk Grove. Palatine then scored with the two man advantage to win the game.

Next game for Elk Grove midstate will be the Rolling Meadows Invitational tournament on Friday, March 16 at 7:30 p.m. at Meadows.

When you're hot...

Longest winning streak for the Chicago White Sox last season was seven straight from April 18-26. Their longest losing streak was six, from July 14-18. Longest individual hitting streaks were 15 games, by both Rick Reichardt and Dick Allen.

Boat show winners

The winners are Doug Palce and Sharon Kunz of Arlington Heights, Bob Zillius and Mrs. William Selk of Palatine, James Young of Elk Grove and John Wiech of Mt. Prospect.

Three hot Leathernecks

Three former Herald area cagers have helped the Western Illinois junior-varsity to a record setting year. The young Leathernecks averaged 97.3 points en route to a 9-4 record.

Chet Pudlosky (Conant) averaged 11.2 points and 9.2 rebounds while starting at one forward. John Tilhou (Hersey) averaged 9.4 points while Andy Blitta (Prospect) scored at an 8.7 pace.

Only four dates remain for the public to watch Chicago Cougar practices at the Arlington Ice Spectrum. The Cougars will workout in the Spectrum Monday through Wednesday of next week and then again on Friday, March 30.

Practice times are Monday 10:50 a.m. to 12:50 p.m., Tuesday 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and Wednesday 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Cougars will hold a one-hour session beginning at 9:40 a.m. on Friday, March 30.

Mietus sets mat record

Tom Mietus, formerly of Maine West High School, has set a varsity mat record while competing for North Park College. He set a school record for most decisions with 19 while competing at 150 pounds.

Mietus is a College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin champion. He compiled a 26-6 season record for the Vikings.

Ms. Holthaus runner-up

Barbara Holthaus of Wheeling, a member of the Women's Gymnastics Club at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, recently placed second in a Gymnastics Sports Day held at the University of Illinois.

Florida fishing fine

Three more Herald area fishermen have won recognition with their catches in the Metropolitan Miami (Fla) Fishing Tournament.

S. C. Ellis of Prairie View caught 10 and 13-pound bonitos in the spin casting division. Pat and Dell McDonald of Arlington Heights caught a 31-pound barracuda and 18-pound black fin tuna in the light tackle division.

Zikes cashes

Les Zikes, manager of Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights, has picked up $930 in finishes at two Professional Bowlers Association-sponsored tournaments.

Zikes won $430 for 35th place at Milwaukee and $490 for 36th place at Winston-Salem, N. C.

Cycle headgear movement?

The Illinois Motorcycle Dealers Association reports that a new attempt will probably be made to make safety helmets mandatory for Illinois motorcycle riders.

Such a law was declared unconstitutional by Illinois courts approximately three years ago. However, 44 states require helmets.

Most important, the U.S. Supreme Court recently upheld the right of individual states to require safety helmets.

UNSTOPPABLE THROUGH most of the game, Wheeling's George Keage shoots over Maine South's Pete Boesen (42) and Bob Westman. The two Hawks, however, canned the crucial points in the end to give Maine a 61-59 Elk Grove Sectional victory. Keage led all with 22 points.

Gren trackmen bow to Thornton

Elk Grove Saturday became the second Mid-Suburban League indoor track team to find out how powerful Thornton is this year. Thornton totaled 88 points to the host Grenadiers' 61 and Niles North's 23.

Thornton, possibly the strongest team in the state at this stage, earlier had also whipped Fremd — like Elk Grove expected to be one of the best thinned teams in this area.

Elk Grove claimed just three first places, on Brian Powell's 9:43.7 in the two-mile run, Dave Jensen's .72 in the 60-yard low hurdles and Steve Busse's .79 in the 60 highs.

Charley White, perhaps the most brilliant in Thornton's galaxy of stars, was clocked in 1:57.1 (he had been below 1:54 indoors) and 4:34 in the mile. Max Tolan had :51.5 in the quarter-mile.

Damian Archbold was twice a runner-up for Elk Grove with fine marks — 2:06.8 in the 880 and 5-8 in the high jump. Jensen also had a pair of seconds with :8.0 in the high hurdles and 37-3 in the triple jump, a new event being used experimentally and scheduled to go into effect next year.

Other seconds for the Grens were Busse's 7.3 in the low hurdles, Powell's 4:39 in the mile, Mark Miezio's 48-5% in the shot put, Joe Lawson's 19-3% in long jump and the 880-yard relay unit's 1:46.1.

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the His & Hers league top female bowlers for the week were Dolores DeBartoli 507, Mary Ann Tate and Lee Santucci 466, Mary Dombrowski 456, and Lorraine Kastning 455. Top male bowlers were Greg DeOrio 596, Tony DeRosa 596, Chet Dombrowski 590, Earl Tate 499, and Tom Conroy 498.

No kick coming

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tommy Davis was successful on 234 consecutive extra points for the '49ers during the 1959-1965 seasons, the National Football League record. No present day active kicker is even close to Davis' mark.

At Hoffman Lanes

In the Sunday Night Mixed at Hoffman Lanes the scores were:

Wet 2 Craig 224-151-203-578, Joe Lewinski 213-167-190-570, Bob Jaworski 202-189-164-555, Don Wagner 202-164-187-553, Rose Krupa 155-215-181-551, Steve Gorlinski 179-212-158-549, Scott Little 209-167-167-534, Tony Altmayer 171-179-175-525, John Cieplinski 192-167-158-517, Gene Hoskins 199-158-159-516, Shirley Reynolds 186-166-156-508, Leroy Gorniak 164-166-177-507, Al Noehre 119-205-182-506, Bud Wilde 144-179-182-505, Dave Jones 176-150-178-504.

Margaret Court: so good in tennis she's boring?

by JOAN RYAN

Margaret Court is a puzzle. She plays tennis so well that her game is boring, positively boring.

While Billie Jean King and Rosemary Casale hop around the court with frenetic energy, bouncing as much as the ball, Margaret seems to materialize, ghost-like, in just the proper spot to meet the ball and place it beyond reach of her opponent. Her movements are silent and unobtrusive, like a glider settling quietly on a grassy meadow.

Her game is on display, not her emotions. She is calm, pacing herself. She plays enclosed in a private glassed-in closet, unaware of the crowd, and even unaware of her opponent. She is the immovable object of the women's tennis world today and she won again last weekend in Chicago on the Virginia Slims circuit, beating Billie Jean in three sets.

There are standards she has set for herself and goals she has outlined for her future that display a much more liberated woman than the drum-beating, marching feminists.

Her liberation has nothing to do with equal rights, equal pay or abortions on demand. She is liberated because of her inner strength, self-confidence and most importantly, her self-respect. She evaluates tennis with distracting honesty.

"Women's tennis just can't match the depth seen in the men's game. When I started in tennis, the women were paid one-fourth what the men were getting. We've improved our game, but we're still not equal. Women in tennis should get half to three-quarters what the men get. A 12th ranked woman couldn't draw as many as a 12th ranked man. There are only about five good women tennis players now."

Actually, there are six, including Margaret Court. Her ranking included Billie Jean King, Chris Evert, Evonne Goelagong, Kerry Melville and Nancy Gunter. It wasn't false modesty on Margaret's part to omit her own name. It was her calm self-assurance that anyone who knows tennis would automatically include her.

Emilee (Mrs. Sargent) Shriver, who presented the winning check to Mrs. Court in Bethesda, Md., Virginia Slims tournament in January, called her "possibly the best woman tennis player in the world." Mrs. Shriver was upstaged by the teddy, crowing 18-month-old Daniel, Margaret and Barry Court's young son, who delighted the crowd and flustered Emilee as she made her glowing tribute.

Margaret is as unperturbed by motherhood as she is by her tennis success. "After I had the baby, and nursed him three months, well, I thought I'd have a go at tennis again," she tossed out as casually as a last-minute grocery list.

"I started training and I found it hard. At first I thought I might not make it but I came to America and won a tournament. I was surprised and only then did I think I might make a success of it."

"Make a success of it" is an understatement. Margaret makes mincemeat of her opponents. Her string of tournament wins and match victories requires an electronic calculator. "Oh, I don't know really how many I've won," is a casual statement that contradicts a fierce competitive strain in the lady from Australia.

"When you're gifted, you should make the best of your talent. My husband, Barry, he's in yachting, and he knows what it is to train and work hard. Without his support, I wouldn't have tried to come back after having the baby."

"But it's determination. Anything I do I like to do well. I could have been an athlete or a tennis player. I ran the 200-meter. But at 15, I decided I'd have to choose and develop one talent. So I chose tennis."

"I made up my mind to be the first woman from Australia to win at Wimbledon." And after that was accomplished in 1963, Margaret set higher goals for herself. "Then I wanted to win the Grand Slam. I'd won three of the four titles, and in 1970, I took them all."

"I've got two or three good years left in tennis. And I'd like to have another go at the Grand Slam. But when I retire, I wouldn't like to work and leave Danny home with a nanny. I'll probably teach tennis on the court we have in our yard back in Australia. I enjoy cooking and household chores. I'll be happy to settle down. And after having Danny, I wouldn't mind a few more little boys."

Margaret Court closed the interview with finality and polite equanimity just as she polishes off a tennis match. She may be so good that she's boring. But she leaves a string of defeated opponents looking as awkward and flustered as the Queen of Hearts left hers in Alice in Wonderland, trying to force a win, using a flamingo for a racquet and a hedgehog for a ball.

Wood excels at Kentucky

Roger Wood, former Wheeling basketball player, has proven himself a valuable addition to the University of Kentucky junior-varsity program.

Only a freshman, Wood is averaging 9.9 rebounds and 13.4 points for the Wildcats. He has personal highs of 20 points against Auburn and 23 rebounds against the U of K Dental School.

Margaret Court—game, not emotions on display.

HITS OFFICIATING

Dear Herald:

Where does the Mid-Suburban League get its basketball referees? I believe the handicapped have their place in life and have an equal opportunity for jobs, but I don't think a blind man makes a very good referee. Apparently the Mid-Suburban higher-ups do. The officiating in the MSL this year stunk.

Although I am a Hersey student, I am not writing to say the referees were the cause of the Huskies' third-place finish in the North Division. I am writing about the plight of the big man in the MSL. Players like Tom Bergen of Prospect and Dave Corzine of Hersey took too much physical punishment. They were constantly pushed, shoved and elbowed under the offensive boards with no foul called. On the other end of the court, the slightest contact is a foul.

I'm not saying fouls should not be called. In fact I think more fouls should be called, but against the player who pushes, not the ones who happen to brush shoulders as they pass.

The MSL is blessed with several really good big men, so why handicap them? Heights should be an asset, not a handicap.

I guess I would make a bad referee because I just could not let myself purposely deter an individual's career for the sake of a closer game.

SEEKS SOFTBALL OUTLET

Dear Editor:

My wife and I have just moved to Mount Prospect from Springfield, Mo. First I would like to compliment the people on what a nice, quite community they have established in such a hectic, fast-paced environment.

Second, I would like to ask you why there is never any mention of softball in your sports pages? In Springfield, softball is king. There are over 300 teams in leagues, not bad for a city of 100,000. Every other year they host the National Fast Pitch Tournament and have had many rivalries with such great teams as the Aurora, Ill. Sealmasters, Amixter Brothers Bombers (Skokie, Ill.) and Decatur, Ill. Surely with these great teams all around, Mount Prospect has some type of leagues. I personally have played on the defending Midwest Regional championship team and I'm interested in playing someplace here. Does anyone play softball? Help, please!

SPIEZIO NOT WRONGED

Dear Herald:

I don't understand what all the fuss is about concerning the White Sox' release of third baseman Ed Spiezio. Everyone keeps saying or writing that this was such a big mistake and that Spiezio did such a great job last year filling in for injured Bill Melton.

They must be making up statistics or imagining things. I will admit that Spiezio didn't do too badly considering the pressure of the race. He did win one big game with a home run. But does that one homer make him a ballplayer? Not by a long shot. He still hit only .238 (.188 in the pressure games of September) had a very poor total of only 22 runs batted in for over half a season. And he certainly isn't fast or a great fielder.

Then Spiezio was foolish enough to demand a $10,000 raise. For what? The Sox offered him a reasonable raise. He had a chance to make very good money (probably close to $40,000) for doing very little and he blew it. Salary demands of professional athletes are getting to be ridiculous.

The Sox pointed out that the only way they could possibly have used Spiezio was if Melton has any more troubles — which looks very unlikely. It looks like Melton is completely healthy and the Sox will prove to have made the right move.

This is a good lesson in what happens when players become too greedy. I wish Spiezio luck, but I'm tired of hearing what a bum deal he was given. Many others could have done just as well — or better.

NO BOLD MOVES BY CUBS

Dear Fans Forum:

A Cubs fan told me the other day that the White Sox didn't have a good enough team to win the pennant and certainly didn't deserve all the publicity they're getting. Then he started this absurd position-by-position analysis of the Cubs and Sox.

Frankly, people are tired of the Cubs and their basically stand-pat lineup. People are talking about the White Sox because they're TRYING to bring a pennant to Chicago by making bold moves, trading away established players and getting something in return. What have the Cubs really done since the 1969 collapse? Have they traded a Santo or Kessinger or Beckert to get something in return? Have they made any bold moves in trying to bring a title to Chicago? People are talking about the White Sox because they're trying to bring a winner here. Every year is a new look, not the same old tired look of Kessinger, Beckert, Williams, Santo, Hickman, Hum-dley . . . and on and on.

PIRATE PRESSURE. Palatine guard Andy Knotek keeps St. Charles all-state player Mark Vitali in check in the backcourt. Vitali, with a 28-point average, was held to 17, but he and his mates showed Palatine a lightening fast break on the way to an 81-52 sectional victory at Fremd. St. Charles raised its record to 21-7 and ousted 9-14 Palatine.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Five months ago I had severe pains in my lower left side and went to the hospital as an emergency. After X-rays, I was diagnosed as having ulcerative colitis and put on a bland, low-residue diet which I've been on since and lost 30 pounds.

Four weeks later at a checkup I was found to have low blood pressure and my doctor started me on B-12 shots but my pressure has been up to 110 one week and then down to 100 the next. This has been going on like this for several months. Will these B-12 shots do any good?

After five months, I had another attack of pain more severe than the previous one and was told there was nothing I could do but stay on the diet. The doctor also said that this will occur again. I can't understand this. Can you please give me some information.

Dear Reader — Ulcerative colitis is not a very pleasant illness. It is an inflammation causing ulceration of the lining of the colon. The bowel becomes very irritable causing pain. The marked diarrhea that frequently accompanies ulcerative colitis can result in severe weight loss. Sometimes the ulceration causes severe bleeding as well.

It is not known what really causes ulcerative colitis. It doesn't seem to be caused by a bacterial infection of any type. Patients require different forms of treatment depending on what their problem really is, but Dr. Louis Zetzel of Harvard University who is an authority on this problem, does not feel that a low-residue diet is necessarily useful. It is advisable, however, to restrict cold liquids and any foods or drinks that are known to stimulate or irritate the colon. The diet should eliminate all milk products. Milk seems to stimulate recurrence of attacks in patients with ulcerative colitis. If you have not already discontinued the use of milk and all products containing milk, I'd strongly recommend that you do so.

MEDICINES sometimes are given that will help to relax the colon and alleviate pain. In severe cases, hormonal therapy is sometimes indicated, however, it should not be used unless absolutely necessary. With attention to diet, taking medicines to help relieve the spasm, and elimination of as much of life's stresses as possible, many individuals remain fairly comfortable with minimal difficulty for long periods of time. There are, however, individuals who do have serious complications that develop in the course of the illness and require more vigorous treatment or even surgery.

Concerning your blood pressure, I think your weight loss is adequate explanation for that. Many normal people have blood pressures no higher than 100 or 110. I have been repeatedly impressed by the effect of weight loss on blood pressure and am just sorry that more people who have elevated blood pressure and are overweight don't get rid of any excess fat they have. Your doctor may be giving you B-12 for a variety of reasons, but I doubt that it will have any significant effect on your blood pressure unless you have an associated anemia that responds to B-12 treatment.

Dr. Cohen heads staff at Alexian

Dr. Sheldon Cohen, 43, has been appointed chief of staff at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Though Dr. Cohen's primary commitment will be to Alexian hospital, he will continue a limited private practice. Dr. Cohen is the chief medical officer of the hospital corporation and is directly responsible for the day-to-day operations of the medical staff.

Under new medical-dental bylaws drafted by a committee of physicians, the medical staff is brought into the organizational pattern of the rest of the medical center so it is answerable to the board of trustees through Brother Ferdinand Leyva, president of the hospital corporation. Ten clinical department chairmen also will devote half their time to the medical center in salaried management positions in addition to the full-time chief of staff.

Dr. Cohen lives in Morton Grove with his wife and their two children. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois and received his doctor of medicine degree from the university's college of medicine.

DR. COHEN has been instructor at Loyola University's Stritch School of Medicine. He also served as a member of the board of directors of North Suburban Association for Health Resources, a voluntary non-profit association promoting health services in the Northwest suburbs. He has practiced medicine in Addison since 1964.

A hospital spokesman said the medical center's growth during its less than seven-year history was the primary factor allowing the hospital to "take this major step in medical staff organization in order to deliver better and even more efficient care to the communities it serves."

Health care was the first matter to which the Board of Trustees of Alexian Brothers Medical Center Inc. addressed itself when it obtained the authority to operate the hospital in 1971, the spokesman said.

"Determining that the only way to properly monitor the way medicine is practiced in a hospital is through the organization of the medical staff, the board (of trustees) recognized its responsibility to see that the medical staff organization properly functions to guarantee superior care," he said.

The spokesman said the board of trustees asked the medical staff to draft a set of bylaws that would provide a structure through which the medical staff could operate effectively to meet its goals. Chief of staff was a new position provided in the by laws.

Anti-junk phone call list? It won't help

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Virginia Citizens Consumer Council of nearby Alexandria has hit upon a plan to make Virginia citizen consumers less vulnerable to junk telephone calls.

It wants the phone company to compile a list of subscribers who object to telephone solicitations.

Presumably, if your name were on the list you would no longer receive calls inviting you to invest in cemetery lots, life-time dancing lessons and half-acre lots in new resort communities.

But somehow I have a feeling the promoters of such enterprises aren't going to give up that easily.

MANY CITIZEN consumers may not be aware of the tremendous amount of research and preparation that goes into a telephone sales campaign.

Telephonic solicitors don't just pickup the directory, open it at random and start dialing. No indeed! Before they ring your number, they give you a background investigation that is the equivalent of an FBI field check.

Through discreet inquiries and secret surveillance, telephone solicitors obtain data about your personal habits. Often, electronic eavesdropping equipment is used.

Primarily, the solicitors are interested in learning at what hour you customarily have dinner and what dishes you may be serving on a given night.

Studies have shown the best moment to make the call is when the citizen consumer being solicited has just picked up his fork preparatory to having his first bite of broiled flounder, or some other dish that cools quickly. Split-second timing is vital.

SINCE THE solicitor is dialing blind, so to speak, an associate manning the bugging equipment synchronizes the operation over a walkie-talkie radio.

"Get set," he barks. "Mrs. Burnbridge has just taken the flounder out of the oven."

This signal insures Mr. Burnbridge will be called to the phone at the exact instant his fork is in mid-flight.

As a back-up system, solicitors employ intelligence agents to report when citizen consumers who are at home alone start taking showers.

Having gone to so much trouble and expense to make his campaign effective, a solicitor isn't likely to pass over your name merely because it appears on the phone company's proscribed list.

He'll make the call anyway and claim he accidentally dialed the wrong number.

George Jessel from batboy to comic

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — George Jessel is not a throwback to the good old days. He is the embodiment of them.

In the space of a few minutes the 75-year-old toastmaster, comedian, God-awful singer and pre-eminent eulogist can hit you with more bromides than any man living or dead.

With his toupee fixed at a rakish angle, and his jacket bedecked with medals, Jessel was the soul of the 1920s.

"People ask me why I wear these medals," said Jessel, although he was not asked. "And I tell 'em, like Diamond Jim Brady once said about his diamonds, 'If you got 'em, wear 'em'."

"Some of these medals were given to me by George Patton and generals like Abrams, Westmoreland and Admiral Zumwalt. And one from General Grant which I'm not wearing now."

JESSEL IS ABOUT half convinced that had he not turned to the theater he might have become the first great Jewish baseball player. He says no less a personage than John McGraw agreed with him.

"I was a batboy for the New York Giants back in 1910," Jessel recalled. "I think they won the pennant that year."

The Giants didn't win the pennant until Jessel left in 1911.

"Anyway," he continued, "I sang in the clubhouse after the game and the players would throw me quarters. If the team lost they'd yell, 'Get outta here you Jew bum. You're a jinx'."

Other objects have been thrown at Jessel down through the years when he began to sing, but George is nothing if not persistent.

For better or worse Jessel said he will sing the National Anthem when the Dodgers open their home season in Los Angeles this spring.

Profile

Waltons' granny religion student

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ellen Corby, the peppery grandma of "The Waltons," has no family of her own and enjoys reporting each day to the set where all the youngsters who play the Walton children automatically become her grandchildren.

Mrs. Corby, divorced many years ago from her cameraman husband, lives alone with a Burmese cat named Charlie Brown in an 80-year-old house just below the Sunset Strip.

She's proud of the home which is ancient by Hollywood standards.

It's a quaint abode with walnut balustrades, an old-fashioned pantry and two bedrooms. The pantry comes in handy because the actress dislikes food shopping forays and can stock up for weeks at a time.

SHE BOUGHT the house 17 years ago when her mother was alive. Throughout her life, even during her married years, Mrs. Corby lived with her mother who died nine years ago.

Since her mother's death Mrs. Corby has become a devout student of eastern and western religions.

In the second bedroom, which she uses as an office, there is a collection of religious oddments. One is a sign bearing a quotation from the Oriental philosopher Lao Tse.

"As Rivers Have Their Source in Some Far Off Mountains, So the Human Spirit Has Its Source to Find This Fountain of Spirit Which Is To Find the Sacred of Heaven and Earth."

Mrs. Corby's home can best be described as original. It is filled with mementoes picked up on her travels around the world.

There is a cluster of Indian tables, a Persian rug, a Chinese porcelain horse. The walls are crowded with oil paintings from Rome, Spain and Denmark, where her mother and father were born.

Mrs. Corby is a veteran of more than 500 motion pictures and television shows. Now she doesn't mind arising at 5:30 a.m. for yoga exercises and meditation before reporting to Warner Brothers where she works in the CBS series from 7:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

WHEN SHE'S not working in the show Mrs. Corby often can be found in that second bedroom pecking at a typewriter.

She is writing a novel which she describes as "not a boy-meets-girl love story."

There is an independent spirit about Ellen Corby which comes through in her characterization of Grandma. When the mood seizes her she rolls off in her camper for scenic areas in Southern California.

This year when the show goes on hiatus she plans a trip back East to visit old friends.

"I'm not making any firm plans or even plotting my journey in advance," she says. "I'll take Charlie Brown and the two of us will start off down the highway, stopping when we find a place we like."

Fed up with motion picture industry

Alex Cord in the market for TV series

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Human nature being what it is, Alex Cord is currently trying to find a TV series after turning them down for many years.

Maybe "Genesis II" will do it for him. A pilot-movie by that title will be aired by CBS in March — the tentative date is March 23 — and the network is pretty high on it. It's the new one from Gene Roddenberry, the man who created Star Trek.

Cord says that for 10 years or so they were sounding on his door to get him to do a series. He turned them down flat. But, like most movie actors, he has become disenchanted with the motion picture situation — "the business is falling apart" — and so, for the last two years, he has been looking for a series to do.

"I REMEMBER being with Mike Connors when we were both in 'Stagecoach,'" Cord says. "He got the offer to do Mannix then. I wondered why he took it. He said it was because of the money."

"At the time, if I had gotten that same offer I would have turned it down. But, in retrospect, I was wrong. I think now it would have been smarter to take it and Mike made the right move. He doesn't have to work for the rest of his life — and where am I?"

If "Genesis II" has anything of Star Trek's class he may be on the threshold of something good. It's a story of a scientist today who is caught underground while working on suspended animation. When he's rescued he finds it is 155 years later and he's in a world wrecked by nuclear wars.

ALTHOUGH CORD has never been a science fiction fan he thinks the series has possibilities.

"There's so much interest in science fiction today," he says. "Look how our world has advanced in my own lifetime. I can remember when milk was delivered by a horse-drawn wagon and I've seen men go to the Moon. All in one generation."

Personally, though, Cord is one of those people who prefers to be outdoors, to have his hands dirty, to build his own house. It is the premise of "Genesis II" which intrigues him, however, and he feels the plot can take him, as the protagonist, in many different and fascinating directions.

Cord is one of Hollywood's most interesting people. He began as a rodeo rider, turned actor and now he's excited about the first novel he ever wrote. He just finished it.

"I loved writing it," he says. "It was a great experience. I hope I can get it published. And I think it would make a great movie, even though there's no part in it for me."

SOMETHING ELSE about Cord which is unusual is his marriage. He and his wife, Joanna Pettet, have a theory about marriage which is, at least, different.

They think that being apart as much as they are together is a good thing. Alex says he is "hopelessly in love" with Joanna but feels that he also needs an equal amount of time by himself.

"I value my privacy," he says. "I don't like to be tied down. If I'm out with the boys and, at three in the morning, decide I'm having a good time and want to stay, I don't want to feel that I must go home because my wife is waiting for me. If she's sick or something, that's different — then I go home because I want to, not because I feel I have to."

They have a son, Damian, 4, but don't want any more children. Alex and Joanna are among those concerned about overpopulation. They might adopt a child — preferably an Oriental or black baby — but plan on having no more of their own.

Palestine Refugees 'live in filth'

TRIPOLI, Lebanon — The Al Badawi camp for Palestine refugees is ensconced at the foot of the Cedar Mountains, overlooking the Mediterranean Sea, and surrounded by endless fields of olive groves. The 8,000 residents say it was built by the United Nations and is reputedly one of the best of its kind in the Middle East.

That said, it should be added it's a festering pest hole.

Al Badawi is overcrowded, underdeveloped and unfit for human existence. Built after the 1948 Arab-Israeli war, it crowded five and six to a small room. Open sewers run between the shelters. Sanitation facilities plug regularly. Roofs leak. Windows are out. And the smell, says an official, "is a combination of what we eat and what we excrete."

BAD AS THE camp is, however, Al Badawi can claim no distinction. Since 1948 more than 15 similar compounds have been built in Lebanon and three dozen more in other Middle East nations. Together the camps hold 40 per cent of the 1.5 million UN-registered Palestine refugees, half of whom have been living some years ago, they have been massacred and brutalized. Governments owe them no allegiance, thus no guarantees. The refugees are stringently subject to the laws in the land of their settlement, but receive virtually no benefit of citizenship. "If a Lebanese is laid off work," says an Al Badawi resident, "he is helped by the government. If a Palestinian is laid off he is told to get the hell back to his camp and shut up."

For many in the camps, shutting up would be suicide. Already they feel the world has forgotten them and intends to let them suffer in silence. Thus some, like 47-year-old Issa Ahmed, proclaim at any opportunity: "We will force the world to listen." The Munich massacre, numerous airline hijackings, the recent seizure of diplomats in the Sudan, including two Americans, and continuing terrorism against Israel is part of the shout for world attention.

In Ahmed's case, his cry is understandable. Once a farming land owner in Palestine, he says he fled in 1948 just in front of "Jew bullets." He wandered for miles, set up a tent in Tripoli for some years, finally settled at Al Badawi. Today, as an $80 a month garbage collector, he administers to the needs of a family unit of 22 — including 12 children of his own, seven children of a dead brother, and other relatives. They live in two small houses here.

Ahmed gets some help from the U.N. Not much. The U.N. budget of $50 million a year figures out, say Al Badawi officers, to about $1.50 per person (in the form, mostly, of food) per month at this camp. And if the figures are not altogether reliable, it is a fact that aid to the camp is on the downswing. The problem is too immense for the U.N., says one international worker: "Nations no longer are willing to give the money. Russia, for one, has never contributed."

SO ISSA AHMED, sensing even harder times ahead, says the only way left for Palestinian refugees is to "get our guns and fight Israel, or fight anyone who supports Israel." Camp leader Ibrahim agrees thoroughly: "Personally, I hope the U.N. stops doing anything for us. Then our people will have no alternative but to fight. We must convince the world that we do not want welfare. All the dollars in the U.S., all the pounds in England will not satisfy us. We want only what is ours by law — we want our land, Palestine, back."

And they will get it, they insist. Many refugees wear their poverty and misery as a reminder of vengeance unfulfilled. There has been criticism that Palestinians seize few opportunities to improve their community lot, and this is true; the idea being not to root, not to get even remotely comfortable, not to give any permanence to their lives.

Thus the shame continues, with no foreseeable answer but more violence. "I will return to Palestine," says camp leader Ibrahim, "and so will everyone of us here. Don't you see it will never end for us, this goal? Look here at this film. Look at my people. Do you think we would ever allow ourselves to die like this, in stench?"

POSTSCRIPT. A few hours after this story was gathered, the Al Badawi camp was attacked from the sea by Israeli commandos. Invading soldiers, looking for Palestine guerrillas, blew up several buildings and ignited dozens of fires. Upwards of 20 refugees were killed, some in their sleep, including at least a few children, who are among thousands of refugees who have indeed died in stench. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

has remained largely unchanged, except for deterioration, from its original intention as a temporary shelter. Today, a quarter of a century later, except for an occasional TV antenna, it's like something from the dark ages.

Constructed in an unimaginative one-story square, it is a thousand cement huts filled with people and insects and limping dogs. The main street runs four hundred yards alone urine-yellowed walls, dead rats, ducking lizards, piles of trash and gaping-grimy children. Most of the 1,500 families have rooted here for nearly two decades. Virtually all the children have never known anything else. "These are people," says camp leader Ali Ibrahim, "but see them — they live like swine."

No argument. The residents are often without home or country for almost two decades.

The situation, ignored or not fully understood by most of the world, is the most complex shame of the Arab-Israeli hostilities. Once dominant in Palestine, the refugees were chased out (or fled) during the 1948 war. Palestine became Israel and the Palestinians became exiles whom nobody — not even Arab nations — really wanted. Thus the U.N.-supervised camps. Today more than half a million people exist in the compounds, waiting for some solution as to their permanent fate.

THE WAIT obviously has been no treat. Refugees in Lebanon and other nations are human beings in limbo. At best, they have been merely tolerated by their host nations; at worse, as in Jordan of Callousness a surprise to many Sinai tragedy: an Israeli My Lai?

JERUSALEM—It took U. S. Army Lt. William Calley the better part of a bad day to eliminate at least 22 people in the Vietnam hamlet of My Lai. It took the Israeli Air Force only 15 minutes to create its own My Lai — the destruction of the Libyan airliner and more than 100 passengers over the occupied Sinai Peninsula.

And just as the apparent majority of American people has still not — after several years of considering the facts of the Vietnam massacre — decided that their soldier was wrong, so too does and will the Israeli population overwhelmingly support their military's actions.

There is some woe here, to be sure, that so many helpless civilians had to be caught in the shoot-down. But the hard sentiment is, as numerous patriots coldly put it, "better Arabs dead than Jews." The callousness comes as a surprise to many foreigners here.

Israelis lost their image as a long suffering, almost pacifistic, people. Following brilliant victories in three wars with their Middle East enemies, the feeling lingered that they were still totally humanitarian. That feeling, much to their adversaries' glee, is now shaken. A disgusted tourist here, purchasing an air ticket "on the first plane out of this place," said it for a number of visitors shocked by the airline slaughter:

"I ALWAYS felt sorry for the Jews. Hitler and all that. I'm Christian but I was very happy when Israel was created. I've read for years how they have made this land bloom and advance. But now I look around here, I talk to these people, and God it really scares me. They're so hardboiled it makes the John Birch Society look leftwing. I talked to one cat and you know what he said? He said any Jew that doesn't agree the Libyan jet had it coming is a traitor. These people are really scary."

The tourist's view, no doubt, is exaggerated. But for Americans especially, used to a cornucopia of public opinion, the Israelis can appear to be regimented in a kind of lock-step chauvinism, particularly concerning the military.

Solidly into the 1970s as a nation, Israel is decades behind the Western world's modern concept of military patriotism. Where Americans are tearing down some of their statues to war, Israelis are just putting theirs up. "When they play the national anthem here," says one observer, "you could get all two and a half million of them to pick up muskets and march on any nation in the world."

THE PHENOMENON has its obvious reasons. Israel is young (25 years this May) and feisty. Israel has a reported 300 combat aircraft able to hold more than 100 million bitter Arabs in virtual geographic humiliation. Israel is also proud: In 1948 fewer than 600,000 Israelis defended the state against four invading Arab nations.

Small wonder, then, the John Wayneism here, where one of the first gifts some Israeli kids request from smiling parents is a replica of a Uzi submachinegun.

Out of necessity, one, an esprit-de-corps, two, the Israeli military has become — with the possible exception of tourism — the most important preoccupation in the land. Israelis spend nearly four of every ten tax dollars for defense. The state cadre, according to one foreign publication, currently totals 75,000 troops and can be bloated to at least 300,000 in 72 hours with the mobilization of reserves.

"IT'S FAIR TO SAY," nods one educator, "we're almost, a military society. But a righteous one. Soldiers are genuine heroes in this country."

Indeed. Every able-bodied boy and girl is eligible for conscription, and heroism, at age 18 (after active service, men remain in the national guard until age 55;

And few complain. It's simply not done. Some girls wiggle out of duty by marrying — but male draft dodgers are as rare as wings on worms. "It's an honor for me to serve," says one hairy youth, who in the U. S. would probably be marching on the Pentagon. "You Americans can afford to be antimilitary, but we Israelis know our army strength is the only reason we survive."

NOT EVERYBODY in Israel agrees with this line. Occasionally, some free thinker will step forward to protest conformity.

Li. Doran Kiesel, for example, has two months to serve in the Israeli army and he can't wait for the end. "I think the shooting down of that Libyan plane was the worst crime in Israel's history. And then the people try to excuse it."

Kiesel, 22, who holds both Israeli and German papers, says he came to Israel with great expectations, but in three years he has seen many of the more idealistic ones shattered.

"Recently I met a 5-year-old boy in the street, and he looked up at me and said, 'You're a soldier and you have to kill me.'"

"I shook my head, but the boy insisted — 'You're a soldier and you have to kill me.' I tried to explain to him that soldiers do not have to kill, that they do only when absolutely necessary, but it was no use. He was brainwashed — at 5 years old. That's what they do to people here."

Yet for any opinion like that in Israel today, there is thunderous, even threatening, opposition. When young Kiesel made his remarks to a newsmen, he was overheard by a man named David Antebi, who retorted:

"How can you say that and still wear your uniform?"

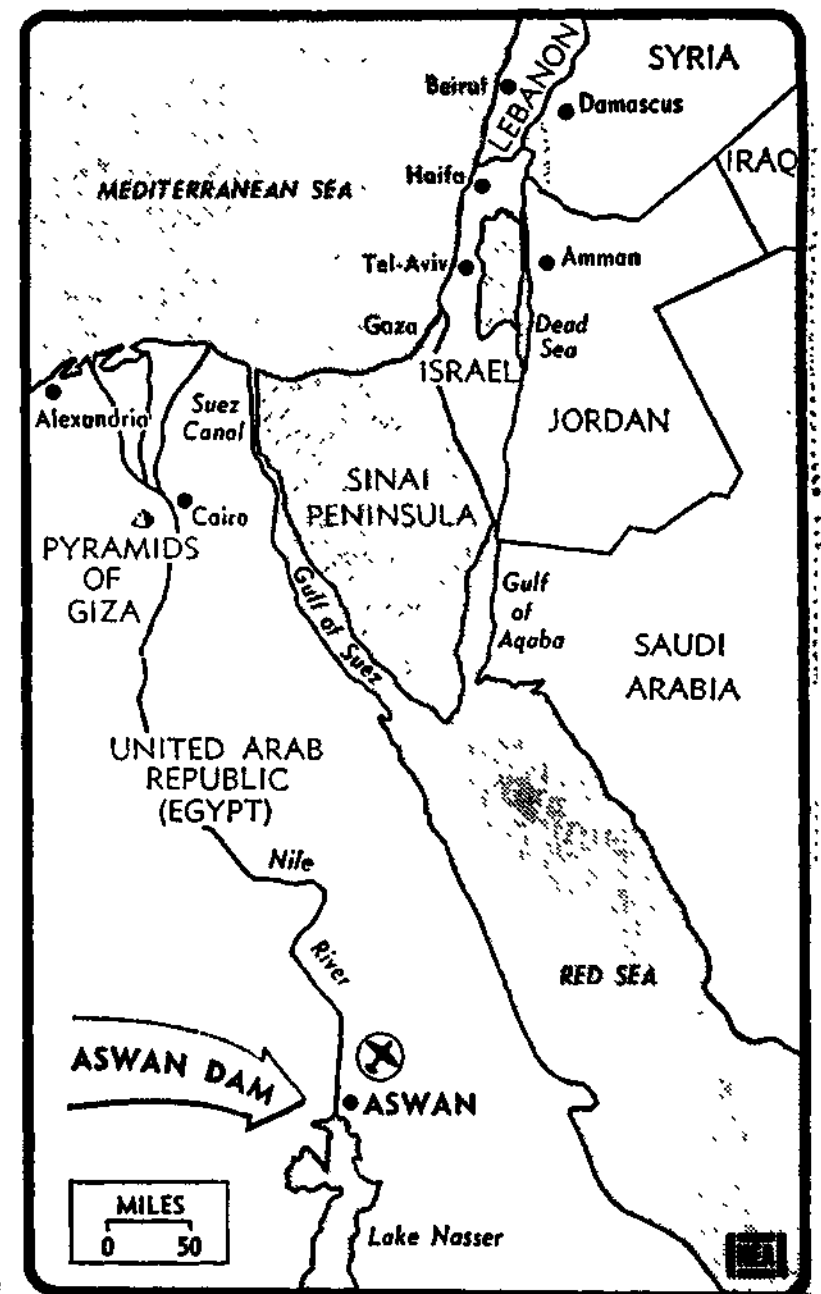

ANTEBI, A middle-aged tour guide, speaks for many when he says, "Anybody who runs Israel down should go and live some place else."

Thus it is, in this atmosphere, few today chance running Israel down. National unity is still too precious to treat lightly. Nationhood is still too fragile to allow creeping cynicism.

So: Our country right or wrong. No doubt a monument will be built somewhere in the Sinai, as monuments of battles are built everywhere here, to commemorate the Libyan plane crash, the instant My Lai.

But, some day, when there's peace, no doubt the real Jewish conscience will tear it down.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Where Americans are tearing down some of the war statues, Israelis are putting theirs up. "Play the national anthem and 2½ million people will march on any nation in the world."

KEEPING HIS powder dry, in a sense, this Israeli soldier loads machine gun belts with ammo while bumping over the Jordan Valley Desert.

Last year,
all John Benson saved was $54.32.

This year, he joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Poor John. Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically set aside from his check before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds - for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Tv Mailbag

c/o Paddock Publications P.O. Box 280 Arlington Heights, Illinois 60006

I'm a devoted fan of Sonny Bono (you know Sonny and Cher). I would simply love it if you would print a picture of Sonny in your great TV Mailbag and give some information about him. What is his address and how old is he?

M.M.
Arlington Heights

Sonny Bono

Since you are such a great reader, let us tell you a bit about one of your favorite entertainers—the Sonny Bono! Sonny was born Salvatore Bono in Detroit, Mich. of Feb. 16, 1940 and moved to L.A. at the age of seven. He started writing songs at 16. One of his earliest compositions, "Koko Joe", wasn't recorded until 13 years later and became a best seller for the Righteous Brothers.

Sonny started in the record business as an apprentice producer, tried his own recording company, and held a job as promotion man for another recording firm. As promotion man, Sonny was allowed to work as a background singer.

Bono met Cher on a double date and they were married October 27, 1964. They began singing together as background singers and finally decided to venture on their own as a duo. Their third attempt of "Baby Don't Go" became a hit.

The couple went on to star in the movie "Good Times" and in 1968 Sonny wrote and produced a film called "Chastity". One year later they made their nightclub debut as a musical-comedy act. In 1971 they starred in a summer comedy-variety series which caught on so well that they became a regular show. Write to Sonny (and Cher, too, if you like) in care of CBS-TV, 51 W. 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

My husband and I have a bet about the movie "Picnic" which stars Kim Novak and William Holden. He says the Holden's rich college friend was Cliff Robertson and I say no. I'll have to wait on him for two weeks if I'm wrong.

P.H.
Palatine

Get on your comfortable shoes and be prepared to wait on him—he is right. Cliff played the part! The movie won several honors in 1956. Maybe if you do a tremendous job of waiting on your husband, he won't hold you to the two week pay-off.

Could you please give me some information about Linda Kaye Henning and Mike Minor who play on PETTICOAT JUNCTION? How old are they? Is either one of them married? If so, to whom? Does either of them have any children?

J.S.
Arlington Heights

Linda Kaye Henning

Both Linda Kaye Henning, 28, and Mike Minor, 32, are married—in fact they are married to one another! The ceremony followed a romance that began on the set of PETTICOAT JUNCTION. A year before their real-life wedding, they were married in the TV series. Mike has one son by a former marriage.

I'm wondering how long it takes for you to answer questions that are sent to you. Could you inform me about the actor Ryan O'Neal and tell me where I may write to him?

B. Johnson

Ryan O'Neal

Nominated for the highest award in the film industry, the Oscar, Ryan marked his film career with success very early. O'Neal was selected from literally hundreds of possible candidates for the "Love Story" role and also to play opposite Barbra Streisand in "What's Up Doc?".

O'Neal had the experience in front of the camera to support his portrayals—he was the veteran of years of experience in TV's PEYTON PLACE.

Ryan now lives in a beach-side home with his wife actress Leigh Taylor-Young and they have one child. His first marriage to actress Joanna Moore gave him two children. Enthusiastic about an unusual sport, handball, O'Neal spends a great deal of his off-the-set-time on the court. You may write to him in care of Warner Bros. Studios, 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, Calif. 91505.

We try to answer as many letters as possible for you. Since there are many letters sent to us, it is almost impossible for us to publish answers to all of them. Keep writing—hopefully we'll get YOUR letter answered.

I would like some information about Richard Hatch.

K.A.
Palatine

In recent years actors have been disappearing from New York by the thousands, headed for the greener fields of Hollywood, where the TV series grow. Richard made the trip, but in reverse—from Los Angeles to New York.

This young actor—who is also a singer and a dancer—isn't really too new to TV on either coast. He has been featured in "Never Too Young" and a special as well as in lots of commercials, which help to pay an actor's rent. Richard remains single and lives in Manhattan where he is still discovering the joys of N.Y. and apparently, never regretting his 'go East' trip.

What has happened to Charlie Weaver? How old is he?

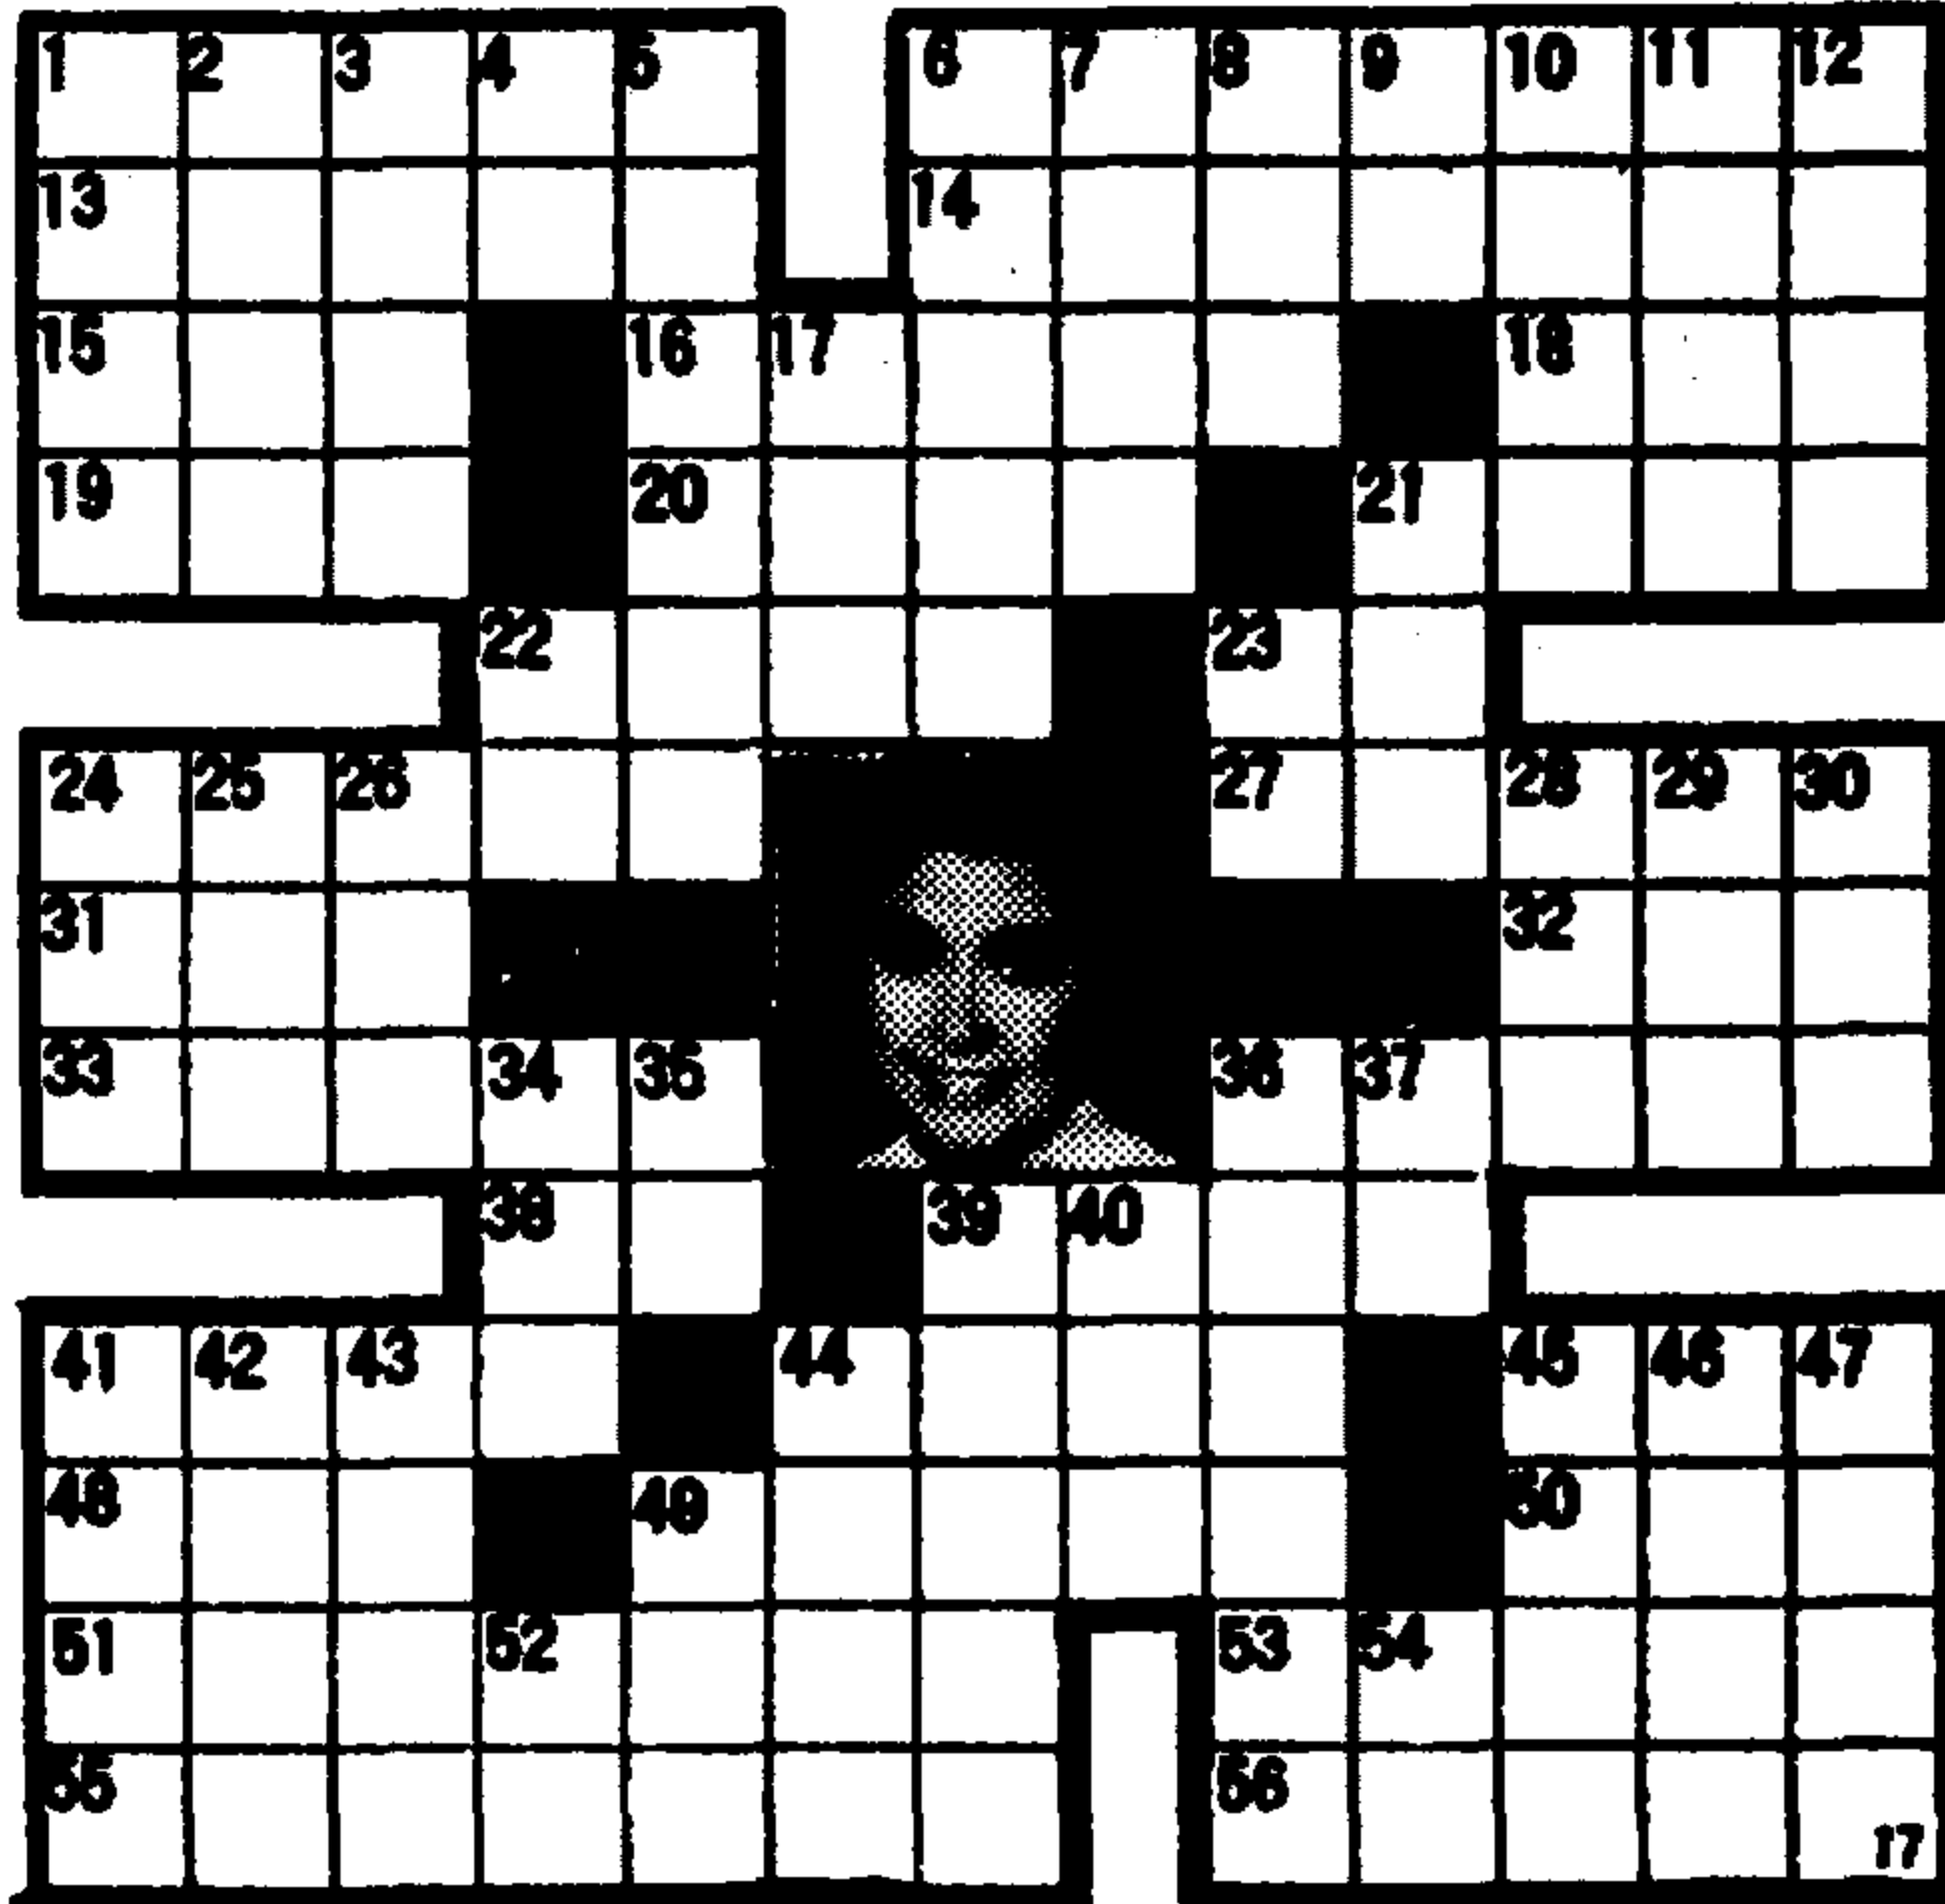

T.C.
Palatine

Charlie Weaver

Charlie recently returned to work part time after a long recuperation following his heart attack. Charlie, whose real name is Cliff Arquette, was born in Toledo, Ohio in 1905.

Clu didn't leave much for the stuntmen to do

WANTED: A rugged young actor who is an expert archer, stockcar and race-car driver and beekeeper.

This might have been a want ad in the Hollywood trade papers when director Tom Gries began casting a key role in "Call to Danger," action drama starring Peter Graves on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies" on the CBS Television Network.

Graves stars in the film as a Federal undercover agent who requires the services of such a multiple-skilled man in a daring scheme to rescue a kidnapping victim. On film, Graves uses a computer to find this wonder of a man. In reality, Graves simply had to find a good actor for the role and back him up with three stunt doubles—a champion archer, an ace stunt driver and a professional beekeeper.

If Graves had placed a want ad for a multiple-threat performer like the one above, Clu Gulager would not have applied for the job. Yet he won the role, thanks to his acting ability and that of the ever-reliable stuntmen.

Gulager became so involved in his role that he didn't leave much for his stunt doubles to do. He became an overnight sensation with the bow and arrow, learned to mingle with hordes of bees without panic and became a passable stock-car driver.

Clu Gulager

"I discovered a real flair for archery," says Gulager, who received instruction for the movie from Paramount Studio's special effects chief Lee Vasque, an archery champion. "Maybe it's because I'm part Cherokee Indian, maybe it was beginner's luck, but I hit some amazing shots with the bow and arrow in the movie, including my very first attempt at a long-distance target inside a second-story window at night through trees."

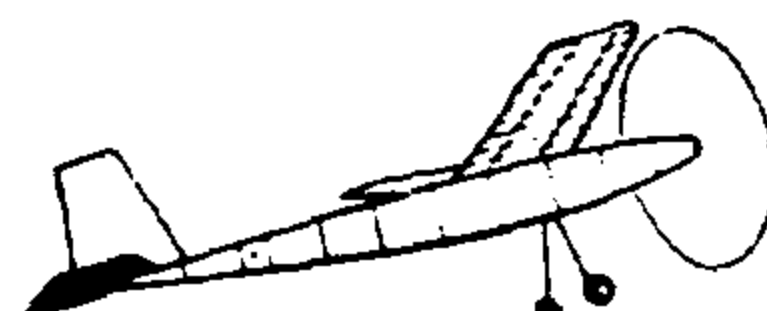

Gulager's skill at stock-car driving was a little less impressive. He attempted only an establishing spin around a California track at 75 miles per hour. "I was doing fine until a flock of 40 white ducks waddled across the track," he says. "The track was muddy so I skidded right through them into a wall."

Gulager has another driving scene in the movie, but he left that one to stunt double Hal Needham. It involves a spectacular car jump over a 10-foot wall. Gulager wasn't quite ready for that one.

Finally, there were the bees. Gulager spent a whole day filming among beehives. He was costumed in a beekeeper's outfit, and a beekeeper was off camera to keep the bees under control. Nevertheless, it was a spooky experience. "It's a creepy feeling having thousands of bees crawling over you no matter how you're clothed," says Gulager. "I still get goose bumps thinking about it."

How does Gulager feel about his newly discovered talents now that they're all on film? "Sometimes an actor is just plain goofy for doing some of the things he does," says Gulager. "But I wanted to deliver a good performance."

CBS's "Golf Classic" has rich vocabulary

The golfer steps up and drives his ball as the cameras zoom in for a closeup. It's fairly well struck, but curves left and finally goes out of bounds.

"Oscar Brown," comes the cry.

His playing partner says: "Oh, boy!"

Then, noting that the spectators clustered around the tee and the viewers listening in haven't the remotest idea what they're talking about, adds: "OB, retee, hit three."

The gallery, and most likely viewers, laugh as they get the message when CBS Television Sports, for the 10th consecutive year, presents the "CBS Golf Classic" with 16 teams of professional golf's elite vying for $225,000 in prize money, seen Saturdays on the CBS Television Network.

The Tour has a language of its own, and, like all living languages, it evolves and develops all the time.

At one time, if a touring professional hit into deep trouble, he would say: "I'm dead." Today, one of the more hip expressions is to say "Morte," the Spanish equivalent. Other ways of stating the problem are "morgue" and "jail," this last word an oldie that has somehow survived.

Even Porky Pig, the cartoon character, has recently been pressed into service. Porky's sign-off at the end of a cartoon goes something like: "Be-du, be-du, that's all, folks!" Young Tour players have adapted this to: "Be-du, be-du, bye now!"

If a player in the "CBS Golf Classic" hits a ball down the middle of the fairway, he might not use the word "fairway." He will say it's on "the short grass." If he hits into the rough, that's the last word he'll use. It's gone in the "brillo," the "wire" or the "cabbage."

Hazards also enjoy a rich vocabulary. On hitting into the water, a player in the "CBS Golf Classic" may say: "I laked it," or "I H2O'd it." In more ironic vein, he might say: "That one's wet," or simply "Agua caliente." Hitting into a bunker or sand trap is variously described as going in "the pit," "the beach," "the cat box" or the "kitty litter." And, if a player fails to get out the first time, he "dumped it."

However, perhaps the richest language used out on the Tour, as well as on the "CBS Golf Classic," is that reserved to describe the good things that happen. When a player hits one just perfectly, he may say: "I killed it," "I hit it hot and hook-in," or "I flat busted it." An iron that covers the flag all the way: "I blanked it out" or "I hung it on a clothes line to the stick." A great shot, of whatever sort, is known as a "career" shot. A great round is also described as a "career" round. Alternatively, the player might say: "I shot lights out," or "I really tore it up out there today."

Whatever they may say, the "CBS Golf Classic" is a unique tournament that brings viewers into the game, the lives and the language of the players, and all in the comfort of the...living room? dining room? den?

A 'love song to America'

"The American Idea. Part One: The Land," a one-hour Special to be presented Sunday, March 18, on ABC-TV, is the story of America as seen through the eyes of the pioneers who turned it from a wilderness into the magnificent country it is today.

Recollections from our forefathers as recorded in folk songs, family bibles, inscriptions on tombstones, diaries, letters, samplers, poems, biographies, legends, rituals and advertisements will be voiced by four host-narrators, Dick Van Dyke, the late Edward G. Robinson, Henry Fonda and Cloris Leachman.

The Special is, in a way, almost a love song to America and to its most precious asset, the land, and the uniquely American principle that each man in this new world might own a portion of it. It tells the story of rural America, of the farms, the fields and the forests, of lakes and rivers, of mountains and plains.

There is no script as such for the Special.

Farming in the United States a hundred or more years ago differs little from farming today in this special experiment (shown above) at University of California, Santa Cruz, in this scene from the one-hour Special, "The American Idea, Part One: The Land," to be presented Sunday, March 18, on ABC-TV. A group of students are farming 17 acres using methods and tools their forefathers used a century or two ago as illustrated in the picture below. Many of the youth of America are becoming interested in what our pioneer forefathers went through to develop our land and, by doing it themselves, are developing a deeper and fuller appreciation of the early settlers' contributions. An original score by Richard Rodgers and authentic folk songs sung by the famed Roger Wagner Chorale highlight the Special.

Who knows...he might've been a Lindbergh or something

Bob Cummings

If Bob Cummings hadn't become an actor, the odds are he would have made headlines as a latter-day Lindbergh. The still suave, youthful-looking Cummings, who made a guest appearance as an engaging antique dealer on "Here's Lucy" earlier this year on the CBS Television Network, possesses a background in aviation that would do justice to Howard Hughes.

And, even with his heavy traveling schedule, he manages to maintain his interest in flying.

Cummings' long love affair with flying is easy to understand when you consider his father was a friend of flight pioneer Orville Wright and that aviation talk was a foremost topic at the family dinner table.

Wright had been a patient of the senior Cummings, a physician and surgeon in Joplin, Mo., and that association accounts for the "Orville" in the actor's lengthy handle of Charles Clarence Robert Orville Cummings.

After experiencing the boyhood thrill of shaking hands with Charles Lindbergh at St. Louis airport, Cummings soloed in a biplane flying out of Joplin airport. Inspired by the exhilaration of flying, he decided to become an aeronautical engineer. But his father's sudden illness and lack of finances forced him to abandon these plans.

This change in direction launched a notable motion picture career. By World War II, Cummings was established as one of Hollywood's top leading men. Here flying entered the picture again when Cummings joined the Civil Air Patrol and later became an Air Force flight instructor who schooled nearly 100 future combat flyers for the European and Pacific theatres of action.

After the war aviation was always very much a part of the actor's life style as he logged countless hours in his twin-engine Beechcraft Super E and a revolutionary "Aerocar," the first licensed flying automobile in the United States.

Today Cummings, who carries a commercial certificate with single and multi-engine ratings, flies a red-white-and-black, six-place Piper Aztec. Few airports in North America have missed seeing the colorful Cummings craft with his three-foot signature on its nose.

JAY ALLEN

Many irons in the fire

"Search," NBC's futuristic series focusing on electronically-monitored agents who skirt danger around the world, seems to be the farthest thing from actor Hugh O'Brian's mind nowadays.

THAT MAY COME as a surprise to some, since O'Brian was so excited over the program when it debuted last September. In fact, O'Brian reportedly had turned down over 50 TV series offers since 1960, when his very popular "Wyatt Earp" role finally ended after a lucrative six-year stint. The "Search" series is an extension of a 1972 pilot film "Probe," which starred O'Brian as detective Hugh Lockwood. At the time, O'Brian was quoted as saying the film's plot "is the freshest idea to come down the pike in a long time."

The freshness has apparently stagnated, and O'Brian is now simply awaiting NBC's April 1 decision as to the fate of "Search." Admitting that the series' ratings have been less than spectacular, O'Brian wouldn't pinpoint exactly why. He theorized that one of the major reasons may be the lack of consistent viewer identification with one "Search" agent, since O'Brian alternates with actors Tony Franciosa and Doug McClure as space-age sleuths. "We've been through three producers already," O'Brian related, "...the show just hasn't been what I thought it could be."

BUT THE "Search" situation is hardly upsetting to the handsome actor, who is considered one of show business' busiest men-on-the-go. A genuine "variety-is-the-spice-of-life" advocate, O'Brian has so many irons in the fire, it's amazing that he finds enough time to eat and sleep—much less worry about the fate of a TV series.

Conversing over a hurried lunch at Chicago's Arlington Park Theatre (where O'Brian is currently starring in "The Desperate Hours"), the youthful 43-year-old bachelor said he felt it was personally important "to get involved in the things you believe in."

O'BRIAN IS involved in plenty. The actor credits a 1959 visit to the late Dr. Albert Schweitzer's African outpost as a turning point in his life. Then riding the crest of his Wyatt Earp popularity, O'Brian used his influence in founding the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation, which dedicates itself to what the actor calls "accenting and rewarding the positive side of America's teenagers."

A host of philanthropic and charitable activities soon followed: an acting awards competition for future thespians, formation of "The Thaliens" organization to benefit mentally-disturbed children, a national chairmanship of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, participation in State Department USO and Vietnam tours, to name just a few.

ESPECIALLY DEAR to O'Brian's heart is the U.S. space program, and the activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Convinced that we "must find new sources of energy" so that future generations can live, O'Brian sees space exploration as the answer. And he is actively assisting to get the word across. With two space-oriented documentaries to his credit—"Tomorrow is Now" and "Space in the Age of Aquarius"—O'Brian may very well be NASA's chief show business dignitary. Disturbed by what he terms "the shortsightedness of some people" on what impact outer space holds for Earth, O'Brian can talk for hours on the facts and figures of NASA's importance.

Too many irons in the fire, Hugh? "No, the main thing is to keep busy," says O'Brian. "I love what I do."

At that, O'Brian (already 15 minutes late for rehearsal) begged himself away from the table and told the waitress to "doggy-bag" his half-eaten steak, so that he might partake of it later in the day. As he quickly left, O'Brian left little doubt that he does indeed love his work. And with more satisfaction than any single TV series could possibly provide.

Trustee candidates discuss issues at Jaycees forum

by JOE FRANZ

Flood control, conflict of interest, a municipal fire department and the orderly growth and preservation of open space are the key issues to the 10 candidates for village trustee in Buffalo Grove.

The candidates, who are running to fill three vacancies on the village board spoke at an open forum sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Jaycees, Wednesday night.

There are three candidates running from the Village Independent (VIP) party, three from the Concerned Citizens of Buffalo Grove (CCBG) party and four independents. The election is April 17.

All the candidates agreed flooding in the village has been a major problem and pledged to take steps to alleviate it in the future. All said the village board should take a careful look at new building developments within the village to see if they might be potential flood areas.

Mrs. Betty Spence of the CCBG party suggested the village seek funds for flood control from various state, regional and federal agencies.

ALGIMANTAS "AL" Kezels, also of the CCBG party charged the present village board was insensitive and lacked initiative in dealing with flooding as well as other matters. "Flooding is only talked about at election time," Kezels said.

Police seeking red car in robbery probe

Mount Prospect police are searching for the driver of a red car to help identify an armed robbery suspect.

Police believe the red car, make unknown, was almost involved in an accident with a yellow car, possibly a Pinto, about 1 p.m. March 9 while heading west on Golf Road, about 200 yards west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect. Police hope the driver of the red car will come forward and possibly help identify the driver of the yellow car, or the car itself.

The yellow car was seen speeding out of the shopping center at the southwest corner of Golf and Busse roads shortly after an armed robbery at Western Fashions, 1749 W. Golf Rd. Police believe the driver of the yellow car may have been involved in the robbery.

The yellow car apparently almost collided with the red car and forced the red car up onto the median strip. Police said they also had a report of a yellow car a short time later almost involved in a second accident as it turned northwest off of Golf Road onto Algonquin Road.

About $90 was taken during the holdup and a clerk, Mary Kozel of unincorporated Mount Prospect, was struck on the head and hand, resulting in a fractured skull and hand.

Police described the robbery suspect as a white male, about 26 years old, between 5 feet 4 inches and 5 feet 6 inches tall. He is of stocky build, about 175 pounds, has medium-length light brown hair and a full beard and mustache. He wore a navy blue silk jacket over a T-shirt.

Anyone with information may contact police detectives by phoning 392-8000.

Incumbent trustee Thomas Mahoney of the VIP party, said, however, "I think the present village board has done a good job. I think we can avoid problems we've had in the past because of our experience."

Another incumbent trustee, Jerry Driscoll, concurred saying, "My past experience can give me insight into the problems facing the village. Let's not pass on what's gone wrong in the past." Driscoll is running as an independent.

On the issue of conflict of interest, the candidates were in agreement trustees should avoid all possible conflicts.

Mahoney said although he was concerned about the issue, he did not favor ethics legislation. "There are too many gray areas as to what a conflict of interest, actually consists of," he said.

Mahoney also said he did not think the village could pass an ordinance concerning conflict of interest because there was no state law giving them that right.

RECENTLY TWO members of the board have been involved in possible conflicts of interest. One concerned Village Pres. Gary Armstrong and the other, trustee Randall Rathjen. Both remain on the board.

All the candidates also agreed that the village eventually needs a municipal fire department. At present, Cook County Buffalo Grove residents are served by the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District and Lake County residents are served by the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District.

In other matters the candidates felt it was the village board's responsibility to assure an orderly and controlled growth for the village.

"We must be very careful of the kind of developments we allow into the village," said CCBG candidate Charles Cushman.

Bill Peterson of the VIP party agreed. He said, "We have to make the developer give us what we need."

Independent candidate Clarice Rech emphasized that she was in favor of maintaining "a healthy balance of single family homes" in the village. Kezels also agreed, adding, "If developers are going to bring in apartments, condominiums and multiplex homes, I'd personally prefer the village stop growing."

Mrs. Spence said she was not in favor of building low income housing in Buffalo Grove. "We moved to this area to get away from low income housing," she said.

ON THE DEVELOPMENT of Dundee Road, Peterson said he favored residential and business developments. "I don't think we want to see hamburger haven along Dundee Road." He felt short order restaurants would be unattractive and create traffic congestion.

Cushman and Mrs. Rech both said they favored bringing light industry into Buffalo Grove to help alleviate the tax burden on residents. Both, however, emphasized they favored "clean industry," not heavy industry.

Phil Ralston of the VIP party said he favored upgrading the village zoning laws. He added he was in favor of creating an annexation study commission to assure that developers comply with annexation agreements after they are approved by the village board.

The candidates said the village board was responsible for assuring the preservation of adequate open space land during the village's development.

Mrs. Rech said she favored the implementation of a village open space land committee to assure this. Cushman and Kezels said they would like to see more land preserved for parks, while Mrs. Spence said developers should be required to make land and cash donations for parks and schools.

Cushman promised he would attempt to create better communications between the school districts and the village board if he was elected.

Independent candidate Don Kearns, who has been active with the Omni-House Youth Services Bureau, said he thought the program was worthwhile and should be continued. "Programs like this should be increased," he said. "The community should work together with our young people."

MRS. RECH said when the village reaches a population of 25,000 she would favor dividing it into six districts, with one representative elected to the village board from each district. By law the village could not do this until it reached the 25,000 mark, she said.

Independent candidate John Ayres agreed, saying he thought the district system would assure fairer representation.

The Wednesday night forum was the first and probably the only time all the candidates will appear together.

A 61-59 DEFEAT is pretty hard to take anytime, but especially during tournament play. The disappointment is evident on the faces of Wheeling High School cheerleaders. The WHS Wildcats lost to Maine South in the squeaker Wednesday night, squashing their chances to advance in the Illinois state high school basketball Class AA tournament.

Insight out

DOG GONE — When Wheeling first initiated the job of animal warden, the idea was to have someone who would handle stray cats and dogs in the community. But recently the police department has found its animal problems are going to the birds. For example, among the run-of-the-mill animal complaints police were recently called to assist a lost duck.

However, the topper came this week when police got the call: "Someone needed to help lame goose."

SIGN IN PLEASE — Wheeling residents seem to know a good thing when they hear about it, so much so they can't wait to be first to use it.

At least two civic organizations have requested that their events be posted on the proposed community sign to be built in front of the village hall. The only problem — the sign has yet to leave the drawing boards.

However, keep those cards and letters coming so they can be referred to the village manager, who is making a list of all requests.

A REAL NAME-DROPPER — Candidates for village office often like to drop their names, but in Buffalo Grove trustee candidate Algimantas Kezels just tries to remember his.

Kezels added that most people call him "AL."

Driver charged after collision

A Glencoe man was charged with failure to reduce speed Wednesday after his car struck a stopped vehicle on Dundee Road near Portwine Road.

Police said the car driven by Albert Hillinger sustained $450 damage after striking one driven by Anthony Parelo, 180 N. Wolf Rd., Wheeling. Damage to Parelo's car was estimated at $250.

Hillinger was taken to Holy Family Hospital with a rib injury. He was treated and released.

Omni-House report tells program development

by JILL BETTNER

Since Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau opened its doors last August, over 2,500 persons have been involved in or served by its programs. That's according to a report to the community issued yesterday by Omni-House officials.

The report outlines the development of the agency's programs in the past five months and gives a breakdown on the amount of participation in each activity.

"The cooperation of the community continues to be very strong," it reads. "We would like to extend a deep and sincere 'thank you very much,' especially to our local government officials, our police departments and our schools for the firm support, wise feedback and on-going cooperation which have been so consistently extended to us."

ACCORDING TO the report, the primary functions of Omni-House are to encourage youth development, prevent juvenile delinquency and provide alternatives to the juvenile justice system.

In an effort to reach kids before they get into trouble, the agency maintains an Out-Reach program operated by 48 volunteers in 15 different groups. These people try to meet and relate to young people where they congregate — in the bowling alley, in the school yard or on the street.

"Once a close relationship has been developed with the young persons, the out-reach worker is in a position to present positive ways of life and to help the young persons make crucial decisions about how he is going to live his life," the reports say.

OTHER KIDS involved in the Out-Reach program are students searching for creative and worthwhile ways to use their time and energy.

"In all out reach groups, activities and projects such as art, ecology, camping and discussion group, provide the medium through which young people can grow in assuming responsibility for their lives, obtaining self-respect by having successful experiences with projects, learning to work in harmony with others and gaining community acceptance and recognition," the report says.

In the past five months, 175 area youth have been involved in some type of out-reach activity.

People with any kind of problem can receive helpful counseling by dialing the Omni-House Hotline. Trained volunteers provide crisis intervention counseling or refer callers to other agencies for follow-up work.

According to the report, 1,687 calls have been received on the Hotline since August. The projected number for the coming year is over 3,500.

THE NUMBER of persons involved in or served by other Omni-House services during the past five months include 114 in the Legal Rap Program, 65 in the Project A.I.D. Program and 12 in the Educational Special Classes.

About 170 area kids are also involved in remodeling the lower portion of the Omni-House building into an informal Drop-In Center. The center provides a place for discussions and programs involving music, art and dramatics, in addition to informal recreation. All programs are planned and developed by young people.

Omni-House is located at 516 N. Milwaukee Ave. in Wheeling. The agency serves the communities of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights. It is funded primarily by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC). Community contributions make up the rest of the monies needed for the operation of the counseling bureau.

City move to ban illegal parking getting under way

Des Plaines may begin a crackdown on sidewalk parking by railroad commuters.

The city council will be asked Monday to approve an ordinance unifying nine pages of city ordinances restricting parking around Cumberland Terrace and downtown Chicago and North Western Ry. stations.

The proposed ordinance, the second major change in parking prohibition in a year, would limit cars to three-hours on many city streets and would continue total "no parking" bans on dozens of others.

Target of the change are 30 streets with varying parking restrictions aimed at commuters. Parking is already banned from 8 to 11 a.m. on Stratford and Ardmore roads between Drake and State streets. On Jefferson Street between Graceland and Lee streets, car parking is prohibited from 7-9 a.m. and 4-6 p.m. on the north side and is totally banned on the south side. Three-hour limits exist from either 8 or 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on six streets including Thacker, Cora and Webford.

THE PROPOSED ordinance, drafted by City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi, would ban parking on designated streets from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays. Parking would not be prohibited Saturdays, Sundays or holidays.

Uniform restrictions will aid police enforcement, Police Chief Arthur Hintz said.

"This all started with complaints — maybe call them suggestions — from people who live in the areas," Hintz said. "Some streets had absolutely no parking. Others had different restrictions. Residents couldn't park in front of their house early in the morning or after work."

"We tried to think of a way that was workable for residents and still stop all day parking," he said.

THE COUNCIL'S latest attempt to push commuters into 50-cent a day lots was passed April 3, 1972. The ordinance banned parking on 18 streets from 7 to 9 a.m. and 4 to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

The council has attempted to restrict commuter street parking with hit-or-miss, street by street ordinances since 1953.

Hintz said the commuter problem spreads from street to street. When parking is banned on one street, the train riders move their cars a block away.

Police seeking red car in robbery probe

Mount Prospect police are searching for the driver of a red car to help identify an armed robbery suspect.

Police believe the red car, make unknown, was almost involved in an accident with a yellow car, possibly a Pinto, about 1 p.m. March 9 while heading west on Golf Road, about 200 yards west of Buess Road in Mount Prospect. Police hope the driver of the red car will come forward and possibly help identify the driver of the yellow car, or the car itself.

The yellow car was seen speeding out of the shopping center at the southwest corner of Golf and Buess roads shortly after an armed robbery at Western Fashions, 1749 W. Golf Rd. Police believe the driver of the yellow car may have been involved in the robbery.

The yellow car apparently almost collided with the red car and forced the red car up onto the median strip. Police said they also had a report of a yellow car a short time later almost involved in a second accident as it turned northwest off of Golf Road onto Algonquin Road.

Anyone with information may contact police detectives by phoning 392-6000.

Charge Chicago lady forged prescription

A Chicago woman was arrested Wednesday after trying to buy drugs with a forged prescription at a Des Plaines pharmacy, according to Des Plaines police.

Police said the woman, Casimira Chades, 21, of 3848 Pittsburgh Ave., was arrested at Kare Drugs, 1155 Lee St. after pharmacist Fred Tannebaum called the doctor listed on the prescription and found his phone had been disconnected for two years.

Miss Chades was charged with attempting to obtain a controlled substance by fraud. She is being held on $1,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court April 19.

2 dictating machines stolen from office

Two dictating machines valued at $400 were stolen from an office at the Federal Pacific Corp., 1785 Birchwood Ave., said Des Plaines police. Company employees discovered the machines missing Wednesday, police said.

A NEW BOAT ramp at Lake Opeka has been delayed by recent spurt of inclement weather, but Des Plaines Park District officials say finishing touches may be added this week. The new concrete-base ramp is designed to keep cars from getting stuck during boat launching. The 33-acre park district lake will be open to boaters March 31.

Census takers needed 'desperately'

Des Plaines is "desperately" seeking census takers for the city's official headcount that will start March 28.

Only 69 persons have applied for enumerators positions, Jess Thornton, city personnel director said. U. S. Census Bureau officials have set a goal of 180.

Potential census takers will be screened Tuesday and Wednesday at 1428 Miner St. Groups of 30 applicants will be tested in mathematics and handwriting at either 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m. or 1 p.m. both days.

"We've put ads in newspapers, signs on college bulletin boards and contacted the state employment service," Thornton said. "I don't know what else we can do."

Federal officials estimate census takers earn between $16 and $24 per eight-hour day. "In talking to people who have done this before, I've found they average about $100 a week," Thornton said. Officially, enumerators receive 11 cents per head counted.

"IT'S NO EASY work," City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach said. Federal officials warn "there's lots of walking and climbing of stairs," she said.

"You will be given a map of this district and the necessary census forms to do the job," the federal application form states. "It will be your duty to visit each place where people live to obtain and record information about the residents. You must find all the places where people live or might live, and accurately record facts about these persons."

The work is full time. "You must be willing to work eight-hours each day, some of which will be in the evening," the forms continue.

The job will last "from five to 10 days," the forms state. Thornton estimated the headcount will take between two and four weeks, "depending on the number of enumerators."

Mrs. Edna Kuhlman, of the U.S. Department of Commerce, Census Bureau, will direct the drive aimed at boosting the official city population over 60,000. An estimated 11 federal employees will train and assist census takers.

DES PLAINE'S official population, based on the 1970 census, is 57,238. The census showed a drop of 223 persons from 1968.

City officials, pointing to a north side census area with an indicated population of 49 but a registered voter total of more than 400, carried a census protest to Washington, D.C. in 1971, but failed to convince the government that Des Plaines has between 60,000 and 62,000 residents.

Trustee aspirant hits Oakton standards

Stanley Weitzenfeld, a Des Plaines resident and teacher at Niles East High School, said yesterday his candidacy for the Oakton Community College Board of Trustees is based on weaknesses in academic standards at the college.

Weitzenfeld, 30, of 1634 Stockton St., said a "change in the general philosophy of the college is necessary." In a press statement he said, "While Oakton has been praised for its innovative and individualistic approach, it has also been criticized for questionable standards of achievement. The present liberal course must be balanced by those who think that the traditional standards and values should not be totally discarded."

The Niles East teacher told the Herald that teaching standards at Oakton are too liberal and encourage leniency. Teachers too often hold general rap sessions in the classroom as opposed to formal instruction. Teaching at Oakton should be based on true university standards," he said.

"WE HAVE ONE OF the most diversified districts in the nation," said Weitzenfeld, "and our students should be exposed to this wide range of thought. They should not be limited to the one attitude currently in vogue."

Weitzenfeld pointed to criticism of teaching at Oakton last fall by the North Central Assn., a national school accrediting organization, as evidence of lax academic standards at the school. Members of the accrediting team said students were inadequately counseled and unprepared for transfer to a four-year school and that the school placed too much emphasis on innovation.

Weitzenfeld said he has not formed an opinion on any site for the college's permanent campus, but said the community should be more involved in site selection.

collectors, or law enforcement officers within the past six months."

The census will be directed from a storefront office owned by the city at 1428 Miner. Census takers will be assigned to geographical areas and will receive new assignment after completing a section. First assignment "probably will be the area in which you live," federal forms state.

Applications are available at Mrs. Rohrbach's office or the city personnel department, 1535 Ellinwood St.

Des Plaines has paid the federal government $8,000 to begin the headcount. Estimated completion cost will be $22,000.

THE CANDIDATE is a graduate of the Illinois Institute of Technology and North Eastern Illinois University. He teaches mathematics at Niles East and formerly taught in Chicago high schools and was a consultant for the state program for gifted elementary school children.

Weitzenfeld told the Herald he is not opposed to the Oakton Community College Convention but did not appear before the caucus because he had not decided on his candidacy by the time the caucus endorsements were made. Weitzenfeld is running for a three-year term.

Since the caucus met last month, trustee Meyer Kamin announced his resignation for the Oakton board, leaving one unexpired year of his term. Gene Sjostrand, chairman of the convention, said the delegates do not have enough time to meet to endorse a candidate for Kamin's vacancy.

Psychologist will speak

"Is a Child Running Your Life?" will be the topic when Dr. Natalie Haimowicz, psychologist and author, speaks at Maine Township Mental Health Association's fourth annual dinner meeting Monday at 8:30 p.m. at Casa Royale, 783 Lee St., Des Plaines. Dr. Haimowicz' discussion of transactional analysis will follow a progress report of the center's activities by MTMHA president the Rev. Donald Hallberg, director of the community development program for Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois.

The center, 632 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge, has grown since 1966 to a fully staffed mental health agency, providing crisis intervention and out-reach programs for adolescent, geriatric and home-bound persons; cooperative social service arrangements with other local agencies, the police and the schools; and a community centered educational program for mental health.

The American College Test (ACT) and the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) are for juniors and seniors planning to attend college.

The only differences between the two tests are where they are accepted and what company gives them according to Keith Hona, Maine East career counselor. He suggests students take them both if they are undecided as to which college or university they may apply.

Students who plan to graduate early should take the ACT test in April of their junior year. The SAT should be taken no later than November of the senior year.

Making the elves go 'round —and then 'come to life'

by LYNN ASINOFF

The back shop of Perren Gerber and Associate in Wheeling looks like an elves workshop. It is full of giant Easter eggs, gingerbread castles, reindeer and fairies.

But instead of being elves, the workers at Perren Gerber make elves... and pixies and bunnies and gingerbread men. When they're done, these whimsical creatures come to life through mechanical animation.

The animated displays conceived, designed and produced in the Wheeling workshop end up in shopping centers and department stores throughout the country during the holiday seasons. For example, there is a bunny band of musical rabbits which will soon be seen in the windows of Marshall Field and Co. at Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg.

According to Perren Gerber, one of three partners in the firm, shopping centers are beginning to turn from traditional "run-of-the-mill" decorations to animated displays. He said the displays, which come as a complete unit, can be used over and over during several different holiday seasons.

"IT'S A MATTER of building a tradition for a shopping center," he said. "People are now willing to spend the extra money for an investment."

Because the displays are viewed as an investment, the firm often gets orders in stages so that a new display will be built every year until the total design is complete. Gerber said his storeroom is now full of Christmas fairies and gingerbread men that will be added to a shopping center display in Maryland next winter.

Gerber, who handles most of the design and selling work, likes to plan displays for each shopping center individually. He explained that this makes it possible to take advantage of the structures already in existence, saving money in designing the displays.

For example, the designer said he is now working with the architects of a new shopping center in New York so the holiday display area will be built right into the center.

"WE WILL NOW be involved in the building of it right up until the time it opens," he said. "By doing it this way, the money they will save in the following years will be astronomical."

Gerber said most shopping centers or stores do not have any set ideas about their holiday decorations when they first approach his firm. "In most cases they will say, 'Will you come see our center and make a recommendation?'" he said.

Once the designs are approved, the building of the displays begins. Gerber sculpts models of his animated figures in clay, and then sends them to another firm to be mold casted in a special rubber.

GERBER SAID that this is the only aspect of the operation not done in the Wheeling shop. He said mold casting is a specialized skill which has been perfected "by the old-time masters."

When the rubber forms come back looking like transparent yellow gnomes, the second partner, George Schnoor, goes to work. He is the expert in animating the figures, using various types of motors and mechanical devices.

Schnoor likes to downplay his skill. When asked if there are any special tricks to animating the figures, he said, "Just don't get your fingers caught in the motor."

But his labors in getting a guitar-playing rabbit to tap his foot in rhythm showed there is considerably more to this art.

Gerber feels Schnoor is probably the best animator in the field. "It takes an intellect and an imagination that you can't learn at school," he said.

ACCORDING TO Gerber, Schnoor has a knack for getting a natural softness to the movement of his figures. "It's an understanding of the way the body moves," he said. "It's such a complete understanding of the machinery that it doesn't become an obstacle."

Schnoor also builds the little tree houses and gingerbread castles that house his figures. Right now the firm is experimenting with using a new foam for these structures. Each new type of building is prepared in experimental form, and then set outdoors to be tested against the weather.

Besides the tree houses, bunnies and elves, the firm also works with live animals, particularly at Easter time. These animals are used in live displays such as bunny village, chicken and duck incubators, and small animal zoos.

GERBER SAID that the firm's business includes whatever needs to be known to make displays work. "It's whatever the situation calls for," he said. "We haven't limited ourselves at all."

This sometimes ranges from knowing how many chickens will hatch in an incubator to understand how to blend the fur on mechanically animated bunnies. But Gerber admits he doesn't like the business aspect of the company, and happily leaves all the facts and figures to his wife, Sandy, the third partner.

According to Gerber, it is his wife who keeps the firm on a sound economic footing while he and Schnoor experiment with new display ideas and techniques. He said because of this constant experimentation, the firm often loses money.

FOR EXAMPLE, an experiment in changing the fur on the bunny band from white to brown can wipe out the profit in building the display.

But Gerber said his experimentation is what makes their product a good one. "We've gotten better and better, and we lose less and less," he said.

More importantly, the people who work at Perren Gerber and Associate enjoy their work. "Nobody dreads coming to work in the morning," Gerber said.

In fact, Schnoor, Gerber and his wife seem to enjoy the bunnies, elves and fairies as much as the children who will eventually watch them wide-eyed in the shopping centers.

DOROTHY GREGORY adjusts the drum of one member of a five-piece bunny band. She said after working on the animated figures awhile, each one takes on its own personality. In fact, she said everyone has his own favorites to work with. Although the bunnies all start out looking pretty much alike, their personalities change as they get their fur, eyes, and clothing.

3,000 students to attend career night at school

About 3,000 students are expected to attend the Maine Township High School Dist. 207 career night at Maine West High School, 1755 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines, March 22, between 7 and 10 p.m.

The career night, "Project Big," is organized each year by the Dist. 207 cooperative education advisory committee made up of representatives from businesses and industries in the northwest suburban area. Co-chairmen for this year's career night are Peter Meehan, director of industrial relations at Sun Electric Corp., Chicago and Wayne Rosenquist, director of guidance at Maine West.

More than 200 businesses and industries including airlines, engineering firms, beauty culture schools, nursery schools, banks, police departments, hospitals and military service organizations will enter displays in the career night program.

"Project Big," is designed to inform students of job opportunities and careers open to them after completing formal education. Representatives from companies in the northwest suburbs will inform students of the training required in their particular occupation and how to apply for a job.

"Project Big," has become more popular every year, according to Dist. 207 officials. When the first career night was held four years ago, 1,500 students attended; last year 3,000 students attended. Career night is open to all high school and junior high school students in the area and their parents.

School Community Council slates candidates' nights

School Community Council of Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 will sponsor two candidates' nights prior to the school board elections.

The first will be at 7:30 p.m. April 19 at Elk Grove High School, Elk Grove Boulevard and Arlington Heights Road. The second will be at 7:30 p.m. April 13 at Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goodhart, Arlington Heights.

Candidates for Dist. 59, High School Dist. 214 and Harper Junior College boards will be invited to present their platforms at the meetings.

SCC has prepared a two-page questionnaire for Dist. 59 candidates. The questionnaire asks candidates' opinions on unit school districting, present administration and school board, faculty qualifications, school financing and educational programs.

Two referenda loom if school textbook rental ends

Two more referenda may be facing Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 voters if a recommendation to drop rental fees for textbooks is approved.

The budget committee recommended Wednesday that the rental fees be dropped. Wednesday was the first meeting to discuss the 1973-74 budget.

If the entire Dist. 59 board approves the recommendation at Monday's meeting, state law requires that the issue be submitted to the voters by referendum. The referendum would be part of the regular school board election April 14. If it were passed the rental fee would be dropped for the coming school year.

Dropping the rental fee is estimated to cost the district approximately $114,000 in lost revenue. The committee made its recommendations after studying projected revenues, expenses and borrowing for the educational fund for the coming school year.

STATE LAW PROHIBITS the school district from lowering the rental fee to an insignificant amount. The fee must either be completely eliminated or else cover the approximate costs of textbooks.

By law, the referendum must ask the voters if they want "free textbooks," with a "yes" or "no" response marked on the ballot.

Actually, the term "free" is misleading. Funds to make up the lost revenue will come from the educational fund, which is part of the real estate tax levy.

Textbooks would also be supplied to the parochial schools within the district. Expenses for these books would be reimbursed by the state.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS said the district may then seek a referendum to increase the tax rate for the educational fund to cover the loss of textbook fee revenue.

The referendum, if sought, would probably not be until fall of this year.

The present textbook fee is $10 per child. At the meeting Wednesday, the committee members discussed the possibility of a referendum for approximately a two-cent increase per $100 assessed valuation.

The owner of a home assessed at $10,000 would then pay $2 more in taxes if the referendum passed.

For a family with one child in the district, if the two-cent referendum passed, the net effect would be an $8 savings in the cost of textbooks.

For each additional child in the district, the family would save an additional $10.

Homeowners with no children in the district and commercial property owners would have an overall increase in their taxes.

Committee members said if the two-cent referendum were not passed, the district would be forced to either increase borrowing or reduce the level of educational programs.

Absentee ballots for parks vote available Mon.

Absentee ballots for the March 31 Elk Grove Park District referendum will be available Monday. Ballots may be obtained at the park district office, 499 Bluestemfield Rd.

Persons who will not be able to vote in the district on the election date must have the absentee ballots returned to the park district by March 30.

Any person is eligible to vote in the referendum provided he or she is a registered voter, a park district resident and a resident of his or her precinct for at least 30 days.

The referendum will be a two-part bond issue for a total of $995,000.

The first part will be a $685,000 bond issue for construction of an indoor ice-skating rink in Disney Park. The second part will be a $310,000 issue for park improvements throughout the district.

Each issue will be voted on separately in the election.

This will be the third time within two years the park district has tried to pass a referendum for an ice-skating rink and park improvements. Both previous attempts, in March and April, 1971, failed.

2 Chicagoans arrested on forgery charges

Two Chicago men were arrested Tuesday on charges of forgery and attempted deceptive practice by the Schaumburg police in connection with several bad-check cashing incidents at Woodfield and Oak Brook shopping centers.

Police said Bobby Beati, 29, of 6724 S. Stony Island Ave., Chicago was arrested by Schaumburg authorities in Skokie when he appeared in court on another

COMMITTEE MEMBERS also indicated that if the educational fund referendum is sought in the fall, it may be coupled with the bond issue referendum needed for the proposed remodeling of Grove and Dempster junior high schools.

In other action at the meeting, committee chairman Allen Sparks praised the administration for the effort put into compiling the 1973-74 budget and praised the sophistication and completeness of the document.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration, said most of the funds in the new $14 million budget are in good shape. He said the level of borrowing had been reduced by 5 per cent in the education fund.

The building fund is budgeted over the maximum amount permitted by law for borrowing. Perry said the board would have to order cuts in this fund.

Police also arrested Thies Howard, 27, of the same Chicago address on forgery warrants issued by the Oak Brook police after he attempted to post bond for Beati.

Beati was released on $3,000 bond. Both men were turned over to Oak Brook police. Howard's bond was set at $5,000. Beati is scheduled to appear in court in Schaumburg on April 11.

Police said Clark's car collided with an auto driven by Patricia Egsieker, 26, of 521 Brynhaven St., Elk Grove Village, while the Egsieker car was stopped at a stop sign on Oakton Avenue. No one was injured.

Girl Scouts seek family movies, reduced tickets

More family movies and student tickets — that's what a group of Elk Grove Village girl scouts say they want to see at the Elk Grove Cinema, 1050 Arlington Heights Rd.

At a village board meeting Tuesday, Amy Ulrich, 101 Smethwick Ln., asked the trustees how a group of girls could protest or demonstrate against the movies being shown at the theater. She said she thought there were not enough films being shown for her junior high school age group, and the theater should sell tickets to students at prices lower than the adult admission.

The girls were told they must obtain a permit to demonstrate or parade, and they must not picket on private property without the permission of the owners. The girls attending the meeting were members of Cadet Troop 631 and 519.

Charles Stansky, scout leader for citizenship, said he was surprised the girls brought up the subject at the meeting, and they were doing this on their own and not as a scout project. He said the project is still in the talking stage, but some of the girls were considering starting a petition drive in about a month or writing letters to the theater owner suggesting alternative ways to schedule movies.

"ONE OF THE problems is that there aren't enough movies being made with the 'G' (general audience) rating," Stansky said. "I feel the 'G' movies still sell, and children in this age group want to be entertained."

Stansky said the girls in the troop like adventure stories, biographies, comedies and Walt Disney movies.

"Our policy is to show 'G' and 'PG' (family with parental guidance) movies whenever available," Walter Panceo, theater owner, said. "However the problem is there are just not many movies produced like this in Hollywood."

Panceo said the theater shows "R" (restricted) movies when nothing else is available, and no X-rated films are ever shown. "When we show 'R' movies not suitable for a young audience, we always show a G-rated matinee on weekends," he said.

Panceo said the Elk Grove Cinema changes movies about every week, and this accentuates the shortage of family films. He said that since the theater opened in November, 1971, 85 per cent of the movies have been for the family or there has been a special children's matinee.

THE ELK GROVE Cinema started out as a Jerry Lewis Family Theatre, but changed to an independent theater because the management thought it could bring better movies to Elk Grove Village on its own, Panceo said.

Children's tickets are 75 cents, adult prices (12 years old and older) are $1.50 during the week and for matinees, and $2 on weekends. Panceo said he considers the prices reasonable and they are "considerably below all the other movie theaters in the area."

He said vandalism at the theater has added materially to his operational costs and affects the price of tickets. Panceo said that during the first two months of operation, sinks in the restrooms were torn off the walls and slashed theater seats were not unusual.

"If the Girl Scouts or anyone else have any questions about the operation of the theater, I'll be glad to answer them," Panceo said.

TRAGEDY WAS AVERTED yesterday morning when Rudolph Ryniak of Berwyn crawled to safety after the full cement truck he was driving tipped over at Palatine Road and Ill. Rte. 53 in Arlington Heights. Ryniak was treated for a bruised shoulder and released from Northwest Community Hospital. It took police nearly three hours to remove the rig, which blocked two lanes of traffic. "The truck was demolished and Ryniak was lucky he wasn't killed," said Jim Uggla, the investigating Arlington Heights policeman. Ryniak, who works for Vulcan Material in Palatine, was charged with driving too fast for conditions, according to Uggla, who also said the accident is still under investigation.

Arlington Heights Road work bid opening April 4

The Cook County Highway Department is scheduled to start accepting bids April 4 on the $2.5 million Arlington Heights Road improvement project and construction will begin in the summer. Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis told trustees Tuesday.

Willis said the final plans for widening the Arlington Heights thoroughfare from Salt Creek to Devon Avenue currently are being studied by the village engineer. According to the plans, Arlington Heights Road will be widened to four lanes along with parts of Biesterfeld Road and Devon Avenue near their Arlington Heights Road intersections.

The village trustees have devised a plan to handle traffic during construction that would maintain two-way traffic on Biesterfeld Road between Arlington Heights Road and Wellington Avenue and on Arlington Heights Road between Biesterfeld Road and Devon Avenue.

During construction on the roadway from Salt Creek south to Elk Grove Boulevard, non-truck traffic would be detoured away from Arlington Heights Road by way of Elk Grove and Kennedy boulevards. Truck traffic would be detoured from Arlington Heights Road to Landmeier and Toune roads during the entire construction period.

IN OTHER BUSINESS:

• Police Lt. William Kohnke was authorized to complete a field study of the police department of Huntington Beach, Calif., from April 29 through May 4 at a cost of $150.

• Fire Capt. John Henrici was authorized to attend the annual conference of the Illinois Civil Defense Council on April 13-15 in Springfield at a cost of $117.

• Mary Lundgren, 245 Clearmont Dr., was given an honored citizen certificate for being selected as the state American-ism chairwoman for the 26th Annual Patriotic Conference of the Illinois Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary.

THE RACQUET isn't quite regulation size, but then, neither is Jeff Smith, age 3, who is the youngest person to take lessons at the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club. He uses a squash racquet and two hands to get the ball over the net.

At 3, he's already learning tennis, golf, skating,...

With both hands Jeff Smith smashed a tennis ball from behind the baseline. It sailed to the net, but didn't quite make it over.

Again and again Jeff, determined to hit the ball harder, tried for more distance. With a few words of encouragement from his instructor, the ball finally made it over the net.

And that's no small accomplishment for a 3-year-old.

Jeff Smith of Medinah is the youngest tennis player at the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, 1350 E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. To make things a little easier he uses a squash racquet with a short handle instead of a regular tennis racquet.

"He's hit the ball back and forth a couple of times with the pros," said Robert Smith, Jeff's father.

According to Jeff, tennis is his favorite sport. But his father says his "favorite sport" is whatever he's participating in at the time. "He likes everything he does," said Jeff's father.

Besides tennis, Jeff takes lessons in swimming, ice skating, roller skating, skiing, dancing, golf, ping-pong and bowling. His bowling average is 54 and he's won a few ice skating ribbons and two speed skating medals.

Police seeking red car in robbery probe

Mount Prospect police are searching for the driver of a red car to help identify an armed robbery suspect.

Police believe the red car, make unknown, was almost involved in an accident with a yellow car, possibly a Pinto, about 1 p.m. March 9 while heading west on Golf Road, about 200 yards west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect. Police hope the driver of the red car will come forward and possibly help identify the driver of the yellow car, or the car itself.

The yellow car was seen speeding out of the shopping center at the southwest corner of Golf and Busse roads shortly after an armed robbery at Western Fashions, 1749 W. Golf Rd. Police believe the driver of the yellow car may have been involved in the robbery.

The yellow car apparently almost collided with the red car and forced the red car up onto the median strip. Police said they also had a report of a yellow car a short time later almost involved in a second accident as it turned northwest off of Golf Road onto Algonquin Road.

Anyone with information may contact police detectives by phoning 392-6000.

TRAGEDY WAS AVERTED yesterday morning when Rudolph Ryniak of Berwyn crawled to safety after the full cement truck he was driving tipped over at Palatine Road and Ill. Rte. 53 in Arlington Heights. Ryniak was treated for a bruised shoulder and released from Northwest Community Hospital. It took police nearly three hours to remove the rig, which blocked two lanes of traffic. "The truck was demolished and Ryniak was lucky he wasn't killed," said Jim Uggla, the investigating Arlington Heights policeman. Ryniak, who works for Vulcan Material in Palatine, was charged with driving too fast for conditions, according to Uggla, who also said the accident is still under investigation. May not open during racing season

Race track C&NW station to be completed by June

Construction on the new Chicago and North Western Ry. passenger station at Arlington Park Race Track is under way and should be completed by June 1.

There is a possibility, however, that use of the station will be postponed until after the close of the racing season, now set to end July 24.

An exact scheduling of trains and fares for commuters who will use the new depot still have to be arranged, according to Rollins Coakley, director of commuter service for the railroad.

But Coakley did say that the new depot will be "a full-service station" with rush hour scheduling comparable to that which now exists in downtown Arlington Heights and Palatine.

THE ARLINGTON PARK station stop is expected to become one of the biggest on the Chicago and North Western line. It is expected to draw commuters from Arlington Heights, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Elk Grove Village.

The railroad is considering surveying riders to find out how many would switch to the new station, Coakley said. "But our big hope, of course, is to attract many new riders."

Village officials are hoping that the new depot will relieve, at least for a time, traffic and parking congestion around the downtown Arlington Heights station.

THE RACE TRACK will provide parking for about 800 cars near the depot. Access details have not been finalized, a spokesman said yesterday.

Under terms of a three-way agreement endorsed by the village, the race track and the railroad, the depot building, which will cost $100,000, is being paid for by the Village of Arlington Heights from its parking fund.

The railroad paid for the track and platform work and Arlington Park is responsible for maintaining the parking area.

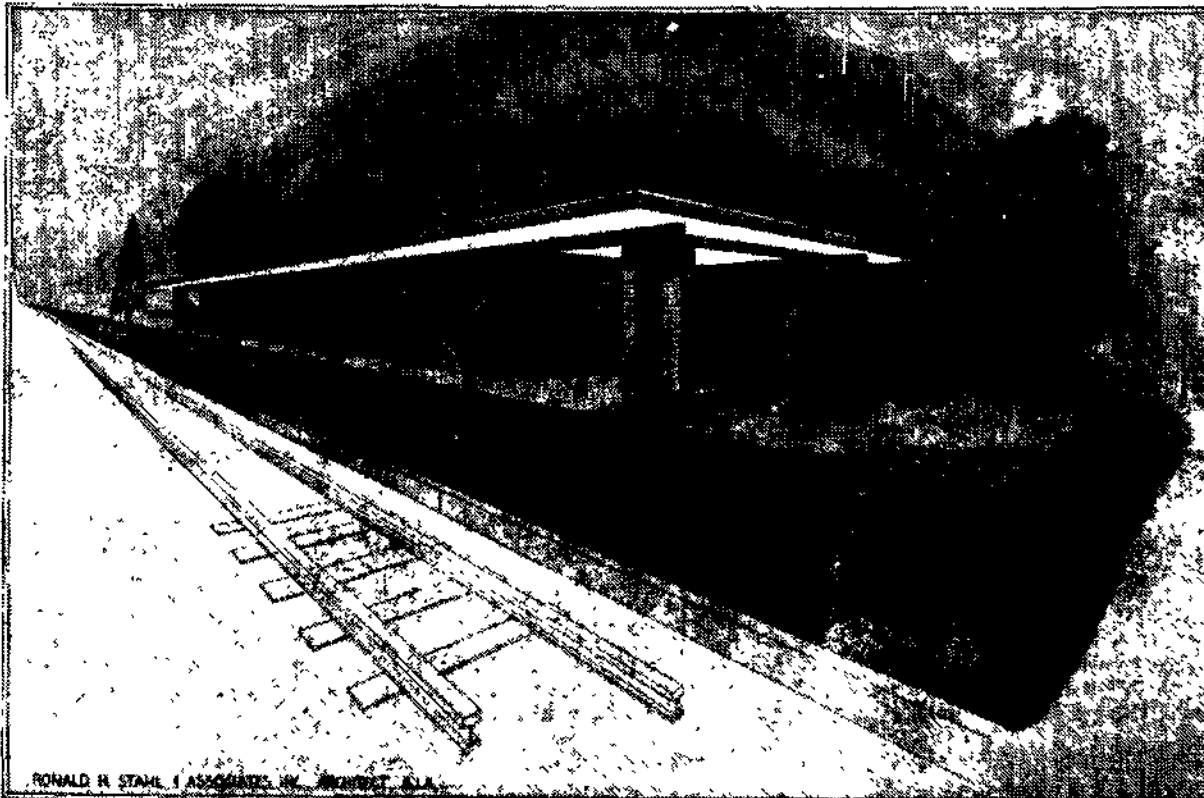

The building is being constructed by the F. & J. Vescey Construction Co. of Palatine. Its exterior brick matches that used for the Arlington Park Towers Theatre.

COAKLEY SAID the fare to Chicago from the depot probably will fall about halfway between the Arlington Heights and Palatine tariffs.

The present monthly fare to Chicago is $39 from Palatine and $38.20 from Arlington Heights. On a round-trip, daily basis the fares are $3 from Palatine and $2.80 from Arlington Heights.

"We may hold off opening the station to commuters until after the racing season is over, in order to give them one full year's experience without conflicting with the racing crowd," he said.

But if the depot is finished well ahead of the close of the racing season, the station probably will open before the final racing date, Coakley said.

THE NEW DEPOT at Arlington Park Race Track is now under construction and should be complete by about June 1. The station may not open to commuters, however, until after the close of the racing season at the track, now set for July 24. The building, shown here in a rendering by architect Ronald H. Stahl of Arlington Heights, will match the brick used in the Arlington Park Theatre. The building, which will cost $100,000 is being paid for by the Village of Arlington Heights.

A MATTER OF TASTE. There are press conferences, and then there are press conferences. The Republican candidates for the Palatine Village Board held one at 9 on a Monday morning, and served coffee and rolls. The Village Independent Party candidates held theirs at 4 on a Friday afternoon, replete with champagne.

IT'S A STEEL. The VIP candidate for village president, Clayton Brown, was asked at a candidates' forum what business he's in. "I'm vice president of a steel company," he responded. "And contrary to rumor, I'm not after any steel contract in the school district or the Old Madrid contract." Brown said he has sold a grand total of three steel beams in Palatine. Whereupon the moderator, Don Carlson, said: "I'm in the steel business and I've sold all the rest."

A SALESMAN through and through. One of the Republican candidates for village trustee, Bob Guss, was reciting his background at the same session. "I'm presently with Stride-Rite," he said, "the largest manufacturer of children's shoes in the world." As the audience began tilting, he reminded them: "Easter's coming up."

Candidates debate—no holds barred

by MARCIA KRAMER
A News Analysis

They didn't quite come to blows, but the competing Palatine Village Board candidates exchanged a few heated words and accusations during their first public confrontation this week.

The Republican and Village Independent Party candidates said little that hadn't been said before but Wednesday night, for the first time, residents were able to hear both sides.

Neither party claimed victory after the 2½-hour verbal jousting, sponsored by the Willow Wood Homeowners Association. However, an informal survey showed that the Republicans appeared to have come out ahead.

"I thought they had more positive programs than the VIPs," one man commented. "But," he conceded, "it's easier to attack."

ATTACK THEY DID. While the VIPs' opening 20-minute presentation was devoted to an unemotional recitation of what the party has done while in power the last two years, the Republicans used their time for a hard-hitting assault on VIP programs.

The two sides became slightly more hostile during the audience participation period, loaded questions notwithstanding ("a very planted question, I think that's obvious," one candidate began his answer).

But the back-and-forth exchanges provided the 60 persons who attended the session (including numerous party workers) a chance to hear each side respond to the others' charges.

The VIP village president candidate, Clayton W. Brown, for example, accused his GOP opponent, Wendell E. Jones of opposing installation of a pump in Rooster Lake, which is designed to prevent flooding in much of the Winston Park

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has introduced four bills aimed at giving "immediate protection" to Great Lakes and other shorelines endangered by erosion. The bills include a three-year, $5 million study of Lake Michigan.

President Nixon announced he will seek prompt removal of a U.S. tariff on beef imports to help curb rising meat prices, but said the best weapon against inflated food costs was still the American housewife.

President Nixon warned Senate Democrats they would get nowhere holding L. Patrick Gray III as "hostage" for White House testimony on the Watergate affair.

Senators Claiborne Pell and John Pastore, both D-R.I., have proposed making daylight savings time a year-round event. They contend the bill would cut crime and traffic accidents, and lessen electric power demands.

President Nixon has named veteran diplomat David K. E. Bruce as head of the new U.S. mission in Peking with responsibility of building "for cause of peace and better relations."

The state

An attorney for former Illinois Revenue Director Theodore Isaacs moved for a new trial on grounds of "judicial error" in last month's trial which ended in convictions for Isaacs, and Judge Otto Kerner.

The Illinois House has passed 96-63, a bill that would allow 19 year olds to buy beer and wine. The bill now goes to the Senate, where a similar measure was defeated last year.

The Illinois General Assembly approved a $17.85 million emergency aid package for impoverished mass transit systems including a $12.6 million grant for the Chicago Transit Authority.

The world

Strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos of Panama denounced U.S. "colonialist" control of the Canal Zone, and also branded the economic blockade of Cuba a "hemispheric shame."

Washington and Hanoi officials conferred in Paris on U.S. economic aid for North Vietnam. They said they were determined to reach agreement.

Thirty-two POWS held by the Viet Cong — including the man held longest in the war — fly to freedom today.

The war

Communist terrorists killed 17 persons and wounded 88 others yesterday, only hours before a Canadian official arrived on a special mission to determine if the cease-fire is working well enough to justify his country's participation in the supervisory force. It was reported the Communists have committed 7,154 cease-fire violations.

members and administrators on a revolving basis. This is a citizens' committee formed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher to study alternative methods of school district organization within Schaumburg Township and the Village of Schaumburg.

The board decided it should keep informed on the actions of both committees because the proposed unit school district formation could affect a small portion of Dist. 15 that is within Palatine Township and the village boundaries of Schaumburg. The section of Dist. 15 possibly affected is between Plum Grove and Quentin roads and north and south of Algonquin Road.

BOARD MEMBERS expressed concern the Atcher citizens' committee appears "very highly politically motivated." The Schaumburg United Party has made a $5,000 contribution to the committee to hire a consultant to conduct the feasibility study.

Through its representation on the two committees, and a third committee formed by High School Dist. 214 to study school district organization, the board will attempt to keep informed on what the committees plans are, how the plans evolved and the reasons behind them.

The board also voted to renew its $25 one-year membership in the Dual-Unit Equality Organization. This organization is attempting to alleviate the discrepancy between state funds to unit school districts and state funds to dual districts.

subdivision. Jones explained that he had simply voted against appropriating federal revenue sharing funds for an engineering study of the Pump, as had VIP trustee candidate Shirley A. Munson, because they felt the cost should be borne by general revenues.

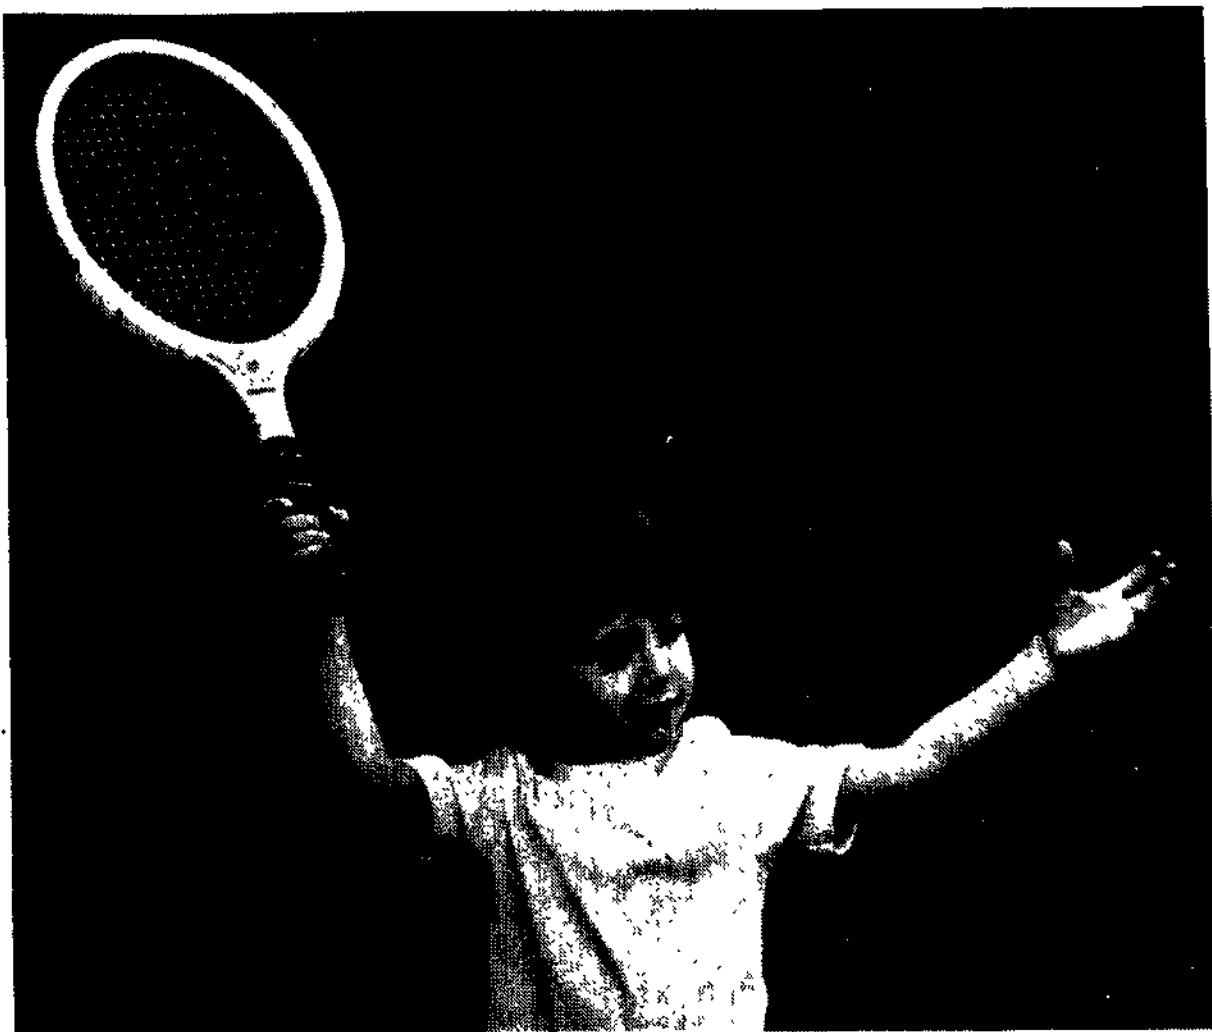

Then it was the Republicans' turn. One of the key planks in their platform is to implement the village's part of the Salt Creek watershed agreement by banning building in the flood plain.

BROWN REFERRED to this suggestion as an example of "half-truths and false statements," pointing out that the watershed plan identifies only two areas as flood plain, neither in Palatine. Besides, he said, the village has no statutory rights to prohibit building in the flood plain.

One other comment Brown made in regard to flooding may come back to haunt him.

He was asserting that Jones should be held responsible for communications between the village board and the residents, because of his role as chairman of the board's communications committee.

"If there's a breakdown of communications in the village (which the Republicans have charged), you point to the chairman of the communications committee," Brown said.

Then he added: "If there's a flooding problem, point to me (as chairman of the planning and public works committee). But let's put the blame where it belongs."

IF BROWN IS INDEED willing to take responsibility for flooding, he can expect plenty of blame.

Though he contends that the village has done all it can to combat flooding while awaiting implementation of the Salt Creek watershed plan, the fact is, many homes in Palatine still flood during heavy and not-so-heavy rainfalls.

On one matter both parties agreed.

Some of the residents from the North View subdivision demanded to know why the village annexed the Sellergren property, where four large apartment buildings are being constructed.

Brown said the property was zoned for multifamily use in unincorporated Cook County, and by bringing it into the village, the trustees could exert some control over the density and quality of whatever was to be built.

Jones, given equal time, said he agreed with Brown's explanation. He couldn't resist adding: "I hope the other things he talks about are as factual as his explanation of the Sellergren project." The two shook hands as the meeting ended.

COAKLEY SAID the fare to Chicago from the depot probably will fall about halfway between the Arlington Heights and Palatine tariffs.

The present monthly fare to Chicago is $39 from Palatine and $36.20 from Arlington Heights. On a round-trip, daily basis the fares are $3 from Palatine and $2.80 from Arlington Heights.

"We may hold off opening the station to commuters until after the racing season is over, in order to give them one full year's experience without conflicting with the racing crowd," he said.

But if the depot is finished well ahead of the close of the racing season, the station probably will open before the final racing date, Coakley said.

THE NEW DEPOT at Arlington Park Race Track is now under construction and should be complete by about June 1. The station may not open to commuters, however, until after the close of the racing season at the track, now set for July 24. The building, shown here in a rendering by architect Ronald H. Stahl of Arlington Heights, will match the brick used in the Arlington Park Theatre. The building, which will cost $100,000 is being paid for by the Village of Arlington Heights.

Unfair practices charges filed against General Time

Charges of unfair labor practices have been filed against the General Time Co. in Rolling Meadows by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Union Local 713.

Union spokesmen yesterday said the charges were filed with the National Labor Relations Board in connection with the 24-week-old strike of production workers at the company. A spokesman said the matter is now in the hands of the board and declined to comment on the specific nature of the charges.

Spokesmen for the company yesterday said they had no comment in connection with the charges or the strike.

The deadlocked dispute has surrounded a union demand that the company accept a closed union shop clause in worker contracts. The company has refused and negotiations with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service have failed to achieve a compromise.

Work has continued at the company, located at 1200 S. Hicks Rd., during the strike. Union officials have conceded that some strikers have returned to work and that replacements have been hired for the remaining striking personnel.

The strike originally involved 125 production workers.

Picket signs have remained outside the entrance to the company although union officials have stopped manning a picket line. No incidents have been reported at the site during the five-month-long strike.

General Time is a subsidiary of Talley Industries and manufactures electronic components.

TAX REASSESSMENT... City Treasurer Robert Cole has expressed concern that Rolling Meadows will suffer financially if a state bill is passed to distribute sales tax to municipalities on the basis of population rather than simply to the city where the money is collected. The city benefits under the current system of distribution to the tune of $100,000 per month, so city officials don't want to see the system changed. But not so long ago, when the city was struggling along in 1967 with an average return of $10,000 monthly, then-Ald. James Watson said the rebates should be based on population to benefit smaller communities without industry. "It would be a truer reflection of the sales tax paid by residents," Watson said at that time.

What a difference $90,000 makes.

Change meeting date

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education will hold its next regular board meeting April 18 instead of April 11. The change in dates was made so the board would be able to canvass the results of the April 14 school board election at its meeting.

3 pending bills could cripple village's finances

Three bills pending in the Illinois General Assembly dealing with distribution of sales tax revenue may spell financial disaster for Rolling Meadows if approved.

The bills seek changes in the way sales tax collected by the state is distributed to municipalities. Under present distribution, Rolling Meadows has received an average of $100,000 monthly from commercial and industrial interests in the city. The lucrative return is the second highest paid in the state, surpassed only by Chicago, according to City Treasurer Robert Cole.

But the sum may be substantially reduced and possibly wiped out completely if one or more of the bills is approved, Cole said.

"One is House Bill 441," Cole said yesterday. "It would send all sales tax money to the school districts. It's almost inconceivable that this would pass."

ANOTHER BILL calls for the allocation of 20 per cent of collected sales tax to go to the city of origin, or the city where the money was collected, with the remaining 80 per cent distributed to the city of origin and other municipalities in the county on a per capita, or population, basis, Cole said.

The third measure calls for the removal of sales tax on food and drugs, he said.

Cole said bills to change the distribution system have been presented in the legislature before but have always been defeated largely because of opposition by the City of Chicago. Like Rolling Meadows, Chicago benefits by the present system of distribution, Cole said, but he warned continued opposition from Chicago may not be counted upon indefinitely.

"If things start to change and it becomes more advantageous for Chicago to get sales tax in a different way, they might support a change," he said. "But the population in Chicago is supposedly decreasing," which could dissuade the city from supporting per capita distribution.

"I would guess, and I'm only guessing, that it's still advantageous to Chicago to have sales tax distributed the way it is now," Cole said.

Sales tax rebates account for almost half of Rolling Meadows' annual revenue. Most recently the city received $109,619 in sales tax rebates for the month of December. The completion of the Levitz Furniture store, to be constructed near the Arlington Park Race Track, is expected to provide the city with an additional $120,000 in sales tax yearly.

IN THE PAST, support to change the distribution formula for sales tax has come from small communities which lack large commercial or industrial areas. Municipalities with larger populations have also supported the switch to per capita distribution of the monies.

Because of its windfall monthly sales tax returns, Rolling Meadows has been able to abate a number of taxes, including real estate, police pension fund, mental health and garbage collection taxes.

Cole said he has not determined how passage of two of the particular bills would affect the sales tax income of the city. "But in the case of the school district measure (HB 441), it's easy to figure how much would be lost," he said.

"On the one hand I don't think the bills will pass," Cole added, "but on the other hand they bear watching."

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has introduced four bills aimed at giving "immediate protection" to Great Lakes and other shorelines endangered by erosion. The bills include a three-year, $5 million study of Lake Michigan.

President Nixon announced he will seek prompt removal of a U.S. tariff on beef imports to help curb rising meat prices, but said the best weapon against inflated food costs was still the American housewife.

President Nixon warned Senate Democrats they would get nowhere holding L. Patrick Gray III as "hostage" for White House testimony on the Watergate affair.

Senators Claiborne Pell and John Pastore, both D-R.I., have proposed making daylight savings time a year-round event. They contend the bill would cut crime and traffic accidents, and lessen electric power demands.

President Nixon has named veteran diplomat David K. E. Bruce as head of the new U.S. mission in Peking with responsibility of building "for cause of peace and better relations."

An attorney for former Illinois Revenue Director Theodore Isaacs moved for a new trial on grounds of "judicial error" in last month's trial which ended in convictions for Isaacs, and Judge Otto Kernner.

The Illinois House has passed 94-63, a

TRAGEDY WAS AVERTED yesterday morning when Rudolph Ryniak of Berwyn crawled to safety after the full cement truck he was driving tipped over at Palatine Road and Ill. Rte. 53 in Arlington Heights. Ryniak was treated for a bruised shoulder and released from Northwest Community Hospital. It took police nearly three hours to remove the rig, which blocked two lanes of traffic. "The truck was demolished and Ryniak was lucky he wasn't killed," said Jim Uggla, the investigating Arlington Heights policeman. Ryniak, who works for Vulcan Material in Palatine, was charged with driving too fast for conditions, according to Uggla, who also said the accident is still under investigation. Finance, street committees want new ones

Name change OK sought

Clarification from Rolling Meadows City Atty Donald Rose on whether names of standing committees of the city council may be changed is being sought by the city's ordinance and judiciary committee.

The committee agreed Wednesday to send a letter to Rose asking for a legal opinion on whether the names of two committees, the finance and purchasing committee, and the streets, alleys and utilities committee could be changed.

An ordinance calling for the names of the committees to be changed to administration and finance committee, and public works committee was tabled Tuesday during a city council meeting when an argument broke out on the meaning of the new finance committee name.

Ald. Daniel Weber (4th) objected to the word "administration" in the finance committee title, hinting he felt the committee was attempting to overstep its authority by handling administrative problems in the city.

WHEN OTHER aldermen and Mayor Roland Meyer indicated they disapproved of the term as well, Ald. Kenneth Retzke (6th) blasted the council for all but dissolving the finance committee.

Retzke, a member of the committee, charged a concerted effort has been made to take away the committee's powers, especially in light of a recent decision by some city aldermen and Meyer to no longer allow the committee to review the budget.

The city has, for the past 18 years, submitted the budget for preliminary review to the finance committee before study by the entire city council. This year, however, the budget will be submitted to the full council before adoption.

Rose will be asked to determine whether state statutes or city ordinances spell out the duties of each committee and what the name of the committees should be.

"I don't think the names mean much," Ald. Tom Waldron (2nd), a member of the ordinance and judiciary committee, commented yesterday. Waldron said the committee will use Rose's opinion to help determine whether the name-changes will be pursued.

Safety code, renovation pact for school approved

A contract with Pritscher and Erbach for extensive Life Safety Code and renovation work at Winston Park School has been entered into by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education.

Pritscher and Erbach's low bid of $773,371 was accepted by the board at its February meeting. The board has budgeted $854,755 for the project. This includes the construction cost, architect's fee and a contingency fund.

Deadline for completion of the work is Aug. 15. The work will begin in April after Winston Park School students have been transferred to the new Palatine Hills Junior High School. The district's timetable calls for moving equipment into Palatine Hills Junior High School on April 14, giving teachers April 15 and 16 to get their classrooms ready and on April 17 transferring students to the new school.

The renovation, which will be done in conjunction with Life Safety Code work, is aimed at transforming the school into a complete junior high school. The renovation will include adding practical arts classrooms, locker rooms and showers, converting the kitchen into a classroom and enlarging the teachers' lounge.

Lonze builders give $5,000 to school fund

Developers of the Lonze property in Inverness have agreed to make a $5,000 contribution to Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

Arthur J. Rogers and Robert Lonze, the developers, proposed to construct 304 condominium units on the 40 acre site on the west side of Roselle Road near Algonquin Road.

The contribution will be made when all necessary permits have been obtained from the Village of Inverness for construction of the development. The contribution is designed to compensate Dist. 15 for any financial loss suffered due to the anticipated time lag between when the district gets children from the development and when it receives real estate taxes from the development.

Deputy Supt. Joseph Kiszka said the district expects to receive more than 150 elementary school-age children from the development.

Park board gets lease on Dawngate park site

The lease of a six-acre site in the Dawngate subdivision to the Rolling Meadows Park District has been tentatively approved by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education.

The Rolling Meadows Park District plans to use the wooded site to develop a neighborhood park with a tot lot for residents in the Dawngate and Creekside subdivisions.

The board's decision is subject to approval by the school attorney of the lease agreement. The financial terms of the agreement and length of the lease have not been finalized. The park district will be required to carry liability insurance on the property.

The school district originally planned to build a school on the site but decided not to. For the past year the district has been using the site in its outdoor education program.

School hot lunch program may expand

Expansion of the pilot hot lunch program to include all 20 schools in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 next year has been approved by the Board of Education.

The lunches will be "home prepared" at a central kitchen in the new Palatine Hills Junior High School and shipped to the other schools where they will be heated in a warmer oven.

The district expects to be preparing between 2,400 and 2,500 lunches daily.

The district has been piloting the present hot lunch program for two years in anticipation of the opening of the central kitchen next year. The pilot program now includes Winston Park, Virginia Lake, Stuart Paddock, Gray M. Sanborn, Joel Wood and Hunting Ridge Schools in Palatine and Carl Sandburg, Central Road and Jonas Salk Schools in Rolling Meadows.

School district to be represented in study

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will have non-voting representation on two unit school district study committees in Schaumburg Township.

The board of education voted Wednesday to send an administrative representative to the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 unification subcommittee meeting March 21.

The Schaumburg Unit School District Feasibility Study committee, which meets Friday, will be covered by board members and administrators on a revolving basis. This is a citizens' committee formed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher to study alternative methods of school district organization within Schaumburg Township and the Village of Schaumburg.

The board decided it should keep informed on the actions of both committees because the proposed unit school district formation could affect a small portion of Dist. 15 that is within Palatine Township and the village boundaries of Schaumburg. The section of Dist. 15 possibly affected is between Plum Grove and Quentin roads and north and south of Algonquin Road.

BOARD MEMBERS expressed concern the Atcher citizens' committee appears "very highly politically motivated." The Schaumburg United Party has made a $5,000 contribution to the committee to hire a consultant to conduct the feasibility study.

Through its representation on the two committees, and a third committee formed by High School Dist. 214 to study school district organization, the board will attempt to keep informed on what the committees plans are, how the plans evolved and the reasons behind them. The board also voted to renew its $25 one-year membership in the Dual-Unit Equality Organization. This organization is attempting to alleviate the discrepancy between state funds to unit school districts and state funds to dual districts.

Decision on fire union recognition due tomorrow

The results of negotiations between union firefighters and trustees in the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District on the issue of whether or not the union will be recognized will be announced at a press conference tomorrow.

Representatives of the International Association of Firefighters, AFL-CIO, local 2061 met for several hours last night in renewed discussions on the recognition issue. The results of the closed-door session had not been announced by late last night.

This was the second such session between the union and fire district trustees this month. The talks were renewed after the union requested the meeting with district officials.

The announcement of the press conference was made yesterday by local union president Richard Cordova. He declined to elaborate on what action the union might take if the group is not recognized by the district's board of trustees.

The trustees reportedly do not favor the recognition.

THE HERALD learned earlier this week that the union representatives have considered the establishment of picket lines, manned by off-duty firefighters at the district's two stations if the union is not recognized.

Cordova declined to comment on this report. The union is reportedly considering a number of activities which might help increase the public's awareness of the group's efforts.

The local union was formed in mid-1971 but the district's trustees have never formally recognized its existence. The union and the trustees have met several times in the past to discuss the recognition issue but the matter was never resolved.

The relations between the union, which represents 10 of the district's 15 full-time firefighters, and the trustees has been the subject of some controversy.

Last year, the district lost a case in Cook County circuit court when a judge ruled one of the firefighters had been fired illegally because of his activities as a union official.

'News blackout' for teacher salary talks

A news blackout will prevail throughout teacher contract negotiations that began yesterday in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, said Gordon Thoren, board of education negotiating team chairman.

Thoren in answer to questions about the first negotiation session, told the Herald "we met; there will be no comments."

Asked if the no comment statement applied to just this first ground rules meeting, Thoren said there would be no comment throughout the negotiation.

This year both teachers and board of education negotiations teams have the help of professional spokesmen. Chicago attorney Marvin Glink represents the board of education team. Dave Tomcheck, Illinois Education Association regional director, represents the Schaumburg Education Association, bargaining for the teachers.

Koy coy about weed commissioner job

"It's audacious, if not unethical," said a challenging township candidate as he cited the present Schaumburg Township Board with "insolent behavior" in the recent appointment of a weed commissioner.

Dick English, independent candidate for township trustee, said he challenges the recent appointment of Ken Coy, sales manager at Quinlan and Tyson Realtors in Schaumburg as township weed commissioner.

"I question the propriety of the appointment because Koy is Township Clerk Kathleen Wojcik's boss in the realty office she works in as a sales person," said English.

Koy, contacted by the Herald, said he has not accepted the $800 a year position but has been notified of the appointment.

KOY SAID he sees no impropriety in accepting the job.

He said "the fact Mrs. Wojcik works for me is immaterial."

Koy complained he is being harassed by telephone callers. "I cannot understand the fuss about this since I have not yet made up my mind if I will accept the job," he said.

Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein said he was under the impression Koy wanted the job as weed commissioner and had accepted the post. "I think as a Realtor he is very well suited for the weed commissioner's position," said Laubenstein.

Laubenstein said "I considered Koy for the job because the township and realty offices were so close and because he is my friend and the clerk recommended

Caucus to study election role

A citizens caucus committee will decide Monday whether it will play a role in the upcoming Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 April election.

A group of Schaumburg Township organizations voted March 2 to form the caucus committee with the general purpose of encouraging qualified candidates to seek election to the board of education.

A steering committee, chaired by John A. Lucas, is outlining other goals and by-laws.

Lucas is seeking further representation on the committee from nonpolitical, nonreligious organizations and urges that representatives attend the 8 p.m. Monday meeting in the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 Library Ln., Schaumburg.

Lucas said the purpose of the caucus could be to encourage candidacy or give specific endorsement of candidates.

That decision will be made by representatives of organizations that seek a voice on the committee.

Lucas said each civic or educational organization that asks to be included in the caucus will be allowed one voting member, but anyone can attend as a non-voting observer.

A donation of $1 per voting member is asked to defray mailing costs, said Lucas.

And others are green with envy

Faith 'n B'gorrah, Irishmen abound

by PAT GERLACH
Hennessy, Conroy, O'Donnell, O'Dowd,

Doherty, Lenaghan, Downey and ... Derda?

Sure'n the bunch are not exactly McNamara's lads. But they do represent an ample band of Irish whose ties to the Emerald Isle grew a wee tighter on the 17th of March.

Research sez that local Irishmen, like whiskey, generally come in two varieties — imported and domestic. Unlike liquid spirits, this case 'domestic' is usually a produce of the imported, itself.

Too, there's a blend (two-parts Irish and a jigger except on St. Patrick's Day, o' something' else).

Now take, for example, Matt O'Dowd, of Hoffman Estates, and Leo Lenaghan, from Schaumburg. They're yer typical bona fide old sod Irish.

O'DOWD EMIGRATED from County Cavan at the age of 20; Lenaghan was born in Donegal, grew up in England and came to America. Both in business in Hoffman Estates, O'Dowd sells carpet and Lenaghan's in accounting.

Now 'tis a strange tale indeed, but neither of the two ever tasted even a morsel of corned beef and cabbage before coming to this country.

Accordin' to O'Dowd, lamb (either roast or in stew) turkey or goose are the usual holiday fare back home. Leo, on the other hand, sez most Irishmen would rather have "a good plate of murrphy's (potatoes) any day."

AND MATTIE is after tellin', too, that there isn't any drinkin' over there 'cause the pubs are closed on Paddy's Day.

But every real Irishman dresses up in green and wears his twig o' shamrock on that day. And it's fer sure both say, that the shamrock only grows on Irish soil.

They're both so sad y'know, about what's goin' on at home. O'Dowd believes that England should have given up the north so long ago. And Lenaghan is callin' it "a quirk o' history" and the saddest thing he ever wants to see.

"There'd be nothin' wrong if Ireland could be free," the two agree.

But, then agin' there's still another kind of Irish. Like Schaumburg's lepre-chaun, Mike Doherty, whose folks both come from Belfast (pronounced bel-FAST). And his bein' on the park board there in Schaumburg for the past two years and all.

HE'S A CUT ABOVE yer usual first generation Irish havin' visited the old country and marched in Chicago's St. Pat's Parade fer seven or so years.

Now, to be sure, about as close as ye can come to bein' a 100 per cent Irisher is Schaumburg's Police Chief Marty Conroy.

His mother, Ellen Neary, was raised in Galway and married into the Conroy's from Castlebar.

John O'Connell, chief o' the force in Hoffman Estates is second generation Irish. His grandparents (may they rest in peace) came from Cork.

And how about that fine buck-o, Edward Hennessy? Irish through and through. And on the village board and all in Hoffman Estates. With his wife, the fine Mary, bein' mostly Irish, too.

THEN, THE MAYOR there, too, Fred Downey, is part Irish o'course. And with two of the daughters bein' Colleen and Maureen. St. Patrick be praised!

But, now, ye know, for a combination o' Irish and another breed, there's nothin' better than that fine redheaded Paul Derda comin' from the park district in Schaumburg. His mother was a Sullivan y'know, but with the father bein' Polish, it was a mixed marriage.

Fer these and all the others, an Irish blessing from one descended from those who live in Carrikmacross:

May the leprechaun be near us to spread luck along our way. And may all the Irish angels smile on us this St. Patrick's Day.

Shopping center sale still unconfirmed

Confirmation of the possible sale of the Golf-Rose Shopping Center was unavailable yesterday. Spokesman for the center, Art Kelter, declined to comment on earlier reports that the sale was imminent.

The shopping center, at Golf and Roselle roads in Hoffman Estates, is owned by Roselle-Golf Realtors, a corporation that includes Hoffman-Rosner Co. employees.

Kelter said Robert Haag, part-owner of the shopping center and an executive with Hoffman-Rosner, may discuss the sale today. Haag was in Chicago yesterday and unavailable to comment.

Reports said the potential purchaser is a Chicago loop firm involved in shopping center management.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has introduced four bills aimed at giving "immediate protection" to Great Lakes and other shorelines endangered by erosion. The bills include a three-year, $5 million study of Lake Michigan.

President Nixon announced he will seek prompt removal of a U.S. tariff on beef imports to help curb rising meat prices, but said the best weapon against inflated food costs was still the American housewife.

President Nixon warned Senate Democrats they would get nowhere holding L. Patrick Gray III as "hostage" for White House testimony on the Watergate affair.

Senators Claiborne Pell and John Pastore, both D-R.I., have proposed making daylight savings time a year-round event. They contend the bill would cut crime and traffic accidents, and lessen electric power demands.

President Nixon has named veteran diplomat David K. E. Bruce as head of the new U.S. mission in Peking with responsibility of building "for cause of peace and better relations."

The state

An attorney for former Illinois Revenue Director Theodore Isaacs moved for a new trial on grounds of "judicial error" in last month's trial which ended in convictions for Isaacs, and Judge Otto Kerner.

The Illinois House has passed 96-63, a bill that would allow 19 year olds to buy beer and wine. The bill now goes to the Senate, where a similar measure was defeated last year.

The Illinois General Assembly approved a $17.85 million emergency aid package for impoverished mass transit systems including a $12.6 million grant for the Chicago Transit Authority.

The world

Washington and Hanoi officials conferred in Paris on U.S. economic aid for North Vietnam. They said they were determined to reach agreement.

TRAGEDY WAS AVERTED yesterday morning when Rudolph Ryniak of Berwyn crawled to safety after the full cement truck he was driving tipped over at Palatine Road and Ill. Rte. 53 in Arlington Heights. Ryniak was treated for a bruised shoulder and released from North-west Community Hospital. It took police nearly three hours to remove the rig, which blocked two lanes of traffic. "The truck was demolished and Ryniak was lucky he wasn't killed," said Jim Uggla, the investigating Arlington Heights policeman. Ryniak, who works for Vulcan Material in Palatine, was charged with driving too fast for conditions, according to Uggla, who also said the accident is still under investigation.

1st hospital gift made

The first donation from an area civic organization toward the fund being established to construct the proposed branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Schaumburg was announced yesterday.

A $100 donation will be presented to Mrs. Jeanne Kessell, head of the fund raising effort, by Mrs. Marge Melford in behalf of the Schaumburg United Party Women's Auxiliary.

Mrs. Kessell said the contribution marks the first official donation made to the hospital development. Several developers have pledged to make donations, she added.

Mrs. Kessell said she is now laying the groundwork for a comprehensive fund raising effort and will announce plans in the near future.

Chamber merger opinions sought

Members of the chamber of commerce groups in both Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg will be receiving questionnaires in the near future to determine reaction on a proposal to merge the associations.

In meetings held this week, the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce and Industry and the Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce decided to distribute the questionnaires to determine if the members were in favor of a merger.

The question of a merger has been in the discussion stages for several months, but there has been no formal action taken by either group to study the proposal.

Members of the Hoffman Estates group were generally in favor of the merger proposal after a brief discussion of the suggestion at a meeting Tuesday.

The Schaumburg chamber discussed the merger question for more than an hour yesterday with a number of divergent viewpoints expressed.

MANY OF THE persons present at the meeting appeared to be against the merger. They argued that merging the two chambers would not have any advantages. Others said that in the near future the chamber should grow large enough on its own and there is no need to merge with the Hoffman Estates business community.

Other members suggested that if the two chambers were merged, a stronger voice could be presented on matters of regional and state issues.

Bothe Chuck Brazelton, president of the Hoffman Estates chapter and Wally Kukla, president of the Schaumburg chamber stressed that the questionnaires do not represent a commitment by either group to take any action and that the results will be used for informational purposes only.

Both groups indicated there will be further discussion on the topic before any action is taken.

Appropriations ordinance gets initial village OK

The appropriations ordinance for the Village of Schaumburg, the document which permits the village to spend money, received initial approval from the village board this week.

Final action on the ordinance is due March 27. It must be adopted before March 31, under state law requiring that action within the first quarter of a municipality's fiscal year. Schaumburg's year starts Jan. 1.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher emphasized that the figures in the ordinance do not give an accurate picture of amounts the village expects to spend. It is inflated, he said, to permit the village to spend more money than it now anticipates needing, should extra funds be available and their use be necessary. Villages can spend only as much money as their appropriation ordinances show, and no more.

Mrs. Popp names campaign staff

Village election campaign staff assignments were announced by Suzanne P. Popp, of Schaumburg, this week.

An independent candidate for a two-year trustee term, Mrs. Popp opposes Ray McArthur, Schaumburg United Party (SUP) nominee.

Carol Buckley has been named coffee chairman for Mrs. Popp. Residents wishing to sponsor or attend a coffee for her may make arrangements by contacting Mrs. Buckley, 894-2948.

Karen Hammond will serve as volunteer coordinator and may be reached at 894-3939.

An announcement concerning office hours at Mrs. Popp's 29 Weathersfield Common campaign headquarters will be forthcoming. Space at that address has been provided for the candidate by Robert W. Donovan, D.D.S., an orthodontist practicing in Schaumburg and other Northwest suburban areas.

Mrs. Popp will spend Saturday visiting residents in the Somerset Lane area of Weathersfield.

Sunday she will be in Lancer Park subdivision. Residents of that area are asked to contact Diane Augustine, 529-1939, to arrange for a personal call. Mrs. Augustine is the Popp area worker in Lancer Park.

Mrs. Popp will participate in candidate nights March 21 at Aldrin PTA, March 22 at St. Marcelline's Holy Name Society, and March 23 at Timbercrest Homeowners Association.

him." Laubenstein said he could not understand Koy's reservations about accepting the appointment but said unless Koy wanted the contract it would be given to someone else.

"Koy WAS recommended to the supervisor for appointment by me," said Mrs. Wojcik.

"I'm not at all concerned about any charges or hints that there is anything wrong with my recommending him. The fact that he's my boss had nothing to do with it. I happen to think he is qualified for the job," she said.

Mrs. Wojcik said Koy, as a realtor, has expertise in searching out lot ownership. As weed commissioner he would have the responsibility of cutting empty lots twice yearly. Also, checking ownership and billing for the cuttings.

Last year the township cleared $172 in profits after paying the former commissioner $400 in salary and $200 in expenses.

Mrs. Wojcik said collection returns brought in $72.

She said "Koy would probably double the amount we get back in collections because he can track down the owners."

District to be represented in schools study

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will have non-voting representation on two unit school district study committees in Schaumburg Township.

The board of education voted Wednesday to send an administrative representative to the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 unification subcommittee meeting March 21.

The Schaumburg Unit School District Feasibility Study committee, which meets Friday, will be covered by board members and administrators on a revolving basis. This is a citizens' committee formed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher to study alternative methods of school district organization within Schaumburg Township and the Village of Schaumburg.

The board decided it should keep informed on the actions of both committees because the proposed unit school district formation could affect a small portion of Dist. 15 that is within Palatine Township and the village boundaries of Schaumburg. The section of Dist. 15 possibly affected is between Plum Grove and Quentin roads and north and south of Algonquin Road.

BOARD MEMBERS expressed concern the Atcher citizens' committee appears "very highly politically motivated." The Schaumburg United Party has made a $5,000 contribution to the committee to hire a consultant to conduct the feasibility study.

Through its representation on the two committees, and a third committee formed by High School Dist. 214 to study school district organization, the board will attempt to keep informed on what the committees plans are, how the plans evolved and the reasons behind them.

The board also voted to renew its $25 one-year membership in the Dual-Unit Equality Organization. This organization is attempting to alleviate the discrepancy between state funds to unit school districts and state funds to dual districts.

Police seek red car in probe of robbery

Mount Prospect police are searching for the driver of a red car to help identify an armed robbery suspect.

Police believe the red car, make unknown, was almost involved in an accident with a yellow car, possibly a Pinto, about 1 p.m. March 9 while heading west on Golf Road, about 200 yards west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect. Police hope the driver of the red car will come forward and possibly help identify the driver of the yellow car, or the car itself.

The yellow car was seen speeding out of the shopping center at the southwest corner of Golf and Busse roads shortly after an armed robbery at Western Fashions, 1749 W. Golf Rd. Police believe the driver of the yellow car may have been involved in the robbery.

The yellow car apparently almost collided with the red car and forced the red car up onto the median strip. Police said they also had a report of a yellow car a short time later almost involved in a second accident as it turned northwest off of Golf Road onto Algonquin Road.

About $90 was taken during the holdup and a clerk, Mary Kozel of unincorporated Mount Prospect, was struck on the head and hand, resulting in a fractured skull and hand.

Police described the robbery suspect as a white male, about 26 years old, between 5 feet 4 inches and 5 feet 6 inches tall. He is of stocky build, about 175 pounds, has medium-length light brown hair and a full beard and moustache. He wore a navy blue silk jacket over a T-shirt.

Anyone with information may contact police detectives by phoning 392-6000.

Schaumburg water report due in next few months

Schaumburg will receive an analytical report on its water supply system in the next 2 to 2½ months.

The village board Tuesday night approved contracting for the analysis with Hydraulic Network Analysts and Engineers, a subsidiary of Murphy Engineers, at a cost of $4,000.

To be examined are the water distribution, wells and storage systems and the adequacy and condition of water mains, said Village Engineer Joe Zgonina. The firm also will determine dividing lines between high and low water pressure systems and recommend future locations of wells, storage facilities and automatic controls. Areas where improvements are needed in water mains will be specified, he said.

The village has had no previous intensive analysis of the system performed, Zgonina said.

THE BOARD ALSO approved agreements and its share of funding for signalization and channelization of the Roselle Road intersections at Schaumburg and Wise roads, under the federal Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and safety (TOPICS).

Bids are to be opened by Cook County on the projects May 9, said Zgonina, and construction is to start about June 1. The village is to maintain the signal lights after they are installed, under the program, the village, county, state and federal government share in installation and pavement construction costs. The state and county share engineering costs.

Also approved were the granting of an easement at the new civic and cultural center site to Northern Illinois Gas Co. and a change in ordinances detailing payment methods for the deep well to be constructed at Del Lago Villas. Originally, developers of property to be served by the well were to contribute toward and be reimbursed by waived tap-on fees after development progressed. Since some lands have changed ownership, the new parties to the agreement must be listed in the ordinances.

Initial rezoning and special use permit approval were granted for a specialty shopping center on the southeast corner of Golf Road and the proposed extension of Salem Drive. Developers of the 10-acre site are represented by Smith-Pi-penhagen, Inc., realty and development firm, which proposes a convenience service station and shops for cameras, china, gifts, boutique items, cards, shoes and interior decorating materials. The center will have 75,000 square feet of floor space.

Building permits not halted yet

A moratorium on issuance of building permits for property in the proposed old town section of the Village of Schaumburg was not granted by the village board Tuesday night, but it appeared the freeze would be initiated shortly.

The village plan commission recommended the moratorium for the next few months, until development and board approval of an old town ordinance is completed. The area in question is one quarter mile square around the intersection of Schaumburg and Roselle roads.

Raymond McArthur, plan commission chairman, said he hoped to establish a landmark commission with authority similar to the plan commission's and under its jurisdiction, to supervise development of the area. The moratorium could be lifted when the commission is activated, he suggested.

VILLAGE ATTY. Jack Siegel said the village could initiate the moratorium, but only after it has a concrete proposal under consideration. As soon as the old town ordinance is drafted for consideration, he suggested the village board act on McArthur's request. McArthur said the ordinance now is in its second

Streams group will make flood control trip

The Mount Prospect Drainage and Clean Streams Commission will take its study of a recommended $8 million flood prevention plan into the field Sunday.

The commission will look at current retention basins and recommended sites for retention basins during their trip, which begins at 8:30 a.m. The commission will also be seeking alternatives, if available, to sites included in the Conser, Townsend and Associates plan. They hope to eliminate land purchase costs.

The Conser, Townsend report will be submitted to the village board Tuesday. By April 3, the commission hopes to give the board its recommendation on the report and the over-all flood prevention program.

TO FACILITATE the preparation of the commission's report, Chairman George March said that this week each commission member was given an area to study and report on. In addition to the actual projects that should be undertaken by the village, other items to be studied include a brief summary of flooding history in the village and an outline of events leading to the Conser, Townsend report.

One commission member will be responsible for setting up a priority schedule for the recommended projects. Another will work on setting up a public information program, designed to inform the homeowner on what he can do to alleviate his own and his neighbors' flooding. A brochure on this subject will be assembled by the commission, March said.

There will be a status report drawn up on all the creeks and waterways within the village. The commission recommendations will be related to efforts by other governmental bodies, including Arlington Heights, the Metropolitan Sanitary District, the park districts and the Illinois Division of Waterways.

TWO BASIC studies were conducted by Conser, Townsend. They studied the current sewer system for its adequacy and found it to be about 50 per cent of what it should be. They also came up with a list of the village's most flood-prone areas.

In addition to recommending seven new retention basins and a temporary detention basin, the engineering firm's report called for a series of relief storm sewers throughout most of the village.

The drainage and clean streams commission will meet Wednesday, at which time each member is to submit a report on his progress in his particular study area.

"EVERY PICTURE Tells a Story" will be the theme of the Forest View High School orchesis production, to be presented at the school today and Saturday. Thirty-five girls will perform beginning at 8 p.m. each night. Tickets are $1.

Radio club sponsors St. Pat's Day dance

The John Hersey High School Radio Club will sponsor a St. Patrick's Day Dance Saturday at the school.

Tickets are $3.75 and are available at the door. The dance is from 7:30 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Supt. Percy reviews his role, looks forward

by MARY HOULEHAN
"I was sitting there and suddenly it hit me like a bolt of lightning. I thought — my God, what have I done?"

This was Richard Percy's first reaction, when, as he listened to a symphony concert recently he realized the meaning of his resignation as superintendent of Mount Prospect School Dist. 57.

Though it was a shock, Percy's initial feeling of trauma didn't last long. "It's no big deal. The cemeteries are full of people who were replaceable," Percy later admitted.

TODAY PERCY, 61, finds little time to dwell on what might have been. He's more interested in looking ahead. But this is nothing new. It's been Percy's attitude ever since he assumed the superintendent's post last May.

Coming in on the heels of a school year that saw the overwhelming defeat of a tax increase referendum, the exit of the school board president and superintendent — to say nothing of a huge credibility gap created between the school district and the community — Percy offered no cure-alls.

"We are all aware," he said in addressing the teachers at Institute Day last September, "that there has been a change in administration. But this has only meant that one human being has replaced another human being. It doesn't mean that I have come forward with a secret formula to solve the problems that face us. It means that I am a human being who will make... errors."

IN TAKING over the post of superintendent, Percy set up a list of goals for himself. "First of all I wanted to develop the very best kind of human relationship," he said. Did he think he accomplished this goal? "I can't comment on that."

According to Robert Novy, school board president, Percy worked hard on meeting the goal. "I think Dr. Percy is certainly quite a public relations man and I think this comes as the result of his warm understanding and communication with people," Novy said. "I feel that we've certainly had much better rapport with the people in the town (since he became superintendent)."

The other goal Percy wanted to achieve was to establish more consistency in what is taught in each school. Percy himself instituted several programs to see that this goal was implemented.

"We've developed a districtwide social studies program and science programs," he said. "We have written goals which have been achieved in math and we've developed a language arts program at the junior high school."

BESIDES THESE two major priorities, Percy also contributed a great deal toward streamlining school board meetings in the last year. Prior to his taking on the superintendent's post, the Dist. 57 board was known for its long, drawn-out meetings. No longer, however. Board members managed to finish all their business by a record 10 p.m. one night.

"I think I should have a recommendation with everything I submit to the board," explained Percy, "but when it's something that's originated from the board, I don't feel I have that kind of authority."

With all of these successes, it was a surprise when Percy announced his resignation last month. "We tried to persuade him to stay, but he told us that he was afraid of our powers of persuasion," said Board Pres. Robert Novy. In fact, Percy said it took several meetings with the board before they were convinced Percy was going to resign.

But Percy had definite reasons for leaving.

"I will ultimately retire in a couple of years," said Percy in announcing his resignation. "It seemed to me, in all fairness to the district, it is better to have a man in the office who can make long range plans and carry them out."

"Next, my own kids have wanted me to do something that approaches retirement for the past several years. In fact, this last Christmas they indicated in a letter that the only thing they really wanted was for me to get out of public school administration.

"Finally, I have reached that point where the difference between my take-home pay and what I would earn under retirement is insignificant," Percy said.

A DABBLER in art and gardening, Percy is looking forward with relish to the free time he'll have, starting in June.

He doesn't think he'll stay in the Chicago area. "I think I'd like to go to the eastern shore of Lake Michigan somewhere. What I'd really like is to teach the fall semester at a college and then go to the Bahamas for the winter. I have a couple of leads on teaching a class at a little college," Percy said.

Musing a little, he admitted if he didn't have all his family responsibilities, he might like to try something different, like joining the Peace Corps. "I don't know what I'd do. If I knew enough, I could do agricultural work or dig drainage ditches, but I don't think they'd have me do that sort of thing because I don't have any qualifications in those areas."

Somehow, he'd manage.

2 votes may be needed if book fee ends

Two more referenda may be facing Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 voters if a recommendation to drop rental fees for textbooks is approved.

The budget committee recommended Wednesday that the rental fees be dropped. Wednesday was the first meeting to discuss the 1973-74 budget.

If the entire Dist. 59 board approves the recommendation at Monday's meeting, state law requires that the issue be submitted to the voters by referendum. The referendum would be part of the regular school board election April 14. If it were passed the rental fee would be dropped for the coming school year.

Dropping the rental fee is estimated to cost the district approximately $114,000 in lost revenue. The committee made its recommendations after studying projected revenues, expenses and borrowing for the educational fund for the coming school year.

STATE LAW PROHIBITS the school district from lowering the rental fee to an insignificant amount. The fee must either be completely eliminated or else cover the approximate costs of textbooks.

By law, the referendum must ask the voters if they want "free textbooks," with a "yes" or "no" response marked on the ballot.

Actually, the term "free" is misleading. Funds to make up the lost revenue will come from the educational fund, which is part of the real estate tax levy.

Textbooks would also be supplied to the parochial schools within the district. Expenses for these books would be reimbursed by the state.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS said the district may then seek a referendum to increase the tax rate for the educational fund to cover the loss of textbook fee revenue. The referendum, if sought, would probably not be until fall of this year.

The present textbook fee is $10 per child. At the meeting Wednesday, the committee members discussed the possibility of a referendum for approximately a two-cent increase per $100 assessed valuation.

The owner of a home assessed at $10,000 would then pay $2 more in taxes if the referendum passed.

For a family with one child in the district, if the two-cent referendum passed, the net effect would be an $8 savings in the cost of textbooks.

For each additional child in the district, the family would save an additional $10.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks plunged 9.03 points to 969.82. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index lost 0.86 to 114.12 and the price of an average New York Stock Exchange common share fell 32 cents. Declines clipped advances by the biggest margin in two weeks, 973 to 435, among 1,772 issues on the tape.

Is your "thing" kirigami, bread dough sculpture, or quilting? The Mount Prospect Craft Artists are looking for people who enjoy doing unusual crafts.

Each fall the group has a one-day Unique Boutique where local craftsmen display and sell their work. Exhibitors are limited to members of the group. An effort is made to include hobbyists who create a wide variety of different crafts.

Later this month the Craft Artists will have a tea to screen prospective members. Anyone interested in receiving an invitation should call Evelyn Brandeau at 253-5214.

ARMY 2ND LT. NICKOLAS Van Dyke leaves this week for a year's duty in Korea. He recently graduated from Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va. Previously he completed Infantry Officer Candidate School and the Airborne Course (parachute jump school) at Fort Benning, Ga.

Li Van Dyke spent the past two weeks home on leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Van Dyke, 22 S. Edward St. During his leave he attended the christening of his nephew, Christopher Nicholas Van Dyke. The baby is the son of his brother, Roger.

AS PART OF his work on a doctorate in zoology, Douglas Schemske is studying at the University of Costa Rica this term. He is one of 20 students from U. S. universities participating in a two-month tropical studies program.

Douglas expects to receive his doctorate from the University of Illinois in Champaign. He is a graduate of Wheeling High School. His wife, the former Kathleen Almy of Mount Prospect, is working toward a master's degree in biology at the University of Illinois. Douglas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Schemske of Prospect Heights.

NAVY SEAMAN Thomas Wagner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wagner of 1806 Buckhorn Dr., has reported for duty at the U. S. Naval Communications Station in Nes Makri, Greece.

YOU'VE HEARD the old saw about giving a job that needs doing to a busy man. This seems to work with problems that need solving, too.

In January I told you my problems with my new non-typing typewriter. Although it was covered by the guarantee, no one seemed interested in seeing it was put back in working condition. For weeks it sat, unusable, in the dealer's store. Letters to the Better Business Bureau and a newspaper action column didn't help, either.

Finally I zipped a letter off to the president of the huge manufacturing company in New York. (These names and addresses are available at the library.) This resulted in a swift reply, an apologetic phone call from the company's area agent, and — best of all — a typewriter that types.

Perhaps this is why top businessmen reach the top. They care about solving problems — even small ones.

Proposed pact for 3 years with no-strike clause

Schools offer package to teachers

Proposals for a three-year contract with a no-strike clause for teachers were part of a negotiations package presented to teachers yesterday by the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 school board.

Representatives of the board and the Prospect Heights Education Association (PHEA) exchanged procedural negotiations proposals that will not be explained or discussed until the March 29 open bargaining session. There were no money items included in the partial packages for the 1973-74 teacher contract.

The board's proposals also included a no picket clause for members of the PHEA. David Kessler, chairman of the teachers' bargaining team, did not comment on the board's proposals, but laughed as he read the package.

THE TEACHERS' procedural package includes proposals that all extra duty, which includes such items as lunchroom supervising, be voluntary; that a non-student day be added to the school calendar for evaluation and record keeping, and that a committee of teachers and the principal be selected in each of the schools to "solve problems unique to their individual buildings."

Also among the PHEA proposals is a provision that no teacher in the junior high school be assigned to more than 150 students per day and that he "will not be required" to be in direct, assigned pupil contact for more than 240 minutes per day. The teachers' package also asks that the board not discriminate "for reasons of race, creed, religion, color, marital status, age, sex, national origin, or political affiliation" against a teacher or applicant.

When the two sides meet at 7:30 p.m. March 29, the first item of discussion will be whether this year's negotiations will be open to the public. In its package, the board proposes the meetings be closed and that minutes be distributed to the news media and teachers.

TEACHERS want open bargaining. At the first bargaining session last month, teachers stressed that a provision for open meetings is part of the 1972-73 teacher contract. Since the contract does not expire until July 31, teachers contend the provision is also in effect until then.

Kessler said yesterday that the PHEA "will hold its original stand on open bargaining unless the board can change our minds." He said the PHEA could possibly agree to private meetings "if there is an immediate gain in it for us."

6th school referendum to be weighed

The feasibility of holding a referendum to pay for the building and staffing of a sixth elementary school in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will be studied by a school board committee.

The committee, formed Wednesday night, will work with the administration and make recommendations to the board by July 1. Committee members are board members Carl Poch, Ronald Sowatzke and John Stull.

The committee was recommended by Supt. Edward Grodsky. "The committee should consider a referendum for a new school in the northwest quadrant of the district to serve children north of Palatine Road and west of Schoenbeck Road, and also the possibility of an addition to John Muir School," Grodsky said.

The committee, which will have a public meeting next Wednesday night, will discuss immediate and future measures to alleviate the overcrowding a Muir

School. According to Principal James Finke, enrollment is now "at the detrimental level" and he expects between 55 and 75 new students at the end of the year. School officials anticipate the problem will be much worse by next September.

THE LARGE influx of new students is coming from the Ivy Hill and Northgate subdivisions in Arlington Heights. School officials expect more new students next fall from these developments and from the Pleasant Run condominium complex in Wheeling.

If the committee decides a sixth school is needed and a referendum is approved, the school would be built on a site owned by the district on Windy Lane in Arlington Heights. In 1971, voters defeated a referendum for a state-built school on the site. This time, according to Grodsky, the school would cost a lot more.

Grodsky expects by the end of the school year, Dist. 23 will no longer qualify for a state-built school. As a result, they will have to borrow the money and pay interest. When a school is built by the state, the district pays rent to the state and eventually owns the building. However, the district does not have to pay any interest to the state.

School administrators to get raises

The 1973-74 salaries for administrators in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 were approved by the school board Wednesday night.

According to Ronald Sowatzke, chairman of the board's salary committee, pay raises were granted "on the basis of merit and comparison with surrounding districts." Raises vary from $1,600 for Supt. Edward Grodsky to $1,000 for several principals.

Grodsky will receive $25,800. Other central administration salaries, which are all for 12 months, are James Hendran, business manager, $19,000; and Tom Rich, assistant superintendent, $22,000.

Salaries for principals are: MacArthur Junior High, $19,800; Eisenhower, $17,750; Anne Sullivan, $17,100; Betsy Ross, $16,800; and John Muir, $16,000. Principals' contracts are for 10½ months, except at the junior high, where the contract is for one year. Also granted was $13,500 for assistant principal at MacArthur Junior High (for 12 months).

Mount Prospect police seek red car in robbery probe

Mount Prospect police are searching for the driver of a red car to help identify an armed robbery suspect.

Police believe the red car, make unknown, was almost involved in an accident with a yellow car, possibly a Pinto, about 1 p.m. March 9 while heading west on Golf Road, about 200 yards west of Busse Road in Mount Prospect. Police hope the driver of the red car will come forward and possibly help identify the driver of the yellow car, or the car itself.

The yellow car was seen speeding out of the shopping center at the southwest corner of Golf and Busse roads shortly after an armed robbery at Western Fashions, 1749 W. Golf Rd. Police believe the driver of the yellow car may have been involved in the robbery.

The yellow car apparently almost collided with the red car and forced the red car up onto the median strip. Police said they also had a report of a yellow car a short time later almost involved in a second accident as it turned northwest off of Golf Road onto Algonquin Road.

About $90 was taken during the holdup and a clerk, Mary Kozel of unincorporated Mount Prospect, was struck on the head and hand, resulting in a fractured skull and hand.

Police described the robbery suspect as a white male, about 26 years old, between 5 feet 4 inches and 5 feet 6 inches tall. He is of stocky build, about 175 pounds, has medium-length light brown hair and a full beard and mustache. He wore a navy blue silk jacket over a T-shirt.

Anyone with information may contact police detectives by phoning 392-6000.

would have an overall increase in their taxes.

Committee members said if the two-cent referendum were not passed, the district would be forced to either increase borrowing or reduce the level of educational programs.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS also indicated that if the educational fund referendum is sought in the fall, it may be coupled with the bond issue referendum needed for the proposed remodeling of Grove and Dempster junior high schools.

In other action at the meeting, committee chairman Allen Sparks praised the administration for the effort put into compiling the 1973-74 budget and praised the sophistication and completeness of the document.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration, said most of the funds in the new $14 million budget are in good shape. He said the level of borrowing had been reduced by 5 per cent in the education fund.

The building fund is budgeted over the maximum amount permitted by law for borrowing. Perry said the board would have to order cuts in this fund.

Fined for selling liquor to minor

Donald M. Steffler, 21, of 1810 N. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights, was fined $25 plus $5 court costs, after he pleaded guilty Wednesday in Mount Prospect Court to a charge of unlawfully selling alcohol to a minor.

Steffler, a clerk at Sun Drugs of Randhurst, sold 24 cans of beer and a fifth of rum Feb. 12 to a 16-year-old Arlington Heights youth. The youth was later caught by a Randhurst security guard in the mall area of the shopping center. The youth had the liquor in his possession.

PETE RODGERS, president of the Prospect Heights Lions Club, and Dist. 23 Supt. Edward Grodsky examine one of the new Civil Defense radios purchased for the district. The Lions Club and the federal government shared the cost of the six radios that will warn of impending disasters.

Omni-House report tells program development

by JILL BETTNER

Since Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau opened its doors last August, over 2,300 persons have been involved in or served by its programs. That's according to a report to the community issued yesterday by Omni-House officials.

The report outlines the development of the agency's programs in the past five months and gives a breakdown on the amount of participation in each activity.

"The cooperation of the community continues to be very strong," it reads. "We would like to extend a deep and sincere 'thank you very much,' especially to our local government officials, our police departments and our schools for the firm support, wise feedback and on-going cooperation which have been so consistently extended to us."

ACCORDING TO the report, the primary functions of Omni-House are to encourage youth development, prevent juvenile delinquency and provide alternatives to the juvenile justice system.

In an effort to reach kids before they get into trouble, the agency maintains an Out-Reach program operated by 48 volunteers in 15 different groups. These people try to meet and relate to young people where they congregate — in the bowling alley, in the school yard or on the street.

"Once a close relationship has been developed with the young persons, the outreach worker is in a position to present positive ways of life and to help the young persons make crucial decisions about how he is going to live his life," the reports say.

OTHER KIDS involved in the Out-Reach program are students searching for creative and worthwhile ways to use their time and energy.

"In all our reach groups, activities and projects such as art, ecology, camping and discussion group, provide the medium through which young people can grow in assuming responsibility for their lives, obtaining self-respect by having successful experiences with projects, learning to work in harmony with others and gaining community acceptance and recognition," the report says.

In the past five months, 175 area youth have been involved in some type of out-reach activity.

People with any kind of problem can receive helpful counseling by dialing the Omni-House Hotline. Trained volunteers provide crisis intervention counseling or refer callers to other agencies for follow-up work.

According to the report, 1,887 calls have been received on the Hotline since August. The projected number for the coming year is over 3,500.

THE NUMBER of persons involved in or served by other Omni-House services during the past five months include 114 in the Legal Rap Program; 85 in the Project A.I.D. Program and 12 in the Educational Special Classes.

About 170 area kids are also involved in remodeling the lower portion of the Omni-House building into an informal Drop-In Center. The center provides a place for discussions and programs involving music, art and dramatics, in addition to informal recreation. All programs are planned and developed by young people.

Omni-House is located at 516 N. Milwaukee Ave. in Wheeling. The agency serves the communities of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights. It is funded primarily by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC). Community contributions make up the rest of the monies needed for the operation of the counseling bureau.

Coffees set for Leo Floros

Coffees for Leo Floros, independent candidate for Mount Prospect village trustee, have been scheduled for the next two weeks.

Jane Strasser, coffee chairman, said coffees will be held March 19 through 22 at the homes of Mrs. Ralph Hauslein, 300 Prospect Manor Ave.; Mrs. Mel Miller, 711 N. Fairview Ave.; Mrs. Allen Schmid, 302 Berkshire Ln.; and Mrs. Bruce Brothers, 1102 W. Lincoln St.

The following week they will be at the homes of Mrs. Alan Lawson, 512 S. William St.; Mrs. Jack Griffith, 411 Na-Wa-

Ta Ave.; Mrs. William Hartmann, 101 N. Emerson St.; and Mrs. Jerry Clauser, 302 S. Kenilworth Ave.

A "super coffee" is planned for 8 p.m. April 12 in the Chestnut Room of the Mount Prospect Country Club. "Any and all are invited," Mrs. Strasser said.

Candidate Floros, in a press release, said he has been encouraged by the coffees so far. "At every one we have been able to recruit more workers," he said. "The people we have talked to seem to agree that the village board needs an independent voice. It doesn't be, and shouldn't be, a closed corporation."

Construction on the new Chicago and North Western Ry. passenger station at Arlington Park Race Track is under way and should be completed by June 1.

There is a possibility, however, that use of the station will be postponed until after the close of the racing season, now set to end July 24.

An exact scheduling of trains and fares for commuters who will use the new depot still have to be arranged, according to Rollins Coakley, director of commuter service for the railroad.

But Coakley did say that the new depot will be "a full-service station" with rush hour scheduling comparable to that which now exists in downtown Arlington Heights and Palatine.

THE ARLINGTON PARK station stop is expected to become one of the biggest on the Chicago and North Western line. It is expected to draw commuters from Arlington Heights, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove and Elk Grove Village.

The railroad is considering surveying riders to find out how many would switch to the new station, Coakley said. "But our big hope, of course, is to attract many new riders."

Village officials are hoping that the new depot will relieve, at least for a time, traffic and parking congestion around the downtown Arlington Heights station.

THE RACE TRACK will provide parking for about 800 cars near the depot. Access details have not been finalized, a spokesman said yesterday.

Under terms of a three-way agreement endorsed by the village, the race track and the railroad, the depot building, which will cost $109,000, is being paid for by the Village of Arlington Heights from its parking fund.

The railroad paid for the track and platform work and Arlington Park is responsible for maintaining the parking area.

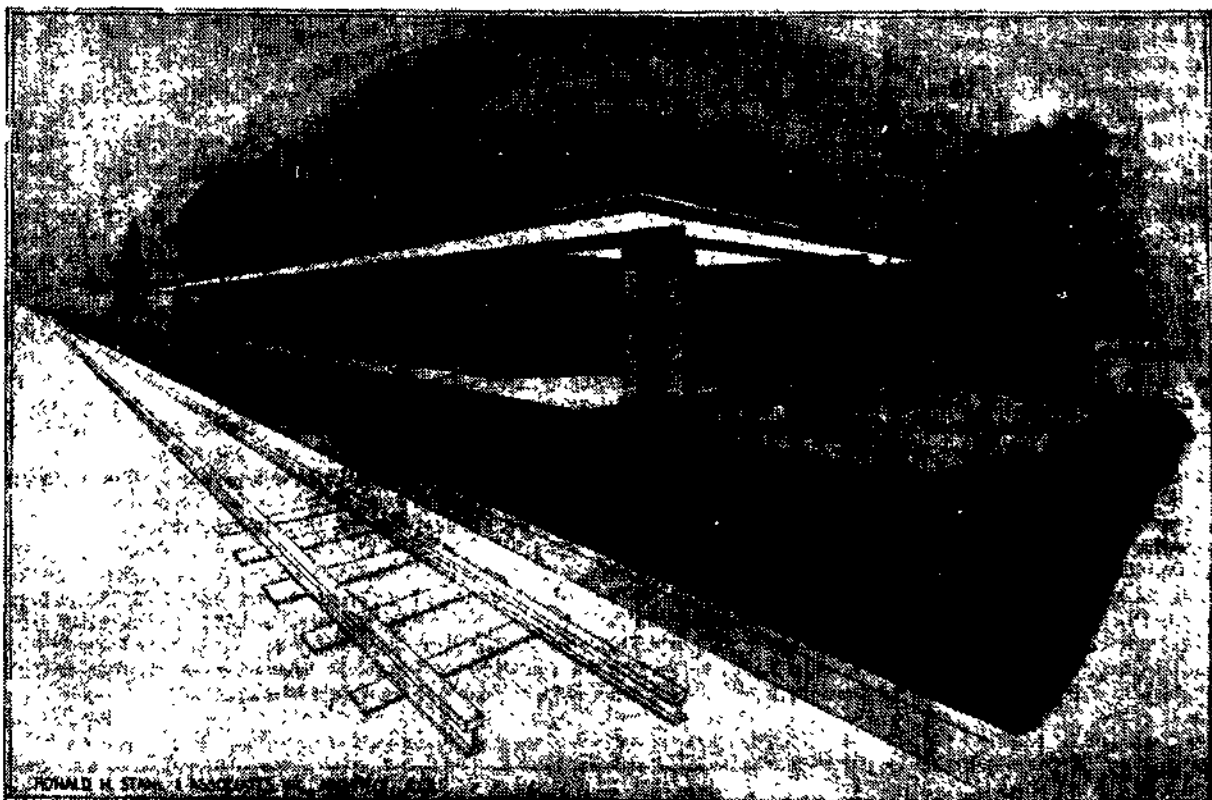

The building is being constructed by the F. & J. Vescey Construction Co. of Palatine. Its exterior brick matches that used for the Arlington Park Towers Theatre.

COAKLEY SAID the fare to Chicago from the depot probably will fall about halfway between the Arlington Heights and Palatine tariffs.

The present monthly fare to Chicago is $39 from Palatine and $36.20 from Arlington Heights. On a round-trip, daily basis the fares are $8 from Palatine and $2.80 from Arlington Heights.

"We may hold off opening the station to commuters until after the racing season is over, in order to give them one full year's experience without conflicting with the racing crowd," he said.

But if the depot is finished well ahead of the close of the racing season, the station probably will open before the final racing date, Coakley said.

THE NEW DEPOT at Arlington Park Race Track is now under construction and should be complete by about June 1. The station may not open to commuters, however, until after the close of the racing season at the track, now set for July 24. The building, shown here in a rendering by architect Ronald H. Stahl of Arlington Heights, will match the brick used in the Arlington Park Theatre. The building, which will cost $100,000 is being paid for by the Village of Arlington Heights.

Environment focus of Earth Week April 1-7

Information seminars on environmental problems as well as cleanup projects are scheduled for Earth Week, April 1-7, in Arlington Heights.

"We think ecology is more than just cleaning up. It involves understanding and awareness of a lot of different environmental matters," said Jean Hanson, village chairman of the 12-member Earth Week steering committee.

Environmental education will include a presentation by Del Seibert, horticulturist, April 4 at 8 p.m. at Camelot Park, 1006 E. Safford. He will discuss "Plant Material—Solution to Pollution."

Films including "Junk Dump," "The Shadow of Progress" and "The Stuff We Throw Away," will be shown at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton, April 1 from 2 to 4 p.m. and April 3 and 5 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The library also will feature exhibits on the environment prepared by local Girl Scout troops.

For those who wish to participate in cleaning up the village, an auto emissions check will be held April 7 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the parking lot of Miner

Junior High School, 1101 E. Miner. Periodic checks on the purity of village air also will be made at the municipal building, south side fire station and at the village well on North Arlington Heights Road.

Children at local schools and parks will join in the cleanup aspects of Earth Week by picking up litter. A poster and essay contest for students is also under way. Winners will be announced early in the week and posters will be displayed throughout the community.

Another highlight of Earth Week will be tree plantings at local parks.

OVER-ENTHUSIASM — As is customary, School Dist. 25 Board President H. Robert Powell, whose term ends in April, introduced the board to the public attending a recent meeting. "And I'm Bob Powell, president of the board, soon to retire." Before he could get another word out, a board member asked, "Do you want a motion?"

QUICK WEIGHT LOSS — A weight reducing program sponsored by a well-known cereal company was recently granted approval to hold meetings in a park district fieldhouse. When he heard of the program Park District Atty. Charles Bobinette said, "well, maybe they eat the holes in the Cheerios."

BACK IN THE OLD DAYS, Frontier Park has come to be affectionately known as "the old neighborhood park" among park district officials. Recently a basketball net was installed in the gym, but no free throw lines were added to the floor. "Back when I was a kid, we didn't have free throw lines in our old neighborhood gym," said Angelo Capulli, superintendent of parks. "Let them use their imagination."

FLUSHED OUT, The Northwest Opportunity Center recently asked for the park district for the use of Hasbrook Park for their annual Hike for Hunger. In the application, the center said they wanted to use the park's washroom facilities. And later in the application it was noted that 2,000 people were expected to hike. "I sure hope they don't all flush at once or we'll have the flood committee investigating us," commented one commissioner.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has introduced four bills aimed at giving "immediate protection" to Great Lakes and other shorelines endangered by erosion. The bills include a three-year, $5 million study of Lake Michigan.

President Nixon announced he will seek prompt removal of a U.S. tariff on beef imports to help curb rising meat prices, but said the best weapon against inflated food costs was still the American housewife.

President Nixon warned Senate Democrats they would get nowhere holding L. Patrick Gray III as "hostage" for White House testimony on the Watergate affair.

Senators Claiborne Pell and John Pastore, both D-R.I., have proposed making daylight savings time a year-round event. They contend the bill would cut crime and traffic accidents, and lessen electric power demands.

President Nixon has named veteran diplomat David K. E. Bruce as head of the new U.S. mission in Peking with responsibility of building "for cause of peace and better relations."

The state

An attorney for former Illinois Revenue Director Theodore Isaacs moved for a new trial on grounds of "judicial error" in last month's trial which ended in convictions for Isaacs, and Judge Otto Kerner.

The Illinois House has passed 96-65, a bill that would allow 19 year olds to buy beer and wine. The bill now goes to the Senate, where a similar measure was defeated last year.

The Illinois General Assembly approved a $17.85 million emergency aid package for impoverished mass transit systems including a $12.6 million grant for the Chicago Transit Authority.

The world

Strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos of Panama denounced U.S. "colonialist" control of the Canal Zone, and also branded the economic blockade of Cuba a "hemispheric shame."

Washington and Hanoi officials conferred in Paris on U.S. economic aid for North Vietnam. They said they were determined to reach agreement.

6th school referendum to be weighed

The feasibility of holding a referendum to pay for the building and staffing of a sixth elementary school in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will be studied by a school board committee.

The committee, formed Wednesday night, will work with the administration and make recommendations to the board by July 1. Committee members are board members Carl Poch, Ronald Sowatzke and John Stull.

The committee was recommended by Supt. Edward Grodsky. "The committee should consider a referendum for a new school in the northwest quadrant of the district to serve children north of Palatine Road and west of Schoenbeck Road, and also the possibility of an addition to John Muir School," Grodsky said.

The committee, which will have a public meeting next Wednesday night, will discuss immediate and future measures to alleviate the overcrowding at Muir School. According to Principal James Finke, enrollment is now "at the detrimental level" and he expects between 55 and 75 new students at the end of the year. School officials anticipate the problem will be much worse by next September.

THE LARGE influx of new students is coming from the Ivy Hill and Northgate subdivisions in Arlington Heights. School officials expect more new students next fall from these developments and from the Pleasant Run condominium complex in Wheeling.

School chiefs get raises

The 1973-74 salaries for administrators in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 were approved by the school board Wednesday night.

According to Ronald Sowatzke, chairman of the board's salary committee, pay raises were granted "on the basis of merit and comparison with surrounding districts." Raises vary from $1,600 for Supt. Edward Grodsky to $1,000 for several principals.

Grodsky will receive $25,800. Other central administration salaries, which are all for 12 months, are James Hendran, business manager, $19,000; and Tom Rich, assistant superintendent, $22,000.

Salaries for principals are: MacArthur Junior High, $19,800; Eisenhower, $17,750; Anne Sullivan, $17,100; Betsy Ross, $16,800; and John Muir, $16,000. Principals' contracts are for 10½ months, except at the junior high, where the contract is for one year.

Also granted was $13,500 for assistant principal at MacArthur Junior High (for 12 months).

KEY WORD IN DENTISTRY "PREVENTION"

No longer is the old saying, "Brush your teeth after every meal and see your dentist twice a year" the ruling factor in dental health. Now the new concept is prevention and dentists start by motivating their patients to learn how to control plaque. At the beginning there may be frequent visits until the dentist has thoroughly instructed the patient in the technique. Then a visit every four months is encouraged.

Not too long ago lots of cavities, chronic gum problems and other dental ills were accepted as an everyday part of living. But now prevention is helping to change all this.
